Wilmington honors 9/11

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - They gathered in ones and twos, propping open lawn chairs and spreading blankets on the lawn. They came in small families, and large ones. Waiting for the procession from St. Thomas of Villanova Church just down the road from the common, residents came together Sunday afternoon to recognize the tenth anniversary of 9/11.

Initially, many were parents of high school band members. Most of those teens remember only a little of that day, now forever held in sharp relief, things like parents glued to the television or the flags that flew prominently in the days that followed.

Sunday's weather was nearly a perfect replica of that beautiful September morning ten years ago, bright and crisp initially with light cloud cover moving in through the day.

Judy Keefe, once an employee for an airline in the pre-9/11 world, came to the common Sunday afternoon in part to see her son, Brandon, 16, a junior at Wilmington High School. Even if her son were not part of the band, Keefe said, "I would have come out anyway. I've been watching the different things on TV today."

Others came holding pictures of relatives and friends

Special Election: December 6 - Special Town Meeting: December 10

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - Selectmen voted unanimously Monday, at a joint session with the School Committee, to set the dates for the two key votes putting the fate of a new Wilmington High School in the hands of residents.

The process to pass the project will come after the Massachusetts School Building Authority (MSBA) approves the project scope and budget, slated for November 16, 2011, which will also determine the total amount the town must approve to spend on the high school.

The town will hold a special election for a Proposition 2 1/2 debt exclusion Tuesday, December 6. Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Then, on Saturday, December 10, a Special Town Meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m. at the Wilmington High School gymnasium. Both votes require passage in order for the town to be eligible for MSBA funding.

The next public meeting is slated for Thursday, October 13. Don Walter from Dore & Whittier told officials the estimated total project cost ranges from $72 to $80 million, adding that a definitive number will be determined in the next few weeks as required for submission to the

by DANA BURNHAM

WILMINGTON - Has the Wilmington spirit of volunteerism got you thinking? Maybe you've been thinking about doing some volunteer work but don't know how to get started? Or are you aware of volunteer opportunities in Wilmington but don't know if one organization is a better fit for you than another? Or is there a need you have but aren't sure how to find the service or services that could help? Then here's your chance to find out about what different groups in town are all about without your feeling any pressure to join or to make a commitment before you are ready. The Wilmington Memorial Library is holding its second annual Community Fair on Saturday, September 24, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the "Swain Green" across from the Town Common.

About thirty Wilmington organizations (up from 20 last year) will be on hand to provide you with information, answer your questions, and let you know what their particular group's goals are or what their mission is. Library Director Tina Stewart says "This is a great chance to talk to people about what they have to offer, and for people to find out how they can give back to the town. Wilmington is a great place to live because of its spirit of volunteerism, and the Library is hoping to help spark civic engagement" by hosting the Community Fair.

Many of the groups who participated in last year's Community Fair are back, but this year you can also expect to see a wider variety, including some of the town's churches, as well as town departments such as the Police, Fire, Elderly Services, and Recreation. In fact, the Conservation Commission will be at the fair having sign-ups for town clean up the following week, on Sat. October

Fundraiser for Mikey Sept 23 at K of C

WILMINGTON - A fundraiser is being planned for Mikey Murphy. Mikey is the Wilmington 14 year old who went into cardiac arrest and collapsed at the Town Hall field on his way to the Bruins parade. Mikey is working hard 6 days a week at Spaulding Rehab. Although Mikey is unable to communicate or walk, he continues to fight every day and is making progress.

This event will be held at the Wilmington Knights of Columbus on September 23rd from 7:30-11:00 p.m.

There will be food, music and some great raffle items.

Tickets are available at the door. The cost is $15.00 for adults and $10.00 for students. Anyone who would like to donate a raffle item (gift certificate/goody basket) or is willing to donate a few hours of their time to DJ the event, please contact Nancy Roberts at:

jimnanroberts@verizon.net. All proceeds raised will go to the Murphy family. The support of the community has been wonderful, so please join us on the 23rd to help show the Murphy family that Mikey continues to be in our thoughts and prayers.

Inmate takes a walk on work crew

Bought cigarettes and a Snickers bar

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - An inmate on a work crew on Interstate 93 Friday took a break from his work to visit a Mobil On the Run to purchase a pack of cigarettes and a Snickers bar. He was apprehended trying to get back to his crew before his absence was noted.

Wilmington police quickly apprehended the man, Jose Kamandi Iglesias, 33, of Revere, and held him at the police station until the Apprehension Team from the Department of Corrections picked him up and took him back to MCI Concord.

According to the Suffolk District Attorney spokesman Jake Wark, Iglesias was convicted in October 2010 on drug charges of possession of a Class A substance with intent to distribute. According to newspaper reports, Iglesias

Harvey comes to town – again

WHS Class of 1961 here for 50th reunion weekend

WILMINGTON - If you happen to see a six-foot one-and-a-half-inch invisible pookah in town this weekend, relax — it's just Harvey, the star of the 1961 senior class play at Wilmington High School.

The 68-ish youngsters of the Class of 1961 will converge on Wilmington for their 50th reunion, trying to equal the "Wow! I'm outta here!" excitement of graduation with a "Wow! I'm back!" weekend, catching up with old friends who haven't been seen for many years — and in one case, never seen.

Harvey Rabbit does have a 1961 Wilmington diploma. Like other members of the class, he was born in 1943, only he was born in the mind of playwright Mary Chase, who won a Pulitzer in 1945 for her comedy. It concerned an eccentric Elwood P. Dowd who had an imaginary friend, a rabbit whom he called Harvey. The late Dr. Joseph Beaton played Dowd in the 1961 WHS presentation. Jon Meads was memorable as Wilson, the psychiatrist's assistant. George Szadis and Fay Waterman also were great.

The big reunion event is a dinner on Friday night at the Holiday Inn in Tewksbury. There will also be a tour of Wilmington High School, which may be a last look, if plans go forward for a new school. Jack Cushing is making the arrangements for that tour. There is also a bus tour to Rockport.

Jean (DeAngelis) Chang and Alan Ford and their Reunion Committee have done an outstanding job in locating classmates and putting together a great venue for the reunion.

Guests of honor will be Frank Kelley, Irene (Sharp) Brennan, Edward Sullivan and Walter Pierce.

The reunion will draw people from near and far. Jon Meads, senior class president, is coming from Seattle.

The "Class with Class" attended WHS through two phases of construction, including the Adams Street wing, the Barrows Auditorium and the gym, since replaced.

2011 Craft & Gift Festival

READING - The arrival of fall means pumpkins, colorful leaves and the annual Friends of Austin Craft & Gift Festival at Austin Preparatory School.

More than 70 vendors will be selling a variety of wares — including jewelry, cards, home décor items, handbags, gift baskets, and many other goods. The fair also features bake and flower sales and raffle prizes.

The event is organized by the Friends of Austin, a volunteer parent group, and serves as a fundraiser for the school. All proceeds benefit Austin Prep.

Admission is $3 and parking is free. Questions may be directed to Julianne Bloise, manager of public relations, at 781-944-4900 ext. 849 or jbloise@austinprepschool.org

Austin Preparatory School is a Catholic, co-educational, college preparatory school. Located in Reading, Mass., Austin Prep educates 700 students, with 200 of those enrolled in Middle School (grades 6 to 8) and 500 enrolled in High School (grades 9 to 12). The student body is geographically diverse, arriving from more than 55 cities and towns throughout Northeastern Massachusetts and Southern New Hampshire.

Two new Eagle Scouts

STRETCH YOUR RETIREMENT SAVINGS

Your retirement savings will last longer if you pay attention to what money is where and what to spend first. If your contributions to an IRA were deductible, your withdrawals will be taxable as ordinary income. (Roth IRA withdrawals are tax-free.) If you made nondeductible contributions to an IRA, you can escape some taxes, but figuring how much can be tricky; work with a professional.

As a rule, it's often wisest to tap taxable accounts first, where you can take advantage of low rates for dividends and capital gains, while letting tax-deferred accounts continue to grow.

Is your money in a 401(k)? If you leave your job at 55 or older, you can take penalty-free withdrawals. If you roll over the 401(k) funds to an IRA, you'll have to wait until 59 1/2. Taxes are due.

Once you are 70 1/2, you must start withdrawing a specified percentage or your IRA each year. Don't neglect to do so; the penalty is half what you should have taken out.

be completed before a scout can move to the highest rank.

Each joined the Boy Scouts Troop 47 for different reasons. In first grade, Farley said his father had asked him if he'd like to join the Scouts. No one in his family had been a member.

"I think my dad asked me if I wanted to do it one day and I said, 'Yes,'" he said.

Puelo, however, said he had relatives that were Boy Scouts, and that was one of the reasons for his joining the organization. Mostly, though, it was due to his boredom with the Cub Scouts, which he joined in 2001.

"There were a few people in my family that did it before me. Cub Scouts got a little boring at the end," Puelo said.

After joining the Boy Scouts, he said he went on a few camping trips and realized the group was for him.

And that's how the two of them met and became friends.

"I've known [Tyler] since I was in sixth grade—he was in fifth. So, I've known him all through middle school, all through high school," said Farley.

"I met him in the scouts. That's how we became friends. I've known him for years — so our friendship developed through our careers in scouts," he continued.

Puelo agreed: he added that their friendship grew from trips and other activities within the scouts.

"We're definitely good friends. We met through scouts. Throughout the years, we've done all kinds of things. We went to Virginia — there's this thing called The National Jamboree that kids from around the country go to," he said.

Last summer, both went on a trip to the Grand Canyon.

These experiences lead them to pursue the Eagle Scout designation.

Neither of them considered it upon joining the Boy Scouts. But, as their tenure progressed, it became apparent that this is where they were headed.

"When I was fourteen or fifteen, I started thinking about becoming an Eagle Scout," said Farley.

He elaborated on the process.

"Basically, it took me from the age of eleven to now — seventeen. I just had to get a bunch of requirements for rank — keep moving up in rank every year and try and earn rank," he said.

Puelo said he originally wanted to enjoy himself.

"At first, it wasn't really in my mind. I kind of wanted to have fun and enjoy the trips. But, as I started getting older and getting closer, it definitely became one of my focuses," he said.

TEWKSBURY - The liquor license sought by the Trull Brook Golf Course was ultimately approved by the Board of Selectmen at their meeting on Tuesday, but not without some spirited debate.

The course, which sits on 125 acres land that has been owned by the Trull family for decades, seeks to remodel. In addition to alcohol-related accommodations, dining room areas and patios will be expanded. Donald Lange, of DLA Architecture and the overseer of the project, presented the plans to the Board at the meeting.

Richard O'Neill, the attorney representing the Trull family, said the license and the proposed changes will allow the course to remain competitive.

"We've seen golf courses turn to [the sport's] social aspect [to remain competitive]," he said.

Selectman Doug Sears said the proposed license would turn the new additions into a restaurant. His concern was that some people would come to the course not to golf, but to drink.

O'Neill stressed that the alcohol would only be served to golfing patrons, and he said the facility would abide by the regulations established by Massachusetts.

"It's real cool because you have somebody else to talk about things with and compare different situations and experiences because they know firsthand what it's like. It's just been a fun time," said Puelo.

"I'd like to thank everyone who helped me out with my project, including the Tewksbury Senior Center, the Tewksbury Garden Club, and Troop 47," he said.

Their time in the Boy Scouts draws to a close. But now, a bright future awaits them both.

Liquor license approved

Town Counsel Charles

Zaroulis also raised the issue that the updates, once complete, may violate zoning laws.

"You may be moving into a situation where this is not an accessory to the golf course," he said.

He said more information should be gathered.

A group of residents expressed overwhelming support for the measure, stating the Trull family has been great neighbors. They said that they had no doubts the Trull Course would keep to alcohol law if granted the license.

Sheldon Alman, the future manager of the new facility and Tewksbury resident, agreed.

"This would be a wonderful thing for the community," he said.

The motion then went to vote, and it was passed. Chairman Todd Johnson praised Roy Trull, who was present, and his family's reputation.

Along with the dining facility, there would also be five roving drink carts that would serve alcohol to golfers. This would be a precedent in Tewksbury—such carts had not been present before.

The license now awaits state approval.

To the Editor:

Having just completed a successful and enjoyable first season, the Wilmington Farmers Market Association would like to sincerely thank the Town of Wilmington for its support. From the start, our mission was not only to provide a place for residents to buy fresh, locally grown produce, but also to create a gathering spot for community members. While we recognize that there is always room for improvement, we feel that we have realized many of our goals. We could not have done that without the support of our town government, the residents of Wilmington and the many local businesses who offered their time and support to the farmers market. We are truly grateful.

Thank you very much,

The Wilmington Farmers Market Association

Farmers market looking for feedback

WILMINGTON - The Wilmington Farmers Market has concluded its inaugural season, and while organizers feel that it was successful, but they realize that there is always room for improvement. They are asking for feedback through an online end-of-season survey. Let them know what you liked about the farmers market and what you think would make it better. Find the survey on the web at www.surveymonkey.com/s/YHW5DG.

'Thank you' from Mikey's family

Dear Editor,

I wanted to write this letter of gratitude long ago. I was hoping it would be a very special thank you that ended with great news and a happy closure to a horrific ordeal. Unfortunately that is not the case, but I still feel the need to express our sincere thanks as the love and support continues to pour in.

On the early morning of June 18, when my son, Michael Murphy, went into sudden cardiac arrest, I did not realize how drastically our lives would change. Even after the doctors told us that Mikey would probably not live through the night, he fought through that and proved them wrong. He continued to fight which gave me hope that he would be walking out of Children's Hospital within weeks.

That hope started to diminish in me after numerous tests were performed on Michael, followed by discouraging meetings with his doctors. The realization finally hit me that my life, my family's life, and mainly Michael's life has forever changed.

We still hope for a miracle that he will one day be able to see, talk, eat, and walk again, just as he did a few months ago, but Michael has an extremely long road ahead of him.

As his mother, I am forever heartbroken. I wake up every morning hoping this was all a bad dream, but I walk by his bedroom and he's not there. I wake up without my husband who has not spent a night at home since June 18. I watch my youngest daughter cry and wonder when her brother and Dad will be home again.

I talk with my older children everyday who are still in disbelief, and sometimes too emotional to even discuss it. I sit on my couch waiting to hear Mikey's voice ask me his usual questions like "Mom, how was your day? What's for dinner? What time will Pop be home from work?" I still feel the kisses on my cheek that he gave me that morning before he headed out the door for the Bruins parade. I warned him to be careful on the train and in Boston, and still see his expression of "I know Mom!!!"

I still hear him telling me what he wanted to buy his Dad at the parade for Father's Day the next day. I still see him standing there in his jean shorts and Bruins sweatshirt looking so handsome while he waited for a text from his friends to go meet them.

The enormous amount of anxiety I feel, wishing so

Retreat to Obsolete

The quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog. (English language pangram).

A few weeks ago I got stuck sitting beside a woman who I did not know, who insisted on showing me her new iPhone, which involved a lengthy demonstration. When she bragged about a feature that allowed her to find any song ever recorded in the history of the world, since the beginning of time, I suggested the most obscure song I could think of - then waited. Half-heartedly, while chitchatting with the others at our table, I glanced back and forth while she scrolled and rolled and tapped the screen and picked at the itchy-bitsy keys in frustration. Every so often I would turn toward her and say, "Howyadoin'?"

How about all those pictures stored in everyone's phone? Two sentences into a conversation and out comes the phone with pictures to back up the story. Or, before you have time to think about some "fact" someone has pulled up the information on their stupid-phone (oh, I mean their Smart-Phone) and is reading robotically to you.

Recently in a meditation class we discussed the importance of humor in our lives. Homework for the following week was for each of us to tell a funny story or a joke or two. That week quite a few people read jokes off their phones! Do you think maybe the joke is on us?

As an act of rebellion, I want to have our old rotary phone re-installed. I miss dialing in a circle, watching the numbers spin backwards, counter-clockwise, making that distinctive whirring sound.

And all of the dire predictions of the printed word disappearing has just made me dig my heels in, sending more notes, post cards, clippings and letters through the U.S. Mail. A month ago or so, a friend drove past my door on her way to the Post Office to mail a paperback book to me. Inside were some very funny comments, each one written on a separate, bright-colored post-it note, along with a "Sylvia" cartoon tucked in between the pages. On that day when I went out to my mailbox and found her surprise, I could feel a tiny ping of glee.

In my pursuit to ponder the past, the Institute of Contemporary Art's exhibit "The Record" was a must. Through art (sculpture, drawings, paintings, photography and so on), the exhibit explored the history and folklore of the vinyl record. I'm sure the recent resurgence in records is what attracted so many young people to the exhibit, but there were more of us, I'd say, milling around who were there back then, reflecting, telling stories, and comparing our collections. In this house, "spinning a record" is not unusual - Bill has over 3000(!) records.

Continuing my quest to hold onto or re-invent permanence in my life, I dug out and dusted off my 1942 Royal manual typewriter - originally my father's, coming down in the family to me. God, it looked good, flat steely gray, with round, green keys, heavy and solid as a rock. It sat there as if saying, "I am." At one time there were pages and pages of ads in the Yellow Pages for typewriter repairmen. Today there are only a few true-believers left to turn to. The Cambridge Typewriter Company on Massachusetts Avenue in Arlington is the kind of time-depot that I want to be locked up in overnight. Shades drawn, just being able to go from machine to machine, rolling a piece of paper down in, tapping away, trying them all - Remington and Royal, Olympia and Olivetti, Underwood, Smith Corona, some as old as the 1920s and 30s, still sturdy and strong, with secrets and souls. No power needed, only the strike of your fingers snapping the keys, and the ring of the bell to remind us of a slower time.

When I dropped off my typewriter at the Cambridge Typewriter Company, the owner gave me a small orange "claim check" and told me that it could be weeks, that he was very busy. There's been a comeback of sorts, a return to the manual typewriter, and surprisingly, it's the young that are most interested. Partly nostalgia, but mostly the teens and 20-somethings want to try a machine that has history and character, that's slower and more like handwriting.

Who actually invented the typewriter is not crystal clear, but in 1873 E. Remington & Sons began production of an "up-strike" typewriter. The company made 550 typewriters the first year - Mark Twain bought one of them. And it was the typewriter more than anything else that gave women a way to enter the work force in large numbers. World War II was a manual typewriter war since typewriters were classified as wartime material and armies took typewriters with them into battle. The factories that made typewriters used the same equipment and methods as the factories that made guns.

The manual typewriter has a long and relevant past. The typewriter revolutionized the office as well as the home. For sure society will never go back, we have embraced and yes, surrendered to technology. But some of us are reclaiming our sanity, refusing to be hurried and harried anymore. When I pick-up my Royal, I'll need a few minutes of Tom Furrier's time - a quick refresher in setting tabs and margins and a little time to practice the home row and to get reacquainted with the "touch." Oh, and I must remember to be ever so gentle when the keys jam, and I'm peering down in and picking at the Pica.

Desperate attempt

Dear Editor:

I think you would have to agree that moving the back stop 17 feet closer to home plate at Wilmington High School's Scanlon baseball field in order to fit the proposed new school in is an example of shoe horning. They also have to eliminate the softball field and bus kids off site. I think it could also be considered to be a desperate attempt to build a school that we do not need in order to enrich the wall street bankers. I believe its been said that for every legislator there are five lobbyists from the banking industry. I think the people of Wilmington should take a stand and not let them hurt our community's economy like they hurt the rest of the country. I think it would be a good exercise to check out the Gilbane building company's board of directors and the connection to our local politicians.

badly that I could go back to that morning and freeze the moment before he walked out the door, is sometimes unbearable. As my family and I struggle each day to be strong, we undoubtedly know that we would NOT have the strength and encouragement that we have if it wasn't for our friends, our community, even total strangers.

The overwhelming support we have been receiving is absolutely phenomenal. We are forever thankful to everybody:

To the boys who found my son when they did, and to the emergency crew that arrived at the scene to save my boy, I am forever grateful.

For the police officer who came to my door so calm and collected, but visibly concerned to inform me that my son was ill, then transported me to Winchester Hospital, I thank him for trying to keep me calm while I was already panicking before I knew the severity of my son's condition.

For the amazing staff at Winchester Hospital who got my son's heart beating again after flatlining several times, I am beyond thankful.

The lineup of State Police cruisers were remarkable as they escorted the Critical Care Ambulance that carried Mikey, my husband and I, and my oldest son, from Winchester Hospital to Boston's Children's Hospital. A traumatic ride that will never leave our minds.

The ICU team at Children's Hospital who cared for my son 24-7, while also caring for my very distraught family, and every team of doctors and nurses on each floor that he was on, were outstanding.

The people who brought food over to my house while my brother was there caring for my daughter and maintaining my home, the people who called with their concerns and offered to help with any type of service we needed, the company who mowed our lawn, the Women of Wilmington (W.O.W) still overwhelm us to this day.

The slew of kids who rushed in to visit Mikey day after day to show their true feelings without shame, by crying, praying and begging him to wake up, as well as some of their parents, will touch our hearts forever.

Michael's friends, school teachers, principals, and faculty who visited him and also helped set up a benefit kick-ball game for Mikey, the girls who set up a prayer vigil at a Wilmington church, the kids and parents who set up different websites to support my son and family, the people who made shirts and bracelets in honor of Mikey, still bring tears to my eyes. Every person, team and organization who set up and donated to a trust fund for my son, leave us speechless.

Every individual who has prayed for us, cried with us, lent us their shoulder to cry on, hugged us, sent a note with kind words and sympathy, we thank you. Not a day goes by that we don't think of all of you, and how strong you've kept us.

We are so fortunate to be part of this community, that we proudly call our HOME: a community that deserves an enormous amount of recognition for being so outstanding and loyal.

We are truly blessed and will never, ever forget every ounce of love and support you've given us. On behalf of Mikey, and our family that you've touched individually in each one of our hearts, we THANK YOU more than words could ever describe!!!

Sincerely,

Mikey's Mom and Dad,
Cynthia and Michael Murphy
Mikey's older siblings, Mark DiLorenzo, Stephanie DiLorenzo and Patrick Murphy

And Mikey's little sister, Kristina Murphy

BBB advice for making "golden" gold transactions

NATICK - As global markets are currently seeing rapid declines, worried investors are seeking safe havens for their funds. Many are looking to new investment plans to help their money grow. With the price of gold at an all time high of more than $1,700 per ounce, Better Business Bureau is advising consumers to do their homework before making tempting gold transactions.

Whether through an online venue, an at home "gold party," or your local jeweler, many consumers are looking to sell their gold jewelry for some quick cash. However, not just any dealer can be trusted. In just this year alone, BBB has already received more than 500 complaints against gold, silver and platinum dealers, a number that is well on its way to reaching 2010's 581 total complaints.

"Consumers need to be on the lookout for not so reputable sellers," said Paula Fleming, vice president of communications & marketing of your local BBB. "Many of the complaints we receive stem from false advertising and delivery issues where the consumer ends up being appraised far less than what they thought their gold was worth."

BBB recommends following these tips to ensure a "golden" gold transaction:

- Find a trustworthy appraiser. For an appraisal, if possible, go to someone locally whom you know and trust. Always check with BBB first at bbb.org. BBB suggests obtaining two or three appraisals to compare prices, prior to any sale.

- The true price of gold may not be what you receive. If gold is worth $1,700 per ounce, you aren't going to be paid $1,700 for every ounce of gold you have. Ask what you will be paid (if an online company, make sure you ask for specifics and give details on items you'll be sending). Understand that the ounce quote is for pure gold only. For instance, 14-karat gold is composed of just 58.5 per cent gold. Ask how much the company's going rate is for each ounce of each karat you are sending. The lower the karat, the less the gold content.

- Don't let jewelry of different karat value be weighed together. Some dealers will weigh all jewelry together and pay you for the lowest karat value. Separate your jewelry by karat value before attending a gold party.

- Don't let anyone steal your diamonds from gold pieces. Single gold stud earrings might be worth $5 or $10, yet diamonds in the earrings can be saved. Some are too small, and the labor to remove them might exceed their value, but engagement ring diamonds, for example, should be given a value separate from the gold.

- Know the terms and conditions when sending items by post. Make sure your items are insured when being shipped, so if they are lost you can recover the value. Obtain appraisals prior to mailing items, so if they are lost you have proof of their value. Check the company's policy as to what they will reimburse if they lose your product. Many limit their liability. Make a list of the items included in the package, keep a copy for yourself, and put a copy in the envelope. Take a picture of the items you are sending, including any identifying marks.

- Ask about the company's guarantee if you are not satisfied with the price offered. Can you get your product back, if you return the check? Many companies melt down the items in 10-14 days. If you send the check back, send it "return receipt requested," so you have proof when it arrived at the company.

Wilmington's Alexandra Neville is all grown up but her father Jake (Billerica's Curt Fennell) longs for the days when she was daddy's little girl (Miranda Russo of Burlington). (courtesy photo).

Neil Simon's Jake's Women With Wilmington's Alexandra Neville

BURLINGTON - Wilmington resident Alexandra Neville starts in the Burlington Players season opener, Neil Simon's "Jake's Women," running September 16-October 1 at the Burlington Players Park Playhouse, 1 Edgemere Avenue, Burlington. Tickets are $15-18, with $3 off for seniors and students. For tickets call (781)-229-2649, or visit burlingtonplayers.com.

Jake (Billerica's Curt Fennell), a novelist who is more successful with fiction than real life, avoids facing a marital crisis by daydreaming about the women in his life. The wildly comic and sometimes moving flashbacks playing in his mind are interrupted by visits from actual females. Jake's women include a revered first wife (Becca Leighton of Somerville) who was killed years earlier in an accident, his daughter who is recalled as a child (Burlington's Miranda Russo), but is now a young woman (Alexandra Neville of Wilmington), his boisterous and bossy sister (Burlington resident Kerry Moe), an opinionated analyst (Woburn's Siellen DeVito), his current wife who is leaving Jake for another man

Fall meeting of Tewksbury Historical Society

TEWKSBURY - The Tewksbury Historical Society will be having its fall meeting on September 22, 2011 at the North Street School. The meeting will start at 6:00 p.m.

The first order of business is to re-dedicate a plaque in room #1 for Ruth Tingley Anderson, a former teacher in the school. Room #1 was the site of the first school library at the North Street School.

David Marcus will be talking after the re-dedication ceremony about the development of the Town Meetinghouse and the following buildings that were the churches and town halls, plus the different schools that were located in the center of town.

The public is invited and the event is free.

Future events planned are the second annual Cemetery Tour hosted by our Society expert on cemeteries who will focus on some Civil War veterans as part of this year's Civil War historical events. In late November and early December, the Society will be having its talent show tryouts, and then the third annual celebration of Charter Day with a terrific talent show to host Tewksbury's 277th birthday.

Fundraiser dance for St. Vincent dePaul Society

TEWKSBURY - The St. Vincent de Paul Society will hold a fundraiser dance on October 10, 2011 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 2068 Main Street, Tewksbury. The dance's theme is "Stroll Down Memory Lane" and it runs from 7:00 to 11:00 p.m. Music of the 60's, 70's and 80's will be provided by DJ Gerry O.

Tickets are $15 per person and are available at the door. Call (978) 851-0181 for more information.

OBITUARIES

Anna L. "Lucy" Percuoco

Enjoyed reading, traveling and cooking

WILMINGTON - Anna L. "Lucy" (DiNitto) Percuoco, age 65, of Wilmington passed away on September 11, 2011, at her home. She was the beloved wife of Anthony "Tony" Percuoco.

Lucy was born and raised in Somerville but has resided in Wilmington for the last 38 years.

She graduated from Somerville High School in 1964 as a member of the National Honor Society and later continued her education. Lucy graduated from the Chandler School for Women in 1966.

Lucy worked for many years in the Wilmington Public Library. She was a loving wife, mother, grandmother and cousin.

Lucy had a love of reading and traveling. She enjoyed playing the slots but the thing that brought her the most joy was baking and cooking for her extended family. All who knew and loved her will miss her terribly.

In addition to her husband Tony, she is survived by her son Philip Percuoco and his wife Holly, of Framingham, her daughter Rina Watne, and husband, Dan of Wilmington.

Lucy was the daughter of the late Philip and Frances (Cota) DiNitto, sister of Nicholas DiNitto and his wife Fay Marie of Marlborough and grandmother of Sandra, Danny and Anna. Lucy is also survived by many loving nieces, nephews and cousins.

Calling hours are at the Cota Funeral Home, 335 Park St. in North Reading on Wednesday, September 14th from 4:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Her funeral will be on Thursday, September 15th at 9:30 a.m. at the funeral home: Mass at St. Theresa's Church, 63 Winter St. (Rte. 62), North Reading at 10:30 a.m. Burial to follow at Wildwood Cemetery in Wilmington.

Josephine Regina Shemkus

Laughed with ease; an all-around sassy lady

WILMINGTON - Josephine Regina Shemkus, a proud mother, doting grandmother, and all-around sassy lady, died peacefully in her sleep on Tuesday, September 13, 2011. She was 91.

Born in Chelsea in 1920 to Polish immigrants, Josephine Cusky was raised in Medford, the youngest of 11 children. In the stories she told of her childhood, she was a mischievous girl, prone to sneaking cigarettes and going on long, adventurous walks with her sister.

Josephine met future husband John Shemkus when they both worked for the Worcester Paper Box Co. in Medford and he insisted on helping Josephine with her work. They were married in 1940; John passed away in 1970.

A resident of Wilmington for more than 60 years, Josephine was actively involved in the Wilmington Senior Center.

Josephine will be remembered by her family and friends for her kindness, her sense of humor and her independence.

She loved to crochet and took delight in creating blankets, hats and sweaters for family, charitable causes, and even the children of her caretakers. Her grandchildren were very important to her and she never missed an opportunity to brag about their achievements. Wherever she went, Josephine was described by those who met her as "cute."

Josephine laughed with ease, happy to tease her loved ones and take her share of ribbing in return. She was not above telling an off-color joke or throwing a Lady Gaga reference into her repartee.

Proud of her independence, Josephine lived alone until well after her 91st birthday.

She is survived by daughter Jacqueline Fitzgerald and her husband David, of Haverhill; son John Shemkus and his wife Fran, of Reading; grandson Jason Fitzgerald, of St. Charles, Mo.; granddaughter Sarah Shemkus and her fiancé Patrick Good, of West Harwich; granddaughter Rachel Long, her husband Scott, of Woburn, and their soon-to-be-born child, who Josephine was eager to meet; granddaughter Megan Fitzgerald, of Haverhill; grandson John Fitzgerald, of Haverhill; and four great-grandchildren.

Family and friends will gather at the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc., 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington, on Monday, September 19th at 9:00 a.m. followed by a Mass of Christian Burial in St. Thomas of Villanova Church, 126 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington at 10:00 a.m. Interment to follow in the family lot at Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington. Visiting hours will be held on Sunday, September 18th from 3-7 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that donations be made to VNA of Middlesex East, 607 North Ave., Suite 17, Wakefield, MA 01880.

Malden Catholic junior develops 9/11 memorial

Wilmington resident

Kyle Cunningham leads effort

MALDEN - There are ten American Flags suspended from the ceiling, one to commemorate each year since the tragedy of September 11, 2001. This memorial in the lobby at Malden Catholic High School is the creation of Kyle Cunningham, a junior from Wilmington, who is on a mission. "I need to be sure that people remember what happened on that tragic day. We need to understand the disaster so that this will not happen again," says Cunningham. "This was a real event, with real people and real heartache. It is not a page in a history book from long ago, but a sad day that occurred and changed our lives forever."

Cunningham was in the first grade at St. Charles School in Woburn on that horrific day. Ten years later, he thought about a way to memorialize the incident. Before the school year ended last June, Kyle approached Br. Timothy Hoey, CFX with an idea to commemorate the Tenth Anniversary. Brother Hoey lost his brother Patrick in the attack on 9/11. Cunningham wrote to Congressman Edward Markey '64 about his idea to honor the victims of 9/11. Markey responded in true MC Lancer spirit by sending a United States flag that had been flown over Ground Zero at the site of the Twin Towers. Another of the ten flags in the lobby is also a U.S. Twin Towers flag generously on loan from Br. Thomas Petite, FMS. In total, ten flags hang from the rafters, honoring the extraordinary heroism, commitment and sacrifice of 9/11 victims, rescuers and their families.

In addition to the flag display, a special poster was created by Kyle's aunt, Carolyn Taylor, a graphic designer who worked closely with Kyle and Brother Hoey to select the images for the commemorative photo. It is the focal point of the Malden Catholic lobby, surrounded by the ten majestic flags that hang in recognition of unity, freedom, hope and love of God and mankind. It is a demonstration of Kyle Cunningham's tribute to renew the spirit that emerged after the attacks of September 11th, 2001.

Kyle Cunningham is the son of Shawn and Colleen Cunningham of Wilmington (formerly of Woburn), and a graduate of St. Charles' Middle School in Woburn. He is the grandson of Janet Maguire of Beverly and Doris Cunningham, also from Wilmington.

On Monday, September 12, Malden Catholic offered a memorial mass in honor of the heroes of September 11.

Malden Catholic High School maintains a nearly 80-year tradition of leading students to achieve academic excellence in a Catholic, familial atmosphere. Annually, 98 percent of Malden Catholic graduates attend college, with 96 percent attending four-year universities. Recognized for its dedicated faculty, challenging curriculum, spiritual guidance, social outreach, and championship caliber athletic programs, Malden Catholic educates young men from more than 40 communities surrounding Boston. The school is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. Further information on the school may be found at www.maldencatholic.org.

Tarr, Vallee to file legislation providing active duty license plates for state's military personnel

BOSTON - Senate Minority Leader Bruce Tarr (R-Gloucester) and State Representative James E. Vallee (D-Franklin) announced today they will be filing legislation requiring the Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV) to provide special active duty license plates to Massachusetts residents currently serving in the U.S. Armed Forces.

The proposal would allow full-time active duty military personnel serving in the U.S. Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard or Air Force to request a distinctive emblem from the RMV designating their branch of service. The emblems - which would be subject to a fee of not more than $35 to cover production costs - would be designed to be affixed to the license plates of private passenger motor vehicles and motorcycles.

"Our state has always had a strong legacy of men and women serving our country and protecting our freedoms, and since the terrorist incidents of September 11th, their sacrifices have been substantial," said Senator Tarr. "Now, more than ever, it's important that our state give official recognition to the service men and women who make us proud every day to be Americans. The distinctive license plates created by this proposal will also allow all of us to understand who these brave men and women are, and to offer our gratitude whenever possible."

"These plates will serve as small, daily reminders of the big contributions our military personnel make to the Commonwealth and the country," said Representative Vallee, the House Chairman of the Legislature's Joint Committee on Veterans and Federal Affairs.

Tarr and Vallee are hoping to draw strong bipartisan support for their bill by making it available for co-sponsorship to their colleagues in the House and Senate.

Connecticut recently passed similar legislation. Ohio also allows active duty military personnel to receive special recognition on their license plates.

Who's that lady?

WILMINGTON - Foxy is that lady and a real treasure! When she and two other cats were brought to Petlife, for one of their Adoption Days, children and adults were quickly drawn to her. Unlike the other cats (who were afraid and curled up), Foxy stood up the entire time, rubbed up against the cage, wanted petting and to play whenever offered. She is about a year old with a very sweet, friendly and confident disposition.

This special tortoiseshell/calico is simply gorgeous with hypnotizing green eyes! Foxy lives in a foster home where she has adjusted well to the environment and another cat. She enjoys giving and receiving affection, loves to play, has a good appetite and uses her litter box with no problems. She is ready to find her forever home. Is it yours?

Foxy's Rescue Story: I would like to take this opportunity to express our sincere gratitude to Lots of Love Cat Rescue. On Memorial Day, this writer's husband, discovered a beautiful calico cat and 5 adorable kittens living underneath our tool shed. We immediately began feeding the mother cat so she could provide nourishment for her needy little family. The mother cat became wary of our dogs, so she began to move them to a new location. By the time we noticed this, there was only 1 kitten left behind. We immediately took him in and began to care for him. We were crestfallen that the other kittens were gone because we were not entirely certain the family could survive on its own.

A friend recommended that we call LOLCR and they responded to our desperate plea promptly. They set-up traps containing foods with a strong aroma to lure mother cat back into our yard. They spent countless hours and many days monitoring the cages and traps for any sign of life and worked tirelessly, until finally, one evening, they were successful in capturing the mother cat and then the kittens. I will never be able to adequately express my thanks to this small group of kind-hearted volunteers and animal lovers whose mission is to rescue, provide sanctuary, and re-home abandoned and neglected cats. Their selfless work on behalf of these beautiful little creatures is truly inspiring. Sincerely, June

About lots of love cat rescue:

Our kittens/cats need your help! We are a small and growing, friendly and compassionate 501(c)3 non-profit organization that donates our time to rescue, spay/neuter/vetting and rehabilitation in order to find loving homes for kittens/cats to live forever.

The group relies on personal donations from the general public to continue to accomplish this daunting task. Our primary focus is to help the forgotten ones - those who are dumped, abandoned or born outside. It is such a sad and tough life for these cats who struggle just to survive, find shelter from the weather and food for one more day. There is often nobody to care for their needs.

Volunteers work hard to reduce the number of cat communities outside but the problem is of epidemic proportion.

Anyone who is interested in helping these little souls is encouraged to do so by donating food, litter or money; helping with fundraising; assisting with the socialization of the cats/kittens; offering short-term foster care; and even, on the business end, creating a database, etc. for our group.

Donations, which are tax-deductible, can be sent online by going to www.lolcr.org or by mail to: Lots Of Love Cat Rescue, P.O. Box 396, Wilmington, MA 01887. For additional information, call: 781-850-6684, email LOL_CR@hotmail.com or find us on Facebook at www.facebook.com/Lots-Of-Love-Cat-Rescue.

The Town Crier plans on featuring a cat/kitten of the week. Keep your eye to these pages and find your best friend.

Bring your pet to the New England Pet Expo

WILMINGTON - Pet lovers in the New England area should get their four-legged friends ready for the 2011 New England Pet Expo, Saturday, September 24, 2011 at the Aleppo Shriners Auditorium. This free indoor event attracts thousands of pet lovers looking to enjoy a day out with their furry, feathered or reptilian pals!

From 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., the Expo will be packed with more than 100 local and nationally-recognized veterinarians, groomers, trainers, retailers and organizations primarily geared towards pet lovers. Whether you'd like to learn, shop, play or adopt, this an event you won't want to miss!

Because the New England Pet Expo is also designed to promote responsible pet ownership, a major highlight of the day will be a mega-adoption event. Courtney Rydstrom, the director of show production for the Expo explains, "The mega-adoption event is a very popular part of this expo. If you're looking to add a new member to your family, pets will be available for adoption, along with information from dozens of local rescue groups and shelters. It's wonderful to see a pet connect with their new forever home."

If it's entertainment or live demonstrations that you're interested in, you'll have ample opportunity to watch - and take part in - the day's events. You can sign your pet friend up to participate in several competitions, such as the ever-popular costume contest, talent contest or pet/owner musical chairs. Information about obedience training, pet behavior, nutrition, activism and more will be presented all day on the entertainment stage.

The expo's agility course attracts a large following who enjoy watching handlers race their dogs through an obstacle course. The handler's controls are limited to voice, movement, and various body signals, requiring exceptional training of the animal and coordination of the handler.

Rydstrom adds, "A lot of people don't realize all of the pet-friendly resources available to them in their communities and our goal is to help get that information out there. It's a fun-filled day for pet owners - or those who'd one day like to be!"

Of course, pets are welcome to attend the event, provided that they are on a fixed lead and have proof of age-appropriate current vaccinations. Not up to date on vaccinations? Don't worry! There will be discounted vaccinations and low-cost microchipping available. You can even take advantage of free nail trims!

The New England Pet Expo is organized by Amazing Pet Expos, which currently produces more than 17 pet expos around the country; all of them indoors and free to the general public. Shorty Rossi, star of 'Pit Boss' on Animal Planet, is the official spokesperson for Amazing Pet Expos.

Alana Regan peer advisor at Western New England

SPRINGFIELD - Alana Regan of Tewksbury has been named a Peer Advisor for the 2011-2012 academic year at Western New England University in Springfield, MA. Regan is a sophomore majoring in Pre-Pharmacy at the university.

Peer Advisors are a highly select and comprehensively trained team of students who seek to assist in the university transition. Each first year student is assigned to a peer mentor who serves as a source of information, point of first contact, and conduit to university programs and support services.

Peer Advisors coach each student in the formation of the personal success plan and act as an advocate for student success. The personal success plan provides a framework for establishing specific, reasonable, measurable, attainable, realistic, and timely goals for the first semester.

Western New England University is a private, independent, coeducational institution founded in 1919. Located on an attractive 215-acre suburban campus in Springfield, Massachusetts, Western New England University serves 3,700 students, including 2,550 full-time undergraduate students. Undergraduate, graduate, and professional programs are offered through Colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business, Engineering, and Pharmacy, and School of Law.

Breaking and entering motor vehicle arrest Several Car Breaks

TEWKSBURY - On September 13th, 2011, at 12:25 a.m., Tewksbury Police Officers responded to the area of 90 State Street where a caller had reported a suspicious male with a flashlight looking through cars. The male was reported as wearing shorts and a black hooded sweatshirt.

Officers were able to locate a white male, who fit the description given, approximately 300 yards away from where the suspect was first observed. The male was identified as Jack Cappello, 18, of 10 Pearl St. Tewksbury, Ma. Mr. Cappello appeared nervous, and was found to have several items in his possession, including a Sony Digital Camera, and a Tom-Tom GPS unit. Officers were able to determine that the last address listed on the GPS was 189 South Street, which is in close proximity to where Mr.

Cappello was observed looking through cars.

Officers went to 189 South Street and spoke with the resident. The resident was able to confirm ownership of the GPS and also that a vehicle in the driveway had been broken into. Mr. Cappello admitted to Officers that the camera also belonged to the resident at 189 South Street.

Mr. Cappello was arrested and faces the following criminal charges:

B+E Motor Vehicle in Nighttime w/intent to commit Felony; Chapter 266 Section 16

Larceny over $250 Chapter 266 Section 30

The Town of Tewksbury has recently experienced several night-time car breaks in residential neighborhoods. We encourage all residents to remain vigilant and to report any suspicious activity to the Police Department. With an increase in house breaks and motor vehicle breaks we ask that residents take precautions and ensure that their homes and vehicles are secured.

Rita Patriarca earns prestigious designation to help homeowners in danger of foreclosure

Rita Patriarca of RE/MAX Heritage, LLC, Reading, MA, has earned the prestigious Certified Distressed Property Expert (CDPE) designation, having completed extensive training in foreclosure avoidance and short sales. This is invaluable expertise to offer at a time when the area is ravaged by "distressed" homes in the foreclosure process.

Short sales allow the cash-strapped seller to repay the mortgage at the price that the home sells for, even though it is lower than what is owed on the property. With plummeting property values, this can save many people from foreclosure and even bankruptcy. More and more lenders are willing to consider short sales because they are much less costly than foreclosures.

"This CDPE designation has been invaluable as I work with sellers and lenders on complicated short sales," said Rita. "It is so rewarding to be able to help sellers save their homes from foreclosure."

Alex Charfen, founder of the Distressed Property Institute in Boca Raton, Fla., said that Realtors® such as Rita Patriarca with the CDPE designation have valuable training in short sales that can offer the homeowner much better alternatives to foreclosure, which virtually destroys the credit rating. These experts also may better understand market conditions and can help sellers through the emotional experience, he said.

The Distressed Property Institute opened in January 2008 and provides training on-site and online. The CDPE is the premier designation for Realtors helping homeowners in distress and handling short sales.

"Our goal is to educate as many people as possible so we can help as many homeowners as possible," Charfen said.

For more information or to schedule a private consultation, contact Rita directly at 781-517-4220 (office) or 617-840-8326 (cell).

Cub Scouts open house Wednesday night for boys grade 1-5

WILMINGTON - Wilmington Cub Scout Pack 56 announces their open house/registration night. Please join them Wednesday, September 14, 2010 from 6:30 PM - 7:30 PM at the Wilmington Congregational Church, 220 Middlesex Ave.

The Pack will be having a fun game night for the children. There will be leaders to answer any questions you might have about Scouting. Come and join. A Tiger Den is forming.

The Cub Scout program builds self-respect and self esteem. Along with a great cub program, they do fun trips. Some of which are weekend camping trips, a hike at the Ipswich River Conservation Park and learning history at the Cub Muster Day and more.

Cub Scouts also give back to their community and do services projects around town. Scouting builds character, leadership, outdoors learning and achievement.

Boys from Wilmington and Tewksbury are welcome.

For more information, please contact our Cubmaster, Jennifer Rich at (978) 657-4376.

Silver Tones Friday 9/16; Senior Tea Sunday 9/18; Senior Helpers present "Veteran's Benefits" 9/20

The Silver Tones will hold a dance this Friday, September 16th from 7:00 to 10:00 PM. Tickets are available at the door at $10 per person. Refreshments are served mid evening and the attire is casual.

Results of the Mary Ann Wareham Golf Connections will be noted in next week's column.

The Senior Center "Annual Afternoon Tea" will be held this coming Sunday, September 18th at 2:00 PM. Tickets are $10 per person and should be purchased prior to the event. This delightful afternoon will be highlighted by a performance from theater and TV star Richard Clark as he performs "And Now...Mark Twain". High Tea will be served after the performance. This event is supported, in part, by the Tewksbury Arts Council and the Massachusetts Cultural Council. Tickets sales will end on Thursday, September 15th. The public is welcomed.

Carnation Belles are reminded that the Red Hat event for September will be the Senior Center Annual Tea. Belles are also reminded to wear the Red Hat regalia.

On September 20th at 9:00 AM, Senior Helpers will sponsor an informal presentation on "Veteran's Benefits". The public is welcome.

DJ Jon Mansfield will be at the Senior Center on Monday, September 26th for an afternoon dance. Those wishing to reserve lunch for that day are asked to obtain their tickets by next Wednesday, September 21st.

A day trip to the Big E Fair is being planned in conjunction with the Haverhill Seniors. The trip will be held on Saturday, October 1st. The trip cost is $36 and includes motorcoach transportation and admission to the Big E. Travelers will have six hours to take in the sounds and sights of the fair.

In October, Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley will offer a six week seminar on "Powerful Tools for Caregivers" which will be held each Wednesday morning from 10:00 to 12:00 noon beginning on October 12th. If interested in attending this free series, please call the Senior Center at 978-640-4480 and have your name added to the seminar list. This program is open to the public.

Tickets are now on sale for the "Lee Lewis and the Doo Wop Allstars" dance which will be held on Friday, November 4th at 8:00 PM. Tickets are $15 per person.

SHINE Counselor, Jill, is at the Senior Center on Tuesdays and is seen by appointment only. To arrange an appointment, one may call the Senior Center at 978-640-4480. The SHINE Counselor is available to advise Senior Citizens on medical insurance options.

A pleasant week is wished to all. God Bless America.

New Health and Life Science wing at Shawsheen Tech

Our commitment to our students, business partners, and communities

Charles Lyons Superintendent/Director BILLERICA - On behalf of the Shawsheen Valley Technical School District, I invite local residents to a ribbon-cutting ceremony on Tuesday, September 20 at 2:00 p.m. when Treasurer Steven Grossman, Massachusetts School Building Authority Director Katherine Craven, and local leaders will officially open our new health and life science wing.

The state-of-the-art addition was made possible by an investment of $4.5 million with 56% state funded, and it reflects our district's continued commitment to ensure students are trained for jobs that have excellent employment opportunities in the 21st century economy. We will enhance our existing health-care programs by expanding training for health-care technicians, medical and laboratory technicians, and dental assisting technicians. Decisions on program offerings are continuously re-evaluated by careful review of labor-market data and employment opportunities.

Shawsheen Valley Technical School Committee members worked with our professional Town Administrators and local Boards of Selectmen to reach this milestone. We replaced a Diesel Technician program that failed to meet our rigorous placement standards—which require placing our graduates in jobs that exist and in college and career paths with meaningful employment opportunities.

Vocational technical high schools in Massachusetts keep score of graduate success. We track our graduates with one-year and five-year follow-up analyses to ensure that our programs are relevant and that our students gain employment. Few colleges do this, and not many other schools bother to track graduate performance.

As our college-bound seniors weigh their post-secondary options, they gain considerable advantage from their state-of-the-art technical experience, which informs their selections. We know that over 95% of our graduates who enter four-year colleges are making steady progress toward baccalaureate degrees three years after graduating from Shawsheen. Our health-care graduates flock to nursing schools; our technical-illustration graduates expand their artisan skills in prestigious art schools; and many of our electrical and electronics graduates matriculate in engineering schools. Some of our most talented graduates choose to enter the world of work immediately after high school as experienced technicians or creative craftsmen who contribute directly to our local economy in areas that meet local labor market demands.

As college debt exceeds credit-card debt for the first time in our nation's history, and as young people ranging in age from 16 to 24 experience the least employment opportunities in the past 60 years, Shawsheen continues to objectively examine curricular offerings, updating them with relevant programs that provide students with competencies for gainful employment in the 21st century.

Our new life-science wing reflects that commitment. We thank our state and local partners, from State Treasurers Tim Cahill and Steve Grossman, to our Town Managers, our local Finance Committee members and Town Meeting members for their faith in our vision and the support they have shown for the important mission Shawsheen Valley Technical has pursued during the past 40 years for local businesses, the communities that we serve, and—most importantly—for the students whom we challenge.

Alison (Arnold) Corcoran earns Senior Real Estate Specialist designation

WILMINGTON - Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage in New England is pleased to announce that Wilmington resident Alison (Arnold) Corcoran, a sales associate in the Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage office in Tewksbury, was awarded the Senior Real Estate Specialist® (SRES) professional designation by the Senior Advantage Real Estate Council.

Girl Scouting works in Old South School

WILMINGTON - This past weekend Katrina Keating -- with the help of volunteers and family -- began her Girl Scout Gold Award project at the Wilmington Food Pantry rebuilding the basement stairs along with performing general building repairs. Katrina's project has added safety and convenience for the volunteers at the Wilmington Food Pantry. Bob Dipalma, the manager of the Food Pantry, (pictured above with Katrina) looked on with eager anticipation. The coveted Girl Scout Gold Award is the highest rank achievable in Girl Scouts. Katrina Keating received a Bronze Award in 6th grade when she was in Junior Girl Scouts. Katrina received the Silver award in 9th grade when she was a Cadette/Senior in Girl Scouts.

Girls who want to be members of Girl Scouting but are unable to participate in troop or group activities can register as an individual member in Girl Scouts known as Juliettes. Katrina, who has been a Juliette, is currently an Ambassador in Girl Scouts.

STEPS TO SUCCESS: Katrina Keating has made her mark in South Wilmington. Her organization has lead to the upgrading of the Wilmington Community Fund's Food Pantry, allowing safe access to the cellar area as well as several other upgrades to the building.

The new and the old (Hint) Katrina's sitting on the new stairs

The building, which belongs to the Town of Wilmington, was built in the 1850's as a one room school house -- one of five in the town at that time -- four still stand in town in different service capacities.

The Wilmington Community Fund Food Pantry accepts donations at Market Basket, Lucci's and at the Food Pantry on South Street. Cash or check donations can be mailed to WCF, P.O. Box 147, Wilmington, MA 01887. Top on the list of needed items are: Instant potatoes, rice, canned pasta and canned fruit but, of course, any non-perishable item is always welcome.

Recreation basketball registration is underway

WILMINGTON - Registration for Recreation Basketball is now underway. This program for students in grades 3 - 10, includes ten Saturday games and one weeknight practice each week, with separate divisions for boys and girls. The season begins December 3, 2011 and runs through February 18, 2012 (no games on December 24 or 31).

To register, submit a completed registration form with payment of $75 for each child to the Recreation Department in Town Hall, Room 8. The registration deadline is Thursday, October 13.

Forms along with payment can be delivered to the Recreation Department during regular office hours of 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., or left in the overnight drop slot next to the front door of Town Hall. For your convenience, registration forms are available under Downloadable Forms on the Recreation page of the town website (www.wilmingtonma.gov). For more information, call (978) 658 - 4270.

Jones comment on DeMasi sentencing

BOSTON - House Minority Leader Bradley H. Jones, Jr. issued the following statement today in response to the sentencing of Former Speaker Sal DiMasi:

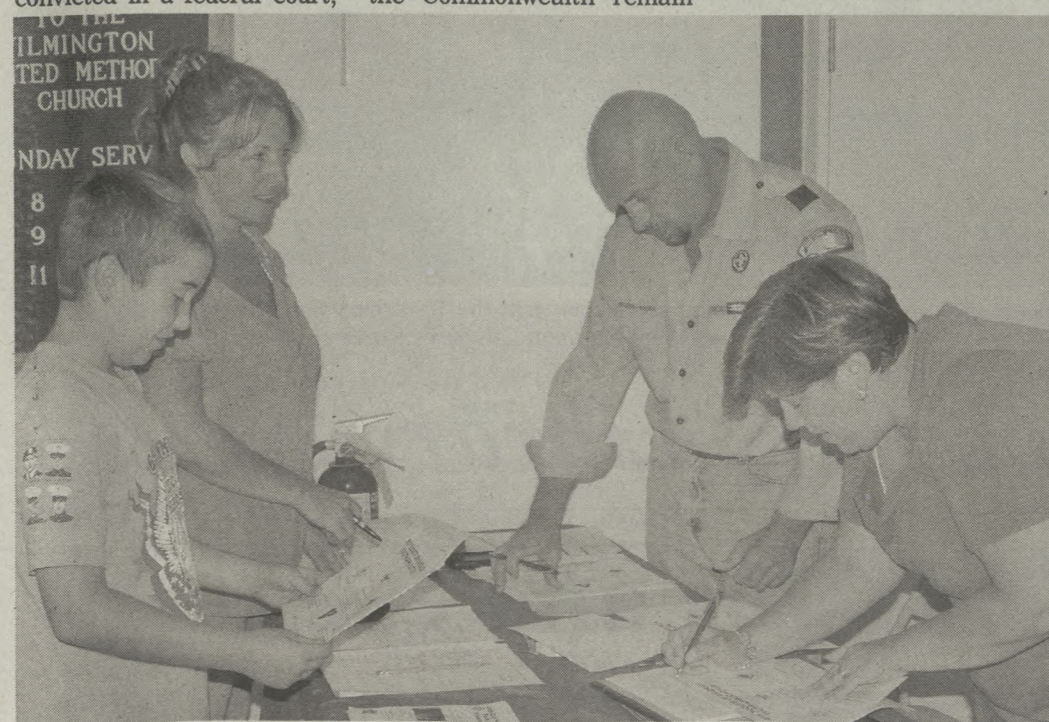

"Today is yet another dark day for politics in Massachusetts. With Sal DiMasi now the third Speaker of the House in a row to be convicted in a federal court, the taxpayers of the Commonwealth can see just how deeply a culture of corruption has been cultivated on Beacon Hill.

Perhaps our greatest cause for concern is adequately captured by Judge Mark Wolf when he noted that, inexplicably, certain individuals both on Beacon Hill and around the Commonwealth remain steadfast that Sal DiMasi has done nothing wrong.

The public's trust in their elected officials has been, and continues to be, put to the test. It is my hope that today's sentencing marks the beginning of the end. No longer will corruption and public mistrust have a home in the State House."

Jacqui Rooney and her son, Dennis were at the Wilmington United Methodist Church on Tuesday evening for Boy Scout registration. Jay Sheehan, Cub Master of Pack 361, and Den Leaders Deb Consorti and Amy Gendall were helping out with registrations.

MSBA. The project cost is an all-inclusive number and includes funding for contingencies, demolition of the old building, and all site work.

The estimated local share of the project is $40 million. For the average homeowner, with an average residential property value of $357,066, the first year impact ranges from $254 for a twenty year borrowing to $234 on a thirty-year borrowing. The highest borrowing year is the first year, with numbers dropping down. Projections showed an average annual residential tax impact ranging from $184 to $146 depending on the length of the term, down to a final year impact ranging from $124 to $76.

The High School Building Committee will send the project scope and budget to the MSBA October 7 as part of the Schematic Design Phase, which began in August. The MSBA is scheduled to vote on the scope and budget November 16.

If voters approve both the ballot question December 6 and the special town meeting warrant article December 10, the Design Development and Construction Documents will be developed from January 2012 to October 2012. Construction would be slated to begin in July 2012 through December 2014, however substantial completion of the new school would be achieved by June 2014, allowing the school to open that fall. The old school will be demolished and final site completion will be finished after the new school opens.

The new school will be built on the present site while the current school is in use.

Organizers also presented updated site plans and building elevations.

The school will sit on the site with its shorter side, and main entrance, facing Church Street. The plan separates bus lines from parent drop off points and student parking, ideally making it easier to move through the site with few traffic back ups onto roads around the school. Bus lines will enter the site on Church Street with drop off at the Main Entrance. Student parking will be maintained on Middlesex Avenue. A parking lot for faculty and staff, which will also offer parent drop off, will enter from Adams Street and provide a large loop, keeping traffic from backing up onto the street.

Two other entrances will be easily accessible from the parking lot, the Student Entrance near the main entrance, providing direct access to the administration suite, and the events entrance toward the back of the site. The events entrance allows for the public to access the gymnasium, auditorium, and cafeteria for sporting events or theatrical performances while shutting down the entire rest of the building. 174 parking spaces will be available on site.

A service entrance to the building and emergency vehicle circulation behind the baseball field and adjacent to Alumni field is also provided for in the plan. The plan also calls for sports turf in Alumni stadium, an expense not eligible for reimbursement from MSBA, as well as space for a lacrosse/soccer field on Wildwood Street. Tennis courts and a basketball court will be built along Church Street.

Lisa Matey Bergeron, Owners Project Manager, indicated that the building is designed to meet LEED silver certification, which will help garner two additional funding points from MSBA.

For more information the building committee has posted a list of FAQs on its website, accessible from either the town or school department websites.

was originally arrested in Revere in January 2010 stemming from an arrest for manufacture and distribution of heroin and for violating the drug free school zone.

Wark told the Crier that Iglesias was originally sentenced to three years in MCI Cedar Junction and began his sentence October 26, 2010.

Just before noon on Friday, police received reports of a man walking out of the woods and acting suspicious. The man went into a Mobil on the Run gas station and convenience store at the junction of West Street and Route 129, very close to Exit 38 on Interstate 93, made his purchase of a pack of cigarettes and a Snickers bar, and left.

According to Lt. Christopher Neville with the Wilmington Police Department, Iglesias was at the time assigned to the Northeastern Correctional Center, affiliated with MCI Concord. When Wilmington Police stopped him "he was sweating profusely and had his work tag on," said Neville.

Police checked the area and saw a work crew on the highway. According to police, the corrections officer supervising the work crew confirmed that Iglesias was supposed to be with the crew.

The Northeastern Correctional Center is a minimum security/ pre-release facility, affiliated with MCI Concord, and offers a Community Inmate Work Crew program where level three inmates (minimum security) are transported to a designated work detail and are supervised by a correctional professional. These crews are deployed to local and state properties to perform such tasks as cleaning streets and painting public buildings.

Wilmington Police transported Iglesias back to the Public Safety Building and held him until prison officials retrieved him. Neville speculated the inmate was separated from his work crew for fewer than fifteen minutes.

Diane Wiffin, Department of Corrections spokesperson, confirmed that Wilmington Police apprehended Iglesias within minutes after leaving his crew.

"The incident is under investigation," said Wiffin.

Inmates at the Northeastern Correctional Center can qualify for community work crews, serving in a crew of eight with a supervisor. Inmates in a minimum-security setting are within four years of the earliest release date, said Wiffin.

Wiffin did confirm that Iglesias is now being held at MCI-Concord, apparently moved to higher custody. MCI-Concord is a medium security facility. She could not confirm if that was a result of Friday's incident in Wilmington.

Be Fire Smart Contest

and that stations across the country continue to reel from a lack of necessary funding and resources. Liberty Mutual cited in a recent press release, "The Third Needs Assessment of the U.S. Fire Service, released in June by the National Fire Protection Association, underscores the continued gap in adequate funding, particularly for smaller community departments."

The contest begins on September 1st and continues through October 31st. It's easy to lend a hand in Wilmington - here's how. Now through October 31st, simply go to www.BeFireSmart.com, complete the befiresmart.com/protect-your-community/fire-safety-pledge/take-the-quiz.aspx Fire Safety Pledge Quiz online - "Burning Questions" quiz. Then credit your completed quiz to your local fire department. The fire departments with the most points in their respective division will earn a $10,000 grant.

The quiz asks true/false questions about where fires start and how to prevent and extinguish them. By completing this simple quiz, you can earn a credit for your local fire department. Spread the word to family, friends and neighbors and watch your fire department rise on the leaderboard.

"More than 78,000 Americans last year pledged their commitment to fire safety on behalf of 3,100 fire departments, allowing our 10 winning communities to expand firefighting resources, training and public education," said Greg Gordon, Liberty Mutual senior vice president, Consumer Marketing. "We are in the business of helping people protect their homes, and this is an easy way for neighbors to unite to help their local fire departments protect their communities."

According to Liberty Mutual Insurance, "In the past two years, Liberty Mutual's Be Fire Smart Fire Safety Pledge Program has provided $200,000 to fire departments toward such needs as juvenile fire intervention, thermal imaging cameras, smoke alarms, firefighter protective clothing, and community fire awareness and prevention programs. Last year's winners were College Park, Md.; Hutto, Texas; Merrimac, Mass.; Midwest City, Okla.; Mooresville, N.C.; Richmond, Va.; Tampa, Fla.; Tittabawassee Township, Mich.; Whitman, Mass.; and (your home town) Wilmington, Mass."

As in the past, the comprehensive resources available at www.BeFireSmart.com are designed to help parents prepare to discuss fire safety with their families in an effort to increase awareness and home fire prevention. The site includes games, instructional videos, monthly tips and a room-by-room guide to preventing fire hazards. Additionally, kids can benefit from the interactive fire safety quizzes, tools to help build a fire escape plan and a downloadable coloring book that teaches the importance of never hiding from a firefighter during an emergency. Also available on the site are classroom lesson plans for teachers and resources for fire professionals.

Boston-based Liberty Mutual Insurance takes pride in "Helping people live safer, more secure lives" since 1912 and the company has over 45,000 employees located in more than 900 offices throughout the world.

Liberty Mutual Insurance (libertymutual.com) is the eighth-largest auto and home insurer in the U.S. selling full lines of coverage for automobile, homeowners, valuable possessions, personal liability, and individual life insurance.

Wilmington takes immense pride at being the only community in the country to have won all three contests - Bring Back the 4th grant in 2010 and 2011, and Be Fire Smart Pledge Program in 2010 and with everyone's assistance, Wilmington could win yet another $10,000 grant in November.

One suggestion on how to get more people to enter the contest is to share this information with your friends and spread the word through email and social media sites like Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, MySpace, Google Plus and many more. You can go to www.BeFireSmart.com right now to find out how.

Watch for an announcement in November in the Wilmington Town Crier when we list the ten fire departments that earned $10,000. With your participation, Wilmington will be a winning community - again!

Grace Chapel's Wilmington campus grand opening celebration

WILMINGTON - Grace Chapel's Wilmington Campus grand opening celebration will be this Sunday, September 18, 2011. They've been hosting services at their Wilmington campus all summer, and have already launched their Kidstown program, youth ministry, and a number of new LIFE Communities.

They say it's time to welcome the neighborhood. Services are at 9:30 and 11:10. This Sunday, they've invited thousands of households in their neighborhood to come by and take a look at the changes that have taken place at the property formerly known as the Casa di Fior. Located at 128 West Street, it is on the left just before the bridge crossing Rt 93 into Reading.

Tours of the facility will occur after each service. Weather permitting, they'll be outside after the 11:10 a.m. service for refreshments.

For all the info this new Wilmington Campus go to www.Grace.org/wilmington.

who passed away that day. Though no Wilmington residents were killed in the terrorist attacks, 92 Massachusetts residents lost their lives that day.

The ceremony, set in front of the Wilmington's Veteran's Monument, followed a moving ecumenical service sponsored by the Wilmington Council of Churches. Participants followed a procession led by a cruiser with lights, police, military, and fire honor guards, scouts, the Knights of Columbus, and even a lone bagpiper. A ladder truck from the fire department also escorted the solemn, but substantial, group to the common. Selectmen, School Committee members and other town officials joined the audience on the common.

Also available on the common to view were the portraits in the Operation Home Ties collection by Woburn artist Gina Johnson. Johnson began sketching portraits of Massachusetts's men and women who died while in military service since September 11, 2001. Residents reverently visited the site waiting for the ceremony to begin.

"I can tell you that we can all be genuinely proud to be an American and be from the Town of Wilmington," said Town Manager Michael Cairra. "The acts of 9/11 are indelibly etched on the minds of millions around this world."

Other speakers included Deacon Joseph Fagan of St. Thomas of Villanova Parish offering a prayer.

Participants recited the Pledge of Allegiance and the Wilmington High School band played the Star Spangled Banner. Later in the service Lauren Anza sang a beautiful solo God Bless America and the WHS band played a special selection of America the Beautiful and Amazing Grace.

Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Lou Cimaglia, spoke briefly focusing on the bravery of our men and women serving abroad since 9/11. Wilmington Police Chief Michael Begonis spoke, without notes, about the chill that he, and every officer that ever took an Oath of Office, feels whenever he hears the national anthem, especially since the attacks of September 11.

"Every police officer and fire fighter takes the same oath," said Begonis. "For the most part I choose to remember that the chill means something good."

Chief Ed Bradbury of the Fire Department, who also spoke eloquently, followed Begonis.

Members of the high school community also came forward to announce an initiative to incorporate a new 9/11 memorial inside the school. A new group will be formed to design, create and fundraise for a new memorial inside the building and include as many students as possible in the process. More information is available through the high school.

Some groups will be accepting donations that day, including the food pantry, Local Heroes, and the Lions Club (who collect eye glasses).

When you first get to the fair, be sure to stop at the Library's table. There you can pick up a tote bag (provided by the Friends of the Library) and your Nook eReader drawing card. When you visit five or more tables at the fair and talk to the folks there, you can get your card stamped; on your way out, leave the card at the Library table.

In addition, a Proshred shredding truck will be on site for bulk shredding of paper items.

A cake-decorating contest will be held for the cake that best depicts the theme of "Celebrate Wilmington" in honor of Wilmington's birthday on September 25. There is still time to submit your application, which is available on the library website.

Also in attendance this year will be the Wilmington

Farmers Market. Last year, the market had a single table at the community fair when it was just in the planning stages. Members of the group were there to gauge response to the idea of the market, to collect email addresses for a mailing list, and to find volunteers. This year, the market will occupy one full side of the market, with many of their first season's vendors on hand to sell produce and more to the public.

Please note that the Community Fair will be cancelled if weather is prohibitive. However, the Proshred truck and the Farmer's Market will be on site rain or shine. The following activities will be moved to the library: Henna tattoos, Children's Craft, and Birthday Cake Contest.

For a full listing of participating groups, and for more information on the Community Fair itself, visit the library's web page at www.wilmlibrary.org and click on any of the links for the Community Fair.

Money a big factor in the switch

Wildcats officially begin Middlesex League play

The story on Wilmington High School Athletics changing from the Cape Ann League to the Middlesex League has been promised for several months now. Finally, here it is.*

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

After months, years and decades of rumors, speculation and hopes, finally the Wilmington High School Athletic Department has shifted gears and joined the Middlesex League. The word came out in June of 2009, but it didn't become official until several weeks later, and just this past week, the WHS Fall Athletic teams took on various Middlesex League teams in the debut season.

So now the questions remain, why did school officials want to change leagues just 16 years after being in the Cape Ann League, a league that Wilmington 'had to join' back in the fall of 1995 because the Wildcats could no longer compete in the Merrimack Valley Conference? That being said, what's the difference of facing Andover and Lowell or Reading and Woburn?

Wilmington High School Athletics started in the 1920s with the Wildcats as a member of the Lowell Suburban League, before shifting gears to the Merrimack Valley Conference in 1964. From there the Wildcats competed, until under former Athletic Director Jim Gillis, the entire athletic department switched to the Cape Ann League, starting in the fall of 1995 before ending this past June. Today, the Wildcats are in their fourth league, the Middlesex League - which after decades expanded two more teams with Arlington and Wilmington. With the two new teams, the league decided to split into a large and small school conference with Arlington joining Reading, Woburn, Lexington, Belmont and Winchester, while in the small school, Wilmington will be joined with Stoneham, Melrose, Wakefield, Burlington and Watertown.

Back in late June during a state tournament playoff game, current WHS Athletic Director Ed Harrison was asked about how how talks originated with the Middlesex League, and why he thought it would be a good idea to make this drastic move.

"On the MIAA website (the Middlesex League) had an ad looking for teams (two years ago), and I talked with the principal (Eric Tracy) and the superintendent (Joanne Benton) and I thought it would be a good move for us," he said. "There are teams from the Middlesex League who we already play, and then we started talking about transportation and the costs of transportation and how much we could save, and we really decided at that time to really look into it. And that process started with meetings with the Middlesex League athletic directors and principals, and we're just glad that we were one of the two teams picked to join the league."

A number of other schools applied to the Middlesex League including neighbor Tewksbury, but the Redmen and several others were denied. The ML wanted one large school and one small school so it could break up into a large and small school conference, including the two respective football league champions getting a post-season berth, something that many other leagues have done over the past few years. But according to Harrison, this move had nothing to do with football. It was about the entire athletic department, and he said there are several obvious positives for the switch.

"One day I sat down and averaged out the mileage for both leagues," he said. "In the Cape Ann League, the average round trip was 51 miles and in the Middlesex League the average round trip is 17 miles. I think we pay the buses 2.90 a mile. When you look at it that way, when you're going 17 miles round trip instead of 51, that's a huge difference."

"I think this move will be good for parents, who now can attend many more away games. I think this move makes it a lot easier for parents instead of going to Newburyport, Rockport or Amesbury and places like that, and same thing when those teams came here. There were times when no one showed up (when we faced a Cape Ann League team) because of the long drive. So we think this move (to the Middlesex League) is a great opportunity. I mean going to Reading is like a three mile ride for us."

Harrison went on to say that scheduling also becomes much easier. For almost every sport besides football, all varsity teams face each small school opponent twice and then has one game each with all six large school teams, leaving two non-league games. In football, Wilmington will face all five small school teams, and then will have three cross-over games with large school teams every year. After this year, those three cross-over games depend on where teams finish in the standings. For example, the top three teams in the 2011 large school standings will face the top three teams in the small school, and same with the bottom three teams in each division.

"In football the last few years we have played Lexington, Melrose and before that we played Belmont for three years," said Harrison. "We have scrimmaged Woburn for many years, and we used to play Stoneham. I mean it's going to be different for those teams, and some getting used too. Anytime you do something new the first go around is always a difficult one."

Besides the scheduling of the varsity programs, it's much easier at the sub-varsity level as almost all of the ML teams fund JV and Freshmen programs, while only about half of the Cape Ann League teams fielded subvarsity teams.

One major drawback of the Cape Ann League was the lack of forming rivalries with any of the teams. Wilmington and Masconomet Regional had a terrific rivalry, especially in the late 1990s in hockey, and then in the 2003-'04 seasons in football and basketball, mostly because the Chieftain fans went out of their way to heckle Joe Herra. But since those days the rivalries have all but disappeared. Harrison said he's hoping some rivalries will be formed with the small school opponents, in particular Burlington.

"I think (in the small school conference all six of the teams) are all about the same," he said. "It seems like a nice fit, and we'll know real soon. We're hoping we'll have some real good rivalries."

Back in the 90s when Wilmington changed to the Cape Ann League, the No. 1 reason according to former principal Paul Fleming and Gillis was comparing number of students between Wilmington and those MVC teams such as Andover, Chelmsford and Lowell. This time, Harrison said the switch wasn't about number of students - more so for saving a lot of money, and competing in a much better all-around league.

"I think in the early 1990s, we dropped down to 600 kids in the high school," he said. "The late 1970s and 1980s I think we had close to 1,200 kids and we were huge and then we dropped to like 600. And at that time (in the early 90s), football and basketball weren't doing too good, and some other sports weren't either, so this time around I just think this is a great fit."

"It's going to be different with some of the sports. I think some of the sports we have done well in, we may not do as well. I don't know where we are going to stand. Maybe some of the other sports that we haven't been too strong in, maybe we're going to be better, again I don't know. It'll be a learning process, so we'll see. But on the other side, there's quite a few people from the Cape Ann League who I'm going to miss. There are some real good people in the Cape Ann League and we formed some real good rivalries with some of those schools."

The drawback of entering the Middlesex League is just that, much better overall competition. In the Cape Ann League, it was usually Wilmington, Masconomet and North Andover on top of almost every major sport, and then a handful of teams like Newburyport, Pentucket and Hamilton-Wenham would be in the middle of the pack before huge drop offs with teams like Manchester-Essex, Rockport, North Reading and Lynnfield. Those four athletic programs also decided several years ago that in football they wouldn't play any of the top three schools which led to the league going in five different directions -- and since Wilmington and just recently North Andover (to the MVC) have decided to leave.

The Middlesex League has been a very proud and extremely respectful league for decades. From top to bottom it's probably just a tad under the MVC, mainly because the MVC is completely dominated by Andover and Central Catholic, the first in 95 percent of the female sports, and the latter in 95 percent of both the male and female sports programs. The Middlesex League though certainly had many dominating programs -- Watertown and Reading in Field Hockey, Winchester in Girls Soccer, Stoneham in Boys Soccer, Reading and Winchester in Boys Hockey, Reading and Winchester in Girls Hockey, Lexington and Watertown in Boys Hoop, Winchester in tennis, Reading in baseball, softball, track and most recently in football. All of these teams have won multiple state championships in those respectful sports. In the past 20 years, Wilmington has won four state championships, two in softball, one in track and one in golf.

Certainly the large school teams in the Middlesex League will be extremely tough opponents, especially on the female sports. Girls Soccer, Girls Hockey, Girls Lacrosse and Field Hockey are loaded in the ML, and on the male side, Golf, Boys Soccer and Boys Hockey are just as strong. But for Wilmington, it'll come down to playing ten games a season against Burlington, Wakefield, Melrose, Stoneham and Watertown and in probably 95 percent of the time they square off, Wilmington will be able to compete.

A handful of WHS Coaches were asked about their thoughts on the move and the reactions were a mixed bag.

"As far as the baseball program is concerned and beyond the fact that it will be more cost effective for the whole athletic department, I think it's a great move for us and I'm looking forward to it," said head baseball coach Aldo Caira. "Over my ten years as head coach we have a 6-9 record against four different Middlesex teams. If you take out the games against Reading the record improves to 6-2. Yeah we've lost seven games to Reading over the years, but Reading is a perennial power house and the last two games that we've played against them (in the finals of the Scanlon Tournament) were 2-1 and 1-0 losses. A bounce of the ball the other way and our record would be a respectable 8-7. It's my understanding that Reading will also be in the large school division, while we will be in the small school, so we would only face them once a year as compared to twice against the smaller schools. That in itself will make us competitive in the league.

"I hear people saying that those Cape Ann League schools are smaller and we can compete better against them. That might be true for some of the teams, but it's those small schools that you really have to watch out for. In Wilmington we are on the outskirts of the Cape Ann League. After the kids spend five or six hours in school and another 45 to 60 minutes on a bus to get to a game after school. Our kids can't get properly warmed up until the third or fourth inning of some (baseball) games. By that time the outcome of the game could already be in jeopardy. In the Middlesex League, I think that the longest ride is a more workable like 25 or 30 minutes. The kids will be able to warm up more efficiently and be better prepared to compete. I think that also plays a big part in the move, at least from my perspective it does."

After 16 years in the Cape Ann League, Wilmington has left, and now is a member of the Middlesex League. Another team, North Andover, will be leaving in June for the Merrimack Valley Conference leaving 12 teams.

One of the most interesting sports to watch out for is basketball. Head Boys Coach Joe Maiella sees nothing but positives with this move - and that says something since Lexington and Watertown are state contenders every single year.

"I think the move to the Middlesex League is a great move for the high school and all of the athletic programs," he said. "As for our basketball team, I feel that our players are going to benefit in many different ways. In my opinion, there will be a significant increase in attendance and interest at our games from both students and the community due to a higher level of competition and close proximity of fans for both our team and the opposing teams fans. Our kids will also receive more exposure and media coverage from playing in one of the top leagues in Eastern Mass and from competing against teams closer to Boston and whom more people recognize and are familiar with. Although I felt that the Cape Ann League was a good solid league in basketball, it just did not get the respect it should have received from members of the local basketball community which in turn had an affect on the recognition our players received.

"We will have a connection to the teams that we will be playing due to our location and proximity to them. We have by already playing Burlington for the last ten years or so each year in our Christmas Tournament developed a solid rivalry with them. By playing the other teams in the small school division twice each year will help build strong rivalries. Also, by playing neighboring towns such as Reading and Woburn will also create good rivalries. In the Cape Ann League, other than North Andover or Masco it was difficult for us to build any connections with other schools and create any real rivalries due to the distances, etc. between schools.

"(Finally) playing mostly a Division Two schedule against quality teams where every game is going to be a tough hard fought game is only going to make us a better team over the long term," Maiella continued. "Each year you see Middlesex League teams do very well in the state tournament and that is mainly due to the schedule that they play and the fact that they have been battle tested every single game over the course of the season. The increased caliber of competition will definitely have an impact on us."

While Caira and Maiella are for the change, several coaches have mixed feelings, including Tom Bradley, who coaches four programs in the school, boys and girls cross country and girls indoor and outdoor track.

"I had a range of emotions," he said. "After 15 years in the Cape Ann League for me I am comfortable. I know the coaches, rules, courses, good runners, etc and was not anxious to change. There are long trips in the Cape Ann League for away meets and the Middlesex League will make that easier. The Cape Ann League is a pretty tough league for cross country and track. In many ways we start each season feeling like we know teams we should beat, those we should lose to and the toss ups. This will be an adventure for myself and the kids. We have no preconceived notions coming in. I personally hope it leads all of us involved with cross country and track to reexamine what we do and do it better."

Mike Kinney, who recently took over for Bob Cripps as the boys track coach, says it's a win-win for everyone involved.

"I think it will be great for Wilmington," he said. "I think it is really going to cut doing on transportation time and place us in an overall more competitive league. However, in regards to track and field, I think the Cape Ann League has some of the elite programs in the state. I think we will be very competitive in the small school division facing teams like Melrose, Stoneham, and Wakefield. However, the large school division has some great track traditions. Reading, Lexington, Burlington, and Woburn have great coaching staffs and large pool of students to draw from. I think in the end we will do very well and I am excited about the change."

Finally the two longest tenured coaches in the program, Sue Hendee and Steve Scanlon didn't seem all that crazy about the switch. Hendee is in her 24th season as the head girls' soccer coach.

"The Middlesex League is a funny league. I think there are sports in which (Wilmington) can definitely compete in equally, and there are sports where they are way over our heads and girls' soccer is very, very strong," she said. "I know wrestling and hockey are very strong, and there are other sports where it is more equal like basketball. The thing with the Middlesex League is its much more balanced, and the teams that are not maybe as strong technically, have toughened up their play. They know that they have to scrap to be competitive whereas in the Cape Ann League there's a large disconnect between the top and the bottom teams, and in the Middlesex League there's really not a disconnect in terms of being prepared. You have to be prepared for every single game in the Middlesex League. Some teams may not be better technically than you, but if you don't come to play they will surely beat you to the ball. That's the mentality that we have to get into is all 18 games are so important and we have to be prepared and ready to play."

Scanlon, who has coached the boys hockey team since 1991 and the boys soccer team since 2001, said it'll be a tough switch.

"I understand why (school administrators) did it, but I liked the Cape Ann League in both (soccer and hockey)," he said. "The Middlesex League has a big tradition and all of that, but it's out of my hands. We'll go where we are told to go."

8th Grade Hoop players needed

Last winter the Wilmington Boys Travel Basketball League could only suit up one seventh grade team as there were not enough participants to have two teams. The program's goal is to have two teams for each grade level. This allows for a great opportunity for those boys that are in the eighth grade this winter to play some fun, competitive basketball.

The tryouts for the Wilmington Boys Travel Basketball program will be held at the Middle School in the last week of September and the first week in October, 2011. The times and dates will be in the Crier as soon as they become available. The season starts during the second or third week in November with practices. Games will start the first week in December. Teams will play a schedule of 20-30 games depending on their participation in some of the local tournaments. WBTL offers an opportunity for 4th (tentative), 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th grade boys to participate in competitive, organized basketball.

For more information please contact Ron Judkins, president, at 978-604-1167 or ronald.judkins@verizon.net with any questions.

Wilmington Recreation Hoop sign-ups

Registration for Wilmington Recreation Basketball is now underway. This program for students in grades 3 - 10, includes ten Saturday games and one weeknight practice each week, with separate divisions for boys and girls. The season begins December 3, 2011 and runs through February 18, 2012 (no games on December 24 or 31).

To register, submit a completed registration form with payment of $75 for each child to the Recreation Department in Town Hall, Room 8. The registration deadline is Thursday, October 13.

Forms along with payment can be delivered to the Recreation Department during regular office hours of 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., or left in the overnight drop slot next to the front door of Town Hall. For your convenience, registration forms are available under Downloadable Forms on the Recreation page of the town website (www.wilmingtonma.gov). For more information, call (978) 658 - 4270.

New Kids on the Block can play this game

ARLINGTON -- If the Wilmington High School varsity football faithful were worried about the long awaited shift from the Cape Ann League to the more competitively challenging Middlesex League, it was hardly apparent Friday night in Arlington. There was a solid contingent to cheer on coach Mike Barry's Wildcats, who turned running back John Parsons (3 touchdowns, 229 yards) loose on the Arlington High School Spy Ponders Friday under the lights.

After Arlington took the second half kickoff back for a touchdown, Barry read his team the riot-act, gathering the squad on the WHS sideline to remind them that there was a job to finish here. The Wildcats were in Arlington to let everyone know they belonged with the 'big boys' of the Middlesex League, even if this was a 'crossover' game featuring a Small School Division team against a club out of the Large School grouping.

There was nothing small about Wilmington's talent level, as this was no contest for much of the second half. The Wildcats received their coach's message loud and clear, and this first game in a new league was over.

Schools like Arlington might be able to suit up as many as 75 players, but this WHS squad had the Spy Ponders wondering just how many people it would take to not make a tackle or finish off a block. Wilmington had made quite an impression on at least one person who knows a whole lot about the game of football. At halftime, former WHS varsity football coach Gerry Sullivan (1993-95) was suitably impressed, even hoping that the home team would at least challenge the Wildcats over the second half of action.

"So far, I think they are holding their own," offered

Sullivan before making his trek to the refreshment stand. "They seem to be doing OK. I think that when they got up 14-0 they got a little complacent and the other team (Arlington) had some firepower and came back to fight them a little bit. I'm actually happy that Arlington scored. I'm looking forward to the second half to see what adjustments have been made."

Once a coach, always a coach, even if that former high school and college coach (Merrimack, Endicott) is now coaching Pop Warner football in Wilmington. If Sullivan was at this game expecting to see a wire-to-wire challenge from the home team, he never saw it. The Wildcats put the hammer down over the second half, pushing the Spy Ponders all over that beautiful 'field turf' surface. The coach did have an honest appraisal of this first Middlesex League contest however.

"Some of my buddies live in Arlington, and they have told me that they aren't a strong team, so it's kind of tough to tell how Wilmington is going to do in this league based on Arlington," Sullivan said. "But, Arlington has a strong Pop Warner program, so they might be on the way back."

Arlington is going to need a few more years of solid Pop Warner play to match Wilmington football on any level, but Sullivan sees one of the more interesting games coming up when the Wildcats play at Stoneham October 21. There will be a familiar face on the Stoneham sideline.

"Bob Almeida (former WHS head coach) is the Stoneham offensive coordinator, so he might know some of the intricacies of Wilmington football. He might know what they like to do," noted Sullivan. As far as leagues and level of play is concerned, Sullivan sees a common ground. He has the game in its proper perspective while he coaches Pop Warner football.

"I went from coaching in high school, to college and all the way to Pop Warner, which is fine," said Sullivan. "Football is football."

Basketball was still very much on the mind of Wilmington High School varsity basketball coach Joe Maiella as he took in the action Friday night on the Wilmington sideline. Maiella has a lot more common experience with the Middlesex League than coach Barry, having battled Burlington, Winchester, Reading and Woburn teams in what was then non-league action. On this night, Maiella was just another football fan liking this first-ever effort of a team in a new league.

"I think there are more people here from Wilmington (than Arlington) for an away game, and here we are playing at a great facility with this 'field turf', which hopefully we will have with a new high school," said Maiella. "I think that the Middlesex League is going to be great for all the Wilmington teams."

Is there a difference? Other than there are few, if any parking spaces available for Arlington High School football games? Nice field - a big high school with impressive credentials. No place to park your car. Want to see a game here? Park across the street off Mass Avenue and hope you can make it to Blue Ribbon Ribs before it closes for the night at 9 pm. Or, if you are an Arlington resident like Wilmington High School mathematics teacher Rik Rowe, you can catch the game and find a place that will serve you some grub later that night.

Rowe was animated over the first half, cheering from the Wildcats' sideline, even if he might have been a little torn between the two schools. Ultimately, Rowe's allegiance was with Wilmington - the 'new' kids in town.

"I've been teaching math at Wilmington High School for eight years and I've been going to the games for eight years," offered a smiling Rowe at halftime. "I know that Wilmington is up for a challenge tonight, but they are all willing to work very hard - and I think that they have found a good team to go up against in this first game. I live in Arlington, but I work in Wilmington - so Wilmington needs to come out on top tonight. I want to route for both teams because I live in Arlington, but these are my guys out on that field. Some of them are in my classes, so I'm pushing for them to win this game."

No problem Mr. Rowe - piece of cake. Let some team from the Middlesex League dress 100 players for a game this season. My money is on Wilmington High School football. This was a great move. Look out Middlesex League football opponents. You may think that you are safe, too large to tango with some 'small' school from Wilmington. Think again. There is a new 'kid' in town - and his name is 'Willy'.

Colozzo earns impressive honor at local business

Wilmington resident Joe Colozzo was recently honored by Catz Strength and Conditioning, a local Business in town, by being named the youngest athlete to achieve a Gold T-shirt.

Colozzo, 13, a student at the Melrose Veterans Middle School, went through a very difficult program over the past four years to achieve this tremendous goal.

There are five levels of the ranking system at Catz Strength and Conditioning that is similar to belts in martial arts. Athletes begin at the Grey T-Shirt then work their way up through tests, leading group workouts, and demonstrations. The five levels are as follows:

- Grey: Complete initial strength/power/flexibility assessment;
- White: Improve on broad jump/lead warm up, demo a strength exercise;
- Black: Improve on pro agility, single leg flexibility, lead star drill and demo butt burner;
- Blue: Seventy percent improvement on all tests, demo a strength and power exercise correctly, lead warm up and dynamic prep, and demo six ladder exercises;

• Gold: One hundred percent improvement on all tests, write a CATZ approved workout, teach it from start to end, and do 25 community service hours.

Throughout his four years of training, Colozzo had to overcome the fact that he has low muscle tone and vestibular processing, both of which he was born with. At the beginning of his training, he had trouble with push-ups and keeping his balance and couldn't run very fast. Yet that didn't stop him during his training. Colozzo has greatly benefited from his athletic improvement. He has become healthier, stronger, and better conditioned. He has gained confidence, a strong work ethic, and discipline.

Wildcat Cross Country teams ready to roll

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

It's been quite some time since the Wilmington High School Boys Cross Country team has enjoyed success in terms of wins and losses. The past eight years, the team had a combined record of 20-69 while competing in the Cape Ann League and during that span the team's reached the .500 record just once coming at 5-5 in 2003. The last three years the team has combined for four wins, and it's believed that the program's last winning season came in 1997 when Jay Gillis helped lead the Wildcats to a 7-4 finish.

So now with the struggles of victories, the Wildcats now switch over to the Middlesex League, and hopefully the win totals will turnaround.

"With our entry to the Middlesex League, it is difficult to predict how we will do but I think we'll be competitive," said head coach Tom Bradley.

Last year Wilmington finished 1-9 in the regular season and then finished 23rd at the Division 4 Eastern Mass Meet. On the same day, now Middlesex League opponents, Wakefield (11th), Burlington (17th) and Melrose (22nd) all finished ahead of them in the same race, while, Lexington (15th in Division 1), Woburn (11th in Division 2) and then Winchester (7th), Arlington (11th), Reading (13th) and Belmont (16th) also had respectable showings. It seems like most of those teams lost a lot of talent, but Lexington brings back the league's top runner in Nathaniel Adams, while Wakefield's Stephen Robertson and Burlington's David Taranto will be breathing down his neck, as the two of them are also very talented.

As for Wilmington, the Wildcats are pretty young. There's 17 members on the team, including the team's co-captains Steve Halas and Andrew Sears. The two of them will be in the mix as the team's top two runners, but will get a very strong push from newcomer Erik Alatalo, a first year member of the team who has a history of doing very well in road races. Senior Dave Swider is also new to the program and Bradley said he looks strong thus far in the pre-season. Ryan Kennedy will also be in the mix and those five -- Halas, Sears, Alatalo, Swider and Kennedy -- will most likely be the team's top five runners.

Seniors Jake Russo and Chris Monteforte will be in the mix, and sophomore Justin LaRosa has improved quite a bit and could crack the varsity line-up as well. Other returning runners include senior Travis Valente, juniors Brooks Carter, Nathan Connors and Mike Ferrara and sophomores Niko Pappas and Derek Santos. Dan Fothergill, Christian Houde and Sam Alatalo are track runners trying cross country for the first time, said Bradley.

Wilmington opens the Middlesex League season with a home meet on Thursday against Woburn, before going back in action on Tuesday with a tough road meet against Lexington. While in the Cape Ann League, meets would be held on Wednesdays but with the exception of the league opener, all meets this season will be held on Tuesday afternoons.

Girls Cross Country

If you look at last year's Eastern Mass results, you may be concerned considering Lexington, Woburn and Arlington all return a ton of their top runners. But so do the Wildcats - the Wilmington High School Girls Cross Country team has gone .500 or better in each of the past five seasons, combining for a 32-25 record, and would like nothing better than to keep those winning ways going.

"The Girls have a very good one-two punch with sophomore Sydnee Russo and eighth grader Callie O'Connell. They should be even better than last year," said head coach Tom Bradley, who helped guide the team to a 6-4 regular season record.

Last year Wilmington finished 11th at the Eastern Mass Meet ahead of new rivals Burlington (12th), Melrose (15th) and Wakefield (21st). The six large school teams in the ML, Lexington (7th in Division 1), Woburn (15th in Division 2) and Division 3 foes Reading (1th), Winchester (11th), Arlington (15th) and Belmont (20th) all seem to be bringing talent back, especially Arlington who has four key returners. However for the Wildcats, middle school gem Callie O'Connell finished 7th in last year's Division 4 race with a time of 21:07. Russo was right behind her, and this year they hope to continue to be a tough tandem, while the rest of the team looks to close that gap for not only this year but next year as well.

"The girls team is very young with no seniors and the four middle schoolers," said Bradley.

Besides O'Connell and Russo, the rest of the varsity line-up will most likely include Kate Richardson, Keara MacCorkle and Nicole Romanzo.

"Keara is probably the most improved runner on the team after a very solid summer prep," said Bradley.

Juniors Savannah Hubbard and Michelle Barnes with sophomore Jen Collins will also be in the mix at the varsity level, while middle school girls Annie Romazano, Mauve Sullivan and Anna Delacruz have opened some eyes. Juniors Rachel Donahue, Delaney Gillis and Scarlet Salerno add depth as do sophomores Geena Scalfini, Maria Patrone and Katie Goodwin.

Girls Soccer team, Coach, make big statements

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

If you compare the two programs over the last five years -- especially the last two -- there is nothing to compare, Lexington dominates. But if you watched Saturday's home opener, you saw two teams battle back-and-forth, with Wilmington carrying the play most of the first half and Lexington carrying it most of the second half. Yet despite that, Adrianna Kippenberger set up Rachel Grabar with a dramatic goal four minutes left in the game, sending both teams home with a hard earned 1-1 tie, and leaving longtime head coach Sue Hendee with a pretty bold statement minutes after the two teams shook hands.

"I just told the girls that I think this is the best Wilmington High School Girls team that I've ever coached (in my 24 years)," she said. "I really do, given the level of competition that we're going up against right now. I've had good teams in the past where the level of competition was kind of intermittent but this is going to be consistent like this. And Lexington is an extremely good program."

Indeed they are. Last year Lexington finished 10-5-3 and lost in the first round of the Division 1 state tournament to Lincoln Sudbury, 1-0, on penalty kicks. The two years before that, Lexington combined for a record of 22-8-4 and were bounced both years by Acton-Boxboro, who only went to the state final one year, and only had two of the top players from the entire country on its roster. The two years before that, Lexington combined for a record of 22-7-7, giving the Minuteman a five year record of 54-20-14.

On the flip side, Wilmington has gone 7-17-11 in the past two years combined and 33-41-18 in the last five years, including making three straight state Division 2 state tournament appearances, losing in the first round all three times.

Before ending in the 1-1 tie against Lexington, the Wildcats were edged out by Woburn, 2-1, last Wednesday on the turf at Woburn High School.

"It was another good game," said Hendee. "It was more back-and-forth. We weren't as composed as we were (on Saturday) but that's expected first game of the season, first game in the new league, and playing on the turf which took some time getting used to because there were plenty of passes that went too fast, so we had to work on the force of our passes and shots, and running long all of the time. It was a good game, real good game. The Stoneham coach was there and she said she thought we carried a lot of the play."

The strange thing about playing this well against two solid teams is that Wilmington is still a very young team. On Saturday, the team had to make some changes in the backfield as Paige Bennett played just a few minutes with a leg injury and Taylor Shelton didn't play at all, and they are the team's top two experienced defenders. But junior Lauren McKenna and sophomore Kaitlyn Curley played outstanding throughout the 90 minutes.

"I thought there were a couple of times down the middle of the field when things got a little sketchy, but Lexington has skilled, fast players," said Hendee. "We have a couple of nagging injuries right now and we're hoping those girls can come back soon but the players filling in have stepped in and have done a wonderful job, especially moving Kaitlyn Curley (to defense). She was outstanding today. She's a kid who is going to step up and can play anywhere for us. Lauren McKenna is a very, very smart player and she played very well."

The two teams played to a scoreless tie through the first half but Wilmington carried most of the play, forcing the Lexington coach to call a timeout 17 minutes into the game and blasting his team on the sideline. Wilmington's best chance to score came when junior Holly Niemiec's shot from the right hand side rolled right through the crease, topping off the hand of the Lexington goalie to set up one of the five corner kicks of the half.

Lexington got on the scoreboard around the 20 minute mark of the second half on a breakdown that started with a throw-in and followed with several quick passes and a lot of open room to move the ball, before placing it in the back of the net for the 1-0 lead.

Wilmington kept fighting to create some offensive chances, including Alex Bischoff putting a hard shot right on net that was saved. Then with about six minute to go in the game, Hendee called a timeout urging her players to get into the offensive zone and having numbers up and that's exactly what happened. The Wildcats forced two consecutive corner kicks, both taken by Niemiec. On the second one, her kick bounced out to the top of the '18, and Kippenberger slid in from the weak side and took a shot on net that skipped past several defenders and onto the foot of senior Rachel Grabar, who deposited a quick shot inside the right hand post to tie the game up at 1-1.

A big reason why Wilmington was able to keep up with Lexington was playing a very physical style - not dirty but being physical, something the boys' program has excelled at for years.

"It's about time that we played (physical), seriously," said Hendee. "I think our biggest nemesis over the years is been shying away from that stuff, and I told the seniors in the off-season that (physical play) is the biggest difference between the Middlesex League and the Cape Ann League. There are no teams that we are just going to roll over, and if we don't come ready to play, we'll get beat."

In the loss to Woburn, Jackie Kennedy scored the lone goal for the Wildcats.

On Tuesday afternoon, Wilmington defeated Reading, 4-0 at home to start the season out with a 2-1-0 record. Holly Niemiec and Rachel Grabar scored two goals each, while Jackie Kennedy had two assists, and Alex Bischoff and Rachael Mara had one each. Sarah Luz and Michelle Woods combined for 11 saves and the shut out.

Football team defeats Arlington, 28-14

Parsons and company enjoy ML opening victory

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

ARLINGTON - While it was not officially their first Middlesex League game since it was a crossover match-up, the Wilmington High football team served notice that they will be a force to be reckoned with in their new league with a convincing 28-14 win over Arlington High last Friday night.

Both teams are beginning their first year in the Middlesex League this season with Wilmington in the Small School Division and Arlington in the Large.

The Wildcats got better as the game went on in their first game of the season. After Arlington tied the game at 14-14 with a kickoff return for a touchdown to start the second half, the Wildcats simply took over the game outscoring the Spy Ponders 14-0 for the rest of the game and limiting their opponents to five total yards in the second half.

"There were a couple of things that we did not do well, but as the game went on we seemed to play better and take control," Wilmington coach Mike Barry said. "I think that's what all football coaches want, is to have your team sort of impose their will a little as the game goes on."

The Wildcat who most imposed his will on the Spy Ponders was senior running back John Parsons who ran for 229 yards and three touchdowns and also connected on a momentum changing option pass early in the third quarter shortly after Arlington had tied the game.

See all of the previews, features and predictions of Wilmington and its new Middlesex League opponents in this week's insert.

Parsons was not alone in his dominance of the Spy Ponders, as overall the Wildcats gained 314 yards on the ground and out-gained the Spy Ponders 378-120 for the game.

Wilmington held a slim 14-7 lead at the half after an Arlington touchdown late in the half and the Spy Ponders seemed to seize the momentum of the game with an 80 yard touchdown return on the opening kickoff of the second half by Arlington junior Matt Garcia.

But with the Arlington crowd going crazy and the Spy Ponder defense fired up to keep the momentum swing going, the Wildcats needed only three plays to respond and seize not only the momentum but the lead as well. After being stuffed for no gain on first down, the Wildcats reached into their bag of tricks and Parsons connected with wide receiver Tim Woods for a 40-yard completion down to the Arlington 35 yard line.

"That was a play we had not worked a lot on, but we executed it very well and I think it really switched the momentum," Wilmington coach Mike Barry said. "It was a good play. Johnny throws the ball real well."

Parsons for his part, loved contributing to his team with his arm as well as his legs.

"I like to contribute in any way I can," Parsons said. "I like being the star sometimes, but I am more than happy to make someone else the star too."

Parsons also runs the ball real well and he showed that on the very next play, sprinting untouched into the end zone for a 35-yard touchdown run to give the Wildcats a 21-14 lead with 9:21 left in the third quarter.

Parsons knew the significance of his team coming right back with a score after the big kickoff return by Arlington.

"I think it definitely switches momentum a little when they score against you right at the start of the half," Parsons said. "It was big for us to go right down and score."

The Wilmington defense took over from there, led by Parsons at his linebacker position as well as defensive back Matt Ferreira and defensive tackle Alex Furlong among others. Together they limited Arlington to only eight plays and five total yards in the second half.

Parsons and the rest of the Wilmington offense put the game out of reach on their next possession, a 100 yard drive that used up almost seven minutes and ended with a two yard run up the middle by Parsons for a 28-14 lead with 5:04 left in the game. Parsons ran for 56 yards on the drive.

"The offensive line did a great job," Parsons said. "They stayed on their blocks and opened things up for me all night."

Indeed, the offensive line of Dan Bedenza, Brendan Ahearn, Alex Furlong, Frank Cerbone and Shawn Surette dominated all night long and they only got better as the game went on, continually pushing the Spy Ponders off the line of scrimmage.

"We felt going into the year with three starters coming back that the line would do well for us and they did," Barry said.

If there was any doubt left as to the outcome Woods, who had already made the huge catch from Parsons, erased it two plays later with his second interception of the game with 4:00 left.

Early on it looked like the Wildcats were going to roll to victory, taking a 14-0 lead early in the second quarter on Parsons first touchdown of the game, a 25 yard run with 9:16 left in the half, capping a five play, 46 yard drive.

They had jumped out to a quick 7-0 lead on their first possession of the game, an eight play, 69 yard drive that was capped by a six yard touchdown pass from Matt Ferreira to tight end

Kyle Albanese on a perfect fade to the corner of the end zone

Arlington kept the game close, however, pulling within seven points with 1:42 left in the half on a 38 yard run by Tom Jantz.

Ultimately though, the Wildcats were not going to be denied in this one and they introduced themselves to the Middlesex League in spectacular fashion.

Wilmington has a bye this weekend, and will be back in action on former Cape Ann League rival Masconomet at home on Friday, September 23rd.

WHS Boys Soccer, Volleyball and Golf Field Hockey team off to flying 3-0 start

By JAMIE POTE
& MIKE IPPOLITO

The Wilmington High School Girls Field Hockey team stormed out of the gate this past week with three wins in its first three games of the season. The Wildcats defeated Woburn in the season opener, 4-1, before winning two games in less than 24 hours with a 4-0 non-league win over Ipswich at home Monday night, before topping a very good Lexington team, 2-0, on Tuesday afternoon.

"It's definitely a great start - it helps us get out of the gate fast and hopefully it'll scare some of the Middlesex League teams a little bit because I don't think some of those teams thought we would be competitive," said head coach Jodi Campbell. "So hopefully this fast start can help the girls' confidence."

In the season opening win against Woburn, Shelley Sullivan led the way scoring three goals, while Emily Colosimo notched the other. In the win against Ipswich, four different girls found the back of the net with Jen Stewart, Cristina Wilson and Sullivan in the first half, and Colosimo in the second half. Ryanne Newhouse, Sullivan and Stewart picked up single assists. And in the win over Lexington, Newhouse and Sullivan scored the goals. Sullivan now has five goals in three games.

"Emily Colosimo has been awesome," said Campbell. "She's just been a spitfire for us. She has really good stick-eye coordination and she's doing really well. I just think we have an awesome combination with Emily, Shelley Sullivan, Amanda Richards and Cristina Wilson and then at the corner of that is Ryanne Newhouse and she's been great so that combination is great."

The wins over Woburn and Lexington certainly bode well for the start of Middlesex League play. Woburn is coming off a ninth place finish in the ML last year with a 4-9-5 record, but has 13 seniors on the team and had an astounding 68 players come out for the team. Ipswich struggles from the Cape Ann League and the Wildcats took care of business there, but Lexington is a tremendous victory, considering the Minutemen have been one of the better teams in the ML for a long time - along with Watertown and Reading. In fact, Lexington has combined for a 20-11-5 record in the past two years, making it into the Division 1 state tournament.

While the offense has been playing great through the first three games with ten goals, the defense has given up just one, and posted back-to-back shut out.

"Defensively, Courtney Cavanaugh has been great - she's such a strong player," said Campbell.

Wilmington will have its hands full in two of its next three games facing Reading at home on Thursday afternoon, Stoneham on the road on Monday and Watertown at home on Wednesday. Reading returns nine players from last year's 10-win team, and Watertown went unbeaten for the second straight year and have combined for a 34-0-2 record.

Omission

In last week's Wilmington High School Field Hockey team's preview, Megan Howland's name was omitted from the varsity roster. Howland is a junior midfielder on the Wildcats. The Town Crier apologies for the mistake.

Boys Soccer

After being overmatched in its first game of the season and first in the Middlesex League, the Wilmington High Boys Soccer team pulled out a very exciting 2-1 win over a very solid Reading team Tuesday night at Reading's turf field.

The Rockets took a 1-0 lead, scoring fluke goal just 20 minutes in, before the Wildcats notched the net two goals to take the game. With five minutes left in the first half Cory McGilvary took a free kick from about 35 yards out and it sailed over the keeper's hands and into the back of the net to tie the game at 1-1. Then in the 57th minute, Colin Doherty made a nice turn on a defender and took a beautiful shot from about 20 yards out to the low right hand corner for what turned out to be the game winner.

"It was a historical win for the Wildcats," cracked head coach Steve Scanlon. "But it's a very good win for us after the other day's (4-0 loss to Lexington). We still have a long way to go but any points you can get from these cross over games are huge."

In the opener, Lexington had a 1-0 lead before Wilmington's defense broke down and allowed two goals within 12 minutes and that was more than enough for the Minutemen to come away with the win.

"They are a very good team and we were simply over-matched," said Scanlon. "We knew that going in so we tried to play a defensive set against them and it worked out pretty good through the first 26 minutes and then we gave up two preventable goals, and then we were down 3-0."

Wilmington is home for its next three games with Stoneham on Thursday and Woburn Saturday morning at 10:00 with both games at the North Intermediate before moving to the high school Tuesday night to face Watertown at 6:00 pm.

Volleyball

Heading into the season, Wilmington High School Girls' Volleyball coach Meghan Sheehy knew that her team was young, inexperienced and lacked some offensive height and power. But what she didn't expect was her team laying an egg with effort. That she witnessed during Monday afternoon's Middlesex League tilt with Lexington, who easily swept the Wildcats 3-0 (25-13, 26-24, 25-20).

"That's not how we play," she said. "We didn't show any of our abilities or talents. We're a much better team than that. We weren't talking, we weren't moving and we missed on a lot of serves and that's our biggest downfall right now is that we can't get our serves together. It seems like everytime we go on a run, we give it right back to the other team, so the one thing we really need to work on is mental toughness but first and foremost, we have to learn to trust each other."

"We were dead. I think the girls came in thinking they don't have to work as hard, but we're in a new league and we're going to get it handed to us sometimes and that's OK if we play our hardest but we didn't play our hardest today and that's something we're going to need to work on in the next few days."

In the first set, Lexington jumped out to leads of 7-1 and 12-4, as Wilmington struggled mightily on its serves. After Lexington made it 12-4, Sheehy called a timeout, and after Wilmington hung around for a point here and there, Lexington emerged going up 21-12 before closing the first set out with a 12-point margin.

The second set was much different. The teams exchanged the lead 11 times and were tied 13 other times. Wilmington took a small 5-3 early on as Robin Hollenbeck contributed with a kill, and she helped out again with another one later in the same set bringing a two-point deficit eventually back to even at 13-13. Wilmington eventually took a three-point lead at 17-14, but Lexington battled back to tie the match up at 17-17, 18-18, 21-21 and 23-23. The Wildcats scored the next point, meaning the next one would even the series, but that didn't happen as Lexington reeled off three straight to come away with the 26-24 victory taking a 2-0 lead.

The third set was all Lexington in the early goings. The Minutemen took leads of 7-1 and 13-8 before Wilmington slowly climbed back into the game behind an ace from Christa Brent, before Michelle Woods came through with an offensive kill a few minutes later to trim the deficit to one at 15-14. Wilmington did tie the match up at 18-18, but Lexington put the foot on the gas and scored seven of the next nine points to come away with the 25-20 set win, and 3-0 match sweep. Overall Hollenbeck led the team with six kills, while Woods had three and Chloe Castellano had two. Woods, Brent and Kelly Wilcox each had one ace.

Last Thursday Wilmington defeated Arlington, 3-0 (25-9, 25-22 and 25-19) which came a day after losing to Hamilton-Wenham, 3-1. In the win against Arlington, Sheehy said the team really didn't play well despite coming away with the win.

"Arlington wasn't as strong as Lexington but as the games wore on, they were getting rattled and we started to give in because we were being lazy, we were tired, and we kept thinking it would be an easy win because we won the first set so much," she said. "They were a good team, and they were able to push us back and they did push us back. So we have to realize that we're not the best team in the state and we need to work for everything because we're not going to be given a thing."

Wilmington faced Reading on Wednesday with results not known as of presstime. That will follow with road trips to Stoneham on Friday and Watertown on Monday before coming back home to face Melrose next Wednesday.

Golf

The Wilmington High Golf team has gotten off to a bit of a rocky start this season, dropping their first three matches last week. The Wildcats battled both ad weather and tough opponents all week long, and while their record currently stands at 0-3, coach Steve Lynch and his team are looking to rebound this week and get back on the winning track.

"It seems like we have established a pattern the past few years where we have started off slow," Lynch said. "The good news is that we have usually been able to rebound, so we are hoping to do that again."

The Wildcats week started with a road loss in a rain storm last Tuesday to non league rival Amesbury by a score of 135-127. Of course, up until this year Amesbury was a league rival in the Cape Ann League, but with the Wildcats switch to the Middlesex League that has changed.

The Wildcats got some great efforts on the day starting with senior Jon Keough who led the team with 30 points while fellow senior Dalton Rolli added 24 points. Sophomore Ryan McEvoy who is off to a great start this season added 20 points from his number four slot and Matt Boutoures added 19 points from the number eight slot.

"I told the team that I thought we played pretty good golf, but that we need to do it collectively and not just with a few guys," Lynch said. "We need to get more help from the middle of the pack."

Last Thursday the Wildcats traveled to Lexington County Club to take on Middlesex League rival Lexington High School, once again playing through terrible weather conditions, this time on their way to a 41 1/2-30 1/2 loss to what is expected to be one of the top teams in the league this season.

"I thought going in that Lexington was going to be very good, and they did prove to be a very good team, but I thought we hung in there and played pretty well with them," Lynch said.

Keough and Rolli each came up on the short end of 6-3 scores in the nine hole match play course, while number three player Jeff Favuzza tied his match 4 1/2-4 1/2 and McEvoy won his by a score of 5-4.

"The two guys that Keough and Rolli played against were two of the best in the state this past year," Lynch said. "We played most of the matches fairly even, but they were very strong at the top. Nobody likes to lose, but I was happy with our showing overall."

The Wildcats wrapped up their week with a loss to Reading on Monday at Meadowbrook Country Club, and once again they played well, but were unable to pick up a win against a very good team.

Keough dropped a 5-4 decision while Rolli lost by a score of 6-3. McEvoy continued his undefeated start to the season with a 5-4 win while Matt Chiricosta and Boutoures each dropped 5-4 decisions.

"We are actually playing pretty well," Lynch said. "We are just going against good players. When Keough shoots a 38 and Rolli shoots a 40 and they both lose because the guy they are playing shoots a 36, you can be upset with them after the way they played."

Wilmington's 7th Annual half marathon and 5K road race will take place on September 25 at 10 Waltham Street in Wilmington, near WCTV. The event is from 10am-2pm and registration starts at 8 am. However, pre-registration is recommended. All proceeds will benefit scholarships for Wilmington High School students. To register visit RunReg.com or visit wilmingtombusiness.com to print the registration form and then mail to Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, 226 Lowell Street, Wilmington, MA 01887.

Just this past week, the Chamber of Commerce confirmed that Dick Hoyt and his son, "Team Hoyt" will be participating in the half marathon race. In case you are not familiar with "Team Hoyt", his quick biography is below.

"Rick Hoyt uses a wheelchair. That has not stopped him from living a very full and amazing life. He's competed in the Boston Marathon 29 times and in Ironman Triathlons six times. He, along with his dad, Dick, have formed "Team Hoyt" and they have competed around the world doing marathons and triathlons.

The Hoyts have competed in over 1040 athletic events in the last 33 years. Dick, 71, is a retired Lt. Colonel, having served in the military for 35 years. Rick, 49, is a graduate of Boston University with a degree in Special Education.

Rick was born in 1962 as a spastic quadriplegic with cerebral palsy and as a non-speaking person - but despite these disabilities, Rick's mind and spirit have always been strong. His family supported his quest for independence and inclusion in community, sports, education and the workplace, culminating with his graduation from Boston University.

To the named Respondent and all other interested persons, a petition has been filed by Tewksbury Hospital of Tewksbury, MA in the above captioned matter alleging that Tracy Didion is in need of a Guardian and requesting that Some Suitable Person of Unknown, MA (or some other suitable person) be appointed as Guardian to serve With Surety on the bond.

The petition asks the court to determine that the Respondent is incapacitated, that the appointment of a Guardian is necessary, and that the proposed Guardian is appropriate. The petition is on file with this court and may contain a request for certain specific authority.

You have a right to object to this proceeding. If you wish to do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance at this court on or before 10:00 AM on the return date of 09/29/2011. This day is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline date by which you have to file the written appearance if you object to the petition. If you fail to file the written appearance by the return date, action may be taken in this matter without further notice to you. In addition to filing the written appearance, you or your attorney must file a written affidavit stating the specific facts and grounds of your objection within 30 days after the return date.

IMPORTANT NOTICE
The outcome of this proceeding may limit or completely take away the above-named person's right to make decisions about personal affairs or financial affairs or both. The above-named person has the right to ask for a lawyer. Anyone may make this request on behalf of the above-named person. If the above-named person cannot afford a lawyer, one may be appointed at State expense.

educating others on the world of disabilities. He and his family have seen an impact from their efforts in the area of public attitude toward people with disabilities.

You may visit their website at www.teamhoyt.com to learn more about their story and see many pictures of their journey through their 30 years of racing."

Dan Vassallo, a member of the race committee, who also has a long history of winning road races and marathons, has offered a guideline to those people who plan on running in this year's half marathon in Wilmington: The Wilmington Half-Marathon and 5K are starting at the WCTV headquarters in just ten or eleven days depending on when you read this. The big day is next Sunday, September 25th, and it is strongly recommended that you pre-register either at wilmingtombusiness.com or at the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce. As far as training goes, I want to say thank you to the Chamber and to the Town Crier for allowing me to fill this space for the last ten weeks. I hope at least a few people followed my guidelines, and I hope I will help you achieve your goals on race day.

This week's lesson on training has less to do with training and more to do with racing. On the day of the race, you might be nervous, but you shouldn't be because you've done the training you Team Hoyt will be participating in the upcoming Wilmington (courtesy photo).

I suggest a light-to-moderate breakfast (with no orange juice, as it is too acidic) three hours before racing. Feel free to warm up your muscles by running before the race, especially if it is cold outside. Do not forget that a half-marathon is a long race, so especially if you're a first timer, don't "bank" time in the beginning and do your best to not get excited. If you get too excited, you will throw off your pace and run too fast, too early. You want something left when you make your turn right from Wildwood Street to Middlesex Avenue.

Wilmington Youth Hockey teams start new season

Squirt 2's

The Wilmington Youth Hockey Association Squirt 2 team began their Valley League season with two games over the weekend, earning one win (4-1) and one loss (2-1). The young team had a balanced offense and defense in front of steady goaltending.

Saturday morning the team faced Lynn. Although they lost, the Wildcats came together as a team. Max Churchill was in goal, with defensemen Joseph Hartzell and Zachary Smith. Forwards were Anthony Bowker, Taylor Padulsky, and John Spina. The first period played out evenly with good action at both ends of the ice. Wilmington's second pair defense Justin Crowley and Conor Hill, along with forwards Nicholas Farrell, Morgan Vigeant, Jillian Fisher, and Joseph Hansen kept the pressure on the Lynn squad. Chris Bernazani put Wilmington on top at the end of the first period with the help of fellow forwards Cameron Banks and Jared Russell. In the second period Lynn tied the game 1-1.

The third period included a thrilling penalty shot by Justin Crowley but the scored remained tied. In the final seconds, Lynn scored a goal that just trickled over the line, and pulled off the win 2-1.

The team returned to the ice Sunday evening in Woburn with Max Churchill back in net. Other lineup changes include Alex Fitzler joining the defense pairings, and Crowley moved to forward and Bernazani moving to defense. Padulsky got the scoring started in the first period with an assist from Bowker. The Wildcats increased their lead to 2-0 with Banks scoring assisted by Crowley. Woburn came back to score, narrowing the lead to 2-1. Early in the third period, Bowker scored, the assist going to Padulsky. Jared Russell completed the scoring with an assist from Banks, and the Wildcats controlled the final minutes to take the 4-1 victory.

Hockey season has begun and the Squirt 1 Wildcats have come out roaring! The Cat's started the season with two wins over the weekend. On Saturday, Wilmington beat Nashoba 3-1. On Sunday morning, the Wilmington opened the scoring floodgates and cruised to a 9-0 win over Chelmsford.

In Saturday's game against Nashoba, the forward line of Dean Nally, Colin Duffy and Drew Miller dominated with relentless pressure from start to finish. To get things started, Dean set up behind the net and dished pass through the defensemen and to the waiting stick of Colin. Colin aptly buried the pass into the back of the net. In the second period, the Nally Duffy combination was working again, but this time the play was made by Drew Miller stealing the puck and carrying deep in the zone. Miller passed to Nally, Nally passed to Duffy and Duffy buried his second.

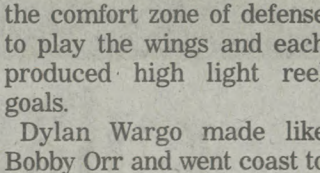

The scoring was capped off when the line of Julia Ryan, Nolan Fitzgerald and JJ Thibert got on the scoring sheet. Fitz did all the dirty work to get the puck in deep and Julia took a shot that was saved and then slid the rebound over to the waiting blade of JJ for the nail in the coffin.

Sunday morning's game was a passing clinic presented by an unselfish team of hockey players. The cousin combination of Zach Kincaid, Kyle Collins and Christian Robarge dominated the game against Chelmsford. Zach Kincaid led the scoring with a hat trick, but not without some help from his family. Cousins' Kyle and Christian fed Zach the puck all day.

coast to score on his break-away effort. Bruiser, Matt Pendenza played his usual games tenacious offense and defense on both sides of the rink.

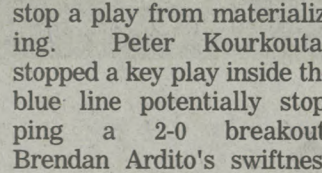

Two games and one goal against for Wilmington goalies! The tandem of Damian Elkins and Anthony Couzzo shined. Any time, Nashoba would add a little pressure to get back into Saturday's game; the goalies would shut the door. Great saves were to be had, but rebounds were not.

Mite 1's

Sunday September 11th, 2011. It has been four months, Spring and Summer baseball seasons, lots of swimming and a Stanley Cup Victory since most of these kids laced up. Their love for the sport intensified over the Summer months as they witnessed a long over due Stanley Cup Championship by their local sports heroes. A new team took the ice in Malden Ma, as the Wilmington Wildcats Mites1 team faced off against Wakefield for the first time this season. Coach Farrell likes what he sees with this young Mite1 team, a lot of potential across the board.

The team was led onto the ice by number one net minder Sam Cedrone. The Mites started the first period attacking Wakefield every chance they had. Nathan Alberti, Nolan Vigeant and Drew Gallucci led the barrage on the opponent's goalie. Jimmy McCarron and Matthew Ardito worked hard and kept the puck out of Wilmington's zone. Matthew Ardito found Nathan Alberti with a nice pass only to be denied early in the first. Peter Kourkoutas and Evan Munro teamed up on defense, while Ryan Ackerley, Jack Farrell and Brendan Ardito continued the attack in the offensive zone. Peter Kourkoutas got the puck to a streaking Brendan Ardito only to be stopped by a awesome save. James Kourkoutas and Maura Fiorenza continued the offensive tempo that the rest of the offense was creating. Jimmy McCarron made a nice back check to stop a play from materializing. Peter Kourkoutas stopped a key play inside the blue line potentially stopping a 2-0 breakout. Brendan Ardito's swiftness got him another opportunity but again was denied. Sam Cedrone finally got into the action midway through the period as he made a great save on a breakaway. Maura Fiorenza showcased her skills as she back checked a play dead then stick handled through a group of Wakefield players only to be stopped by a last second diving play by an opposing player.

Wilmington was completely dominating the first period but could not penetrate the goal line. Wakefield found themselves late in the first period, as they broke out on a 2-0, and labeled the blocker side corner for a 1-0 lead. Nolan Vigeant was all over the ice, rushing up the ice getting shots off, poke checking to stop plays from materializing, to stick handling by three players only to be denied by the goalie. Matthew Ardito played great defense skating hard to stop a two on one, Jack Farrell made a great poke check to break up a pass, and Sam Cedrone made a great save at the buzzer to keep it a one goal game.

Wilmington came out of the gate firing early in the second, with Brendan Ardito finding Nolan Vigeant for his first goal of the season. Unfortunately things after this moment changed as Wakefield struck back for five unanswered goals putting the game at 6-1.

Early in the third Jimmy McCarron found Brendan Ardito for his first of the game making it 6-2. Wakefield struck back making it 7-2. Wilmington showed pride and promise as they did not give-up while down five, they dominated last five minutes of the game and were rewarded as Drew Gallucci scored his first of the season making it a 7-3 final.

Mite 2's

The Wilmington Mite 2 White team made a glorious debut Sunday at Haverhill losing to Masco Mite 1s, 9-2, in a tough loss. Making his first appearance in net was Chase Perault who was consistent and resilient. He had the help of Cameron Gagnon, Joey Pastore and Aydan Churchill on defense. Patrick Callahan and Ryan Dusablon Tristan DiMeco fought hard for pucks and showed off their skills on offense.

Wilmington was tenacious. Even when Masco put up a few goals to take the lead, the team kept up the intensity, replying with a goal of their own from Liam Crowley. Nate Packer also contributed with a goal of his own. Ultimately Wilmington lost, but they never quit, fighting until the end. The team started the season off as they should by playing tough, working hard, and having fun.

Shawsheen Tech Football

Disappointing loss for Super Bowl Champs

Sports Correspondent

BILLERICA - There will undoubtedly be better days ahead for the Shawsheen Tech football team this season, but that knowledge was probably of little consolation to the Rams as they trudged off Samuel J. Cassidy Field on Saturday afternoon after their season opening 35-7 loss to non-league rival Arlington Catholic.

The defending Division 4 Super Bowl champions will certainly have some growing pains this season, as they lost several key players to graduation from last year's championship squad, but rarely will there be a game where such a perfect storm of mistakes and missed opportunities combine for the one sided loss they had to suffer on Saturday.

Even in the second half of this contest, the Rams showed signs of improvement, cutting down on their mistakes and beginning to click a little offensively, but by then it was too late as AC had raced out to leads of 21-0 after the first quarter and 35-0 at the half before Shawsheen responded with a touchdown midway through the third quarter.

The Rams were done in primarily by turnovers and missed opportunities, as they twice fumbled on kickoff returns including the game's opening kickoff and also dropped a pair of potential interceptions on drives that would ultimately lead to Arlington Catholic touchdowns.

The Rams could not have gotten off to a worse start, fumbling the opening kickoff and giving AC the ball at their 29 yard line. Still it appeared they were poised to stop the Cougars, forcing them into a 4th and 5 situation from the 24, but on that fourth down play, AC senior quarterback Pat O'Donnell ran 24 yards for the first score of the game and a 6-0 lead after the failed extra point.

On the play prior to the interception a Shawsheen defender had a chance to intercept an O'Donnell pass, but could not hold on for the pick.

After forcing Shawsheen into a three and out, the Cougars extended their lead on the very next play on a 62 yard run by senior running back Bernard Lynch for a 14-0 lead after the two point conversion with 8:00 left in the first quarter.

An AC interception led to another quick score, with Lynch once again doing the damage, this time on a 45 yard run to cap a two play drive and give AC a 21-0 lead with 6:30 left in the opening quarter.

Shawsheen seemed to settle down from there, and while they were not able to generate much offense they were holding their own on defense against the Cougars.

Unfortunately for the Rams, that did not last, however, as midway through the second quarter AC went on an eight play drive that was capped off by a one yard run by O'Donnell for a 28-0 lead with 2:20 left in the half.

Once again, missed opportunities hurt the Rams, as for the second time in the game a defender was unable to hold on to a potential interception, this time on the first play of the drive. Later in the drive the Rams again appeared to have come away with an interception only to have it ruled a simultaneous catch allowing AC to retain possession.

AC capped their first half scoring after intercepting a Shawsheen pass when O'Donnell connected with Lynch for a 57 yard scoring play on a screen pass and a 35-0 lead with just under two minutes left in the half.

Shawsheen's only score of the game on a perfectly executed four yard play action pass from junior quarterback Mike O'Hearn to junior tight end Devin Summiel of Tewksbury with 1:56 left in the third quarter.

Senior running back Paul DePlacido, filling in for injured 1,000 yard rusher Andrew Dascoli, led the Shawsheen offensive attack with 61 yards rushing on 18 carries.

Shawsheen coach Al Costabile was encouraged by his team's effort in the second half and will be looking for continued improvement on Saturday night when his young Rams squad takes on Watertown at Woburn High School. Kickoff is at 6:00 p.m.

"We saw some real positive things in the second half," Costabile said. "We did not quit and the younger kids played much better football. A lot of kids were getting their first varsity experience they made some mistakes, but they got better as the game went on."

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-Up

Boys Soccer team picks up a pair of wins

Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech boys soccer team has gotten off to a 2-1 start to the season, dropping their most recent contest after opening the year with two straight wins.

Shawsheen started their season last Tuesday with a 4-0 win over Mystic Valley before downing Manchester-Essex on Friday by a score of 1-0 and dropping a 1-0 decision to CAC rival Greater Lowell on Tuesday.

Shawsheen opened their season last Tuesday with an impressive 4-0 win on the road over Mystic Valley, getting a pair of goals from senior forward Dan Suarez.

Suarez scored the first of his two goals on a blistering shot that the Mystic goalie had no chance on and added his second on a direct kick from 20 yards out, rifling the ball into the left hand corner.

Shawsheen coach Dick Barriss was not surprised to see his star forward score two such impressive goals and he is expecting more of the same for the rest of the season.

"Dan has the best foot soccer skills on team," Barriss said. "He is capable of making plays like that. We will go as far as Dan takes us this season in my opinion."

Suarez was not able to score in the Rams next game against Manchester Essex, but one goal was all they needed in their 1-0 win and it came off the foot of defender T.J. Barriss with five minutes left in the first half.

Well, it didn't come off of Barriss's foot exactly, but rather his chest, but the goal was a result of his aggressive play in following up a direct kick by Nicco Riparo.

When the Manchester goalie bobbled the ball, Barriss charged the net and moments later the ball was bouncing off his chest and into the net.

"There was some confusion in front of the net and T.J. made a heads up play to go the net," Barriss said. It was on defense, however, where T.J. Barriss and his teammates have really shined. Barriss, along with Mike DiGiorgio, Jake Snook and Cam Ahearn have all been outstanding all season.

"We have given up one goal in three games so you know they hare playing well," coach Barriss said. "The four of them have done a very good job, not jut in our wins, but in the Greater Lowell loss as well."

Of course, the Rams last line of defense, goalie Andy Sutton has been outstanding as well, starting in net for the first time with for the varsity.

"Andy has been playing very well," Barriss said. "He was not tested very much against Mystic, but against Manchester he faced seven shots and at least a couple of them were really great saves."

In the Greater Lowell loss the Rams also played very well, but they fell victim to a goal in the game's first ten minutes and were unable to get the equalizer.

"We gave up that goal and I thought they had the better of the play for the first 20 minutes for so, but after that I felt like we controlled play," Barriss said. "We just could not get it past their goalie. I thought we played well, but we just made one bad play in the first few minutes of the game."

Volleyball

The Shawsheen volleyball team returns only two seniors to their team this year from year's outstanding 16-5 squad, and only three starters from that team. It's hard to say exactly how the season will go for the Lady Rams with that kind of turnover, but the early returns have been tremendous as Shawsheen is off to a 2-1 start to the season.

In their most recent match the Lady Rams picked up a key 3-1 (25-20, 25-22, 31-33, 25-15) win over CAC rival Whittier on Tuesday afternoon on the road.

Flynn was impressed with the way his team bounced back after losing the hard fought third game 33-31. The Lady Rams had fuit back in that game from deficits of 21-13 and 24-20 to force extra play, but they could not come up with the win.

"That was a tough one to lose," Shawsheen coach Chet Flynn said. "After we lost that I felt like we could go either way. I thought we could either be down and out or we bounce back and the kids did a great job and responded well."

Several Lady Rams had outstanding efforts in the win, but perhaps none were better than sophomore Danielle Cacciola of Tewksbury. Cacciola had 17 service points in the match, including eight straight to start the all important fourth game.

"As a freshman last year we used her as a server quite often because she is very good at it," Flynn said. "She had actually struggled a little this year, but she really stepped up there when we needed her. The whole team really stepped up. It showed a lot of character."

Junior Kelsey Davis played very well for Shawsheen with six kills and six blocks and she also helped neutralize on of Whittier's top players.

"Kelsey played primarily in the front court, but we are playing her all over the court now," Flynn said. "Whittier has one particular player in the center that they count on, but Kelsey had six blocks on her and after a while you could see it having an effect on her. Kelsey is also a very accurate hitter."

Junior setter Taylor Simas of Tewksbury was also outstanding with 15 assists to help lead Shawsheen to the win.

"Taylor and Kelsey have played a lot together before and they work together very well," Flynn said. "Taylor really takes charge on defense for us. Also one of the things that does not show up in that stats is how much ground she covers back there for us."

The Lady Rams other win this season came in their season opener against Northeast with another 3-1 win (25-21, 26-24, 21-25, 25-14).

Sophomore Jess Vitale of Tewksbury had ten service points and four kills in the game, while Simas added ten assists. Vitale has been playing very well for Shawsheen as has another newcomer, junior Stephanie Champoux of Tewksbury.

"Jess has stepped up very well for us so far. She played very well in the Northeast match," Flynn said. "Stephanie has been a very pleasant addition to the team for us. She has worked herself right into the rotation."

The strong start to the season has not really surprised Flynn despite all the new players on the team. While their approach early in the season has been a little different t than in year past, the expectations remain high.

"I feel like we can have a good season. We have a pretty strong sophomore and junior class," Flynn said. "We are still experimenting a little with some of those players and we are mixing and matching much more than in the past, but the kids understand there is still an open competition and so far they are responding well to it."

Golf

The Shawsheen golf team is off to another spectacular start as they aim for their seventh straight league title, as they are off to a 5-0 start this season. This past week the Rams posted wins over Keefe Tech on Thursday, Assabet on Friday and Worcester Tech on Monday, and the Rams were hardly tested in any of the contests.

In the Rams 143-190 win over Colonial Athletic League rival Keefe Tech they were led by a pair of outstanding performances, as seniors Stephen Murphy and Spencer Sawicki each shot a 1-under par 34 to share top medalist honors.

Fellow seniors Dave Johnson and Chris Clayton were also outstanding for the Rams with Johnson firing a 37 and Clayton contributing an impressive 38.

Shawsheen came right back the next day and dominated Assabet on the road by a score of 158-195.

This time it was Chris Clayton and Chris Newcomb leading the way, each shooting a 39, while Murphy and Sawicki each fired a 40.

In their most recent match on Monday, the Rams once again rolled to victory, this time by a score of 158-191 over Worcester Tech at Green Hill Country Club in Worcester.

Murphy was the overall medalist with a score of 37, while Sawicki followed close behind with a 38. Newcomb fired a 41, while Remy Fletcher pitched in with a 42.

Truck Show in Burlington on Sunday

"Backhoe gene" afflicts Maguire

By GORDON VINCENT

In construction parlance, it's known as the "backhoe gene." And those who have it are aware of it at a very early age.

For Woburn's Kevin Maguire, evidence of the backhoe gene emerged when he was just 5 or 6 years old. Maguire, who now operates his own construction business, remembers Route 93 being built during his formative days and being enthralled by watching the trucks.

"My father took me over, and I remember recognizing a Cat DW 21 scraper from a picture I saw in a magazine," said Maguire. "He couldn't believe I was able to recognize it. I remember I was so excited I had shortness of breath."

Maguire is a member of the Northeast RockBusters, a group of construction equipment aficionados affiliated with the Historical Construction Equipment Association (HCEA), a national agency based in Bowling Green, Ohio, of about 4,500 like-minded people with the "backhoe gene."

The Northeast RockBusters, which with about 500 members is the largest HCEA chapter in the country, will participate in the Burlington Truck Show on Sunday (9 a.m. to 3 p.m.).

On any given weekend,

KEVIN MAGUIRE OF WOBURN mans the controls of the 1970's vintage Caterpillar D40. With him is Northeast RockBusters Association President Sam Sicchio. While below Northeast RockBusters Chapter of the Historical Construction Equipment Association members Sam Sicchio (l) and Woburn's Kevin Maguire look over an antique piece of equipment.

there are as many as five equipment shows in the region, which includes New England and New York, where there is a Northeast RockBusters presence. There is also an annual HCEA exposition and convention, which last year was held in Richmond, R.I., and hosted by the Northeast RockBusters.

The event drew machines from around the country and beyond.

Sam Sicchio, President of the Northeast RockBusters, acknowledges the existence of the backhoe gene and like Maguire says he was also afflicted at a very early age.

"I grew up in the Route 9/Route 128 area, and I remember Route 128 being built," said Sicchio, a native of Wellesley who now lives in neighboring Natick.

"I was fascinated with it," added Sicchio, who later went to Wentworth Institute, became a civil engineer and worked in the construction business with his brother.

Maguire also entered the construction business, first working for Joe Borselli before hanging out his own shingle. Maguire is well-known throughout the city not only for his work but also his involvement with the city's License Commission, on which he served for many years.

Maguire's truck was also familiar throughout the city for its unusual lettering of the company name and an "&

Middlesex East is sponsoring a region-wide photo contest during the months of September and October to find some of the most original and creative photos from local residents.

People are encouraged to enter both print and e-mail photos which will be judged by a select group of judges with prizes going to the first three winners.

Last year the contest was restricted to the Reading Edition of the Daily Times Chronicle but it was so successful, the decision was made to expand it to the ten towns.

Homers for Hiltzy Jr. Home Run Derby

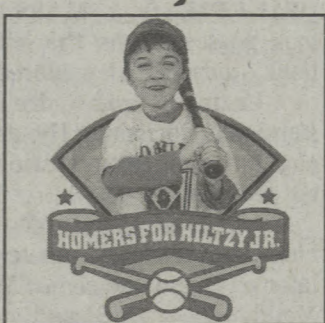

The Men's Night Baseball league is organizing the 2nd Annual Homers for Hiltzy Jr. Home Run Derby on Saturday, September 24 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

This annual event is held in honor of Brian Hiltzy Jr. who died in a tragic choking accident last year. Brian Jr. was just six years old. Last year's event rose close to $15,000 for the Hiltzy family and Make-A-Wish Foundation. Each year the MNBL will partner with a different charity. This year's charity of choice is the Jimmy Fund.

The main event is the Home Run Derby and is expected to have close to 100 participants. A new addition this year will be a speed pitch competition.

All ages are encourage to participate. Bring the kids as there will be a bouncy house and face painting.

There will be a drawing for Red Sox playoff and Bruins tickets, as well as many other items such as weekend get-aways and a 42" HDTV. Food will be available for purchase throughout the day.

The home run derby carries an entry fee of $20 for adults and $10 for children 12 years old and under. The speed pitch is $5 for three throws in which everyone will get a prize. In each event the participants will be broken out into separate divisions with prizes awarded to each division winner.

Sponsorship opportunities exist at many levels including $200 for a 4 x 2 banner hung at the event and $100 to get your business name on the event t-shirt.

Email info@hfhjr.com for more information or log on to www.hfhjr.com.

The Burlington Planning Board has opened a hearing on a proposal to put in a full-service restaurant at 1 New England Executive Park on Mall Road.

According to the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle," Tavern in the Square is looking to move into the park as part of the Planned Development District approved for much of the park property.

"Attorney Mark Vaughan of the local firm of Riemer & Braunstein, representing New England Executive Park, LLC, confirmed that the proposal would consist of a 3,000 square-foot addition to the building," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle." He noted that there would be 314 total seats, including 60 seats for outdoor seasonal patio sitting room.

"Tavern in the Square is described as a neighborhood restaurant and bar that focuses on atmosphere and reasonable prices. It is part of chain that currently has locations which include Cambridge, Allston, and Salem.

"There is a broad range of foods served at the restaurant, including classics like nachos, burgers, fish n' chips, as well as innovative dishes such as risotto fritters, pistachio encrusted tuna salad, walnut encrusted salmon and steak frites.

"Planning Director Tony Fields said as proposed, there would be 281 parking spots allocated for the restaurant located at 1 New England Executive Park, additionally noting that there would be 74,000 square-feet of office space left in the building as the restaurant would only be on the ground-level...

"The Planning Board commented favorably on the proposal. Board member Jane Hyde stated the restaurant would be a 'great addition' to the park ...

"If this proposal goes through, it would be the first full-service restaurant in the New England Executive Park. Rebecca's Café' is currently the only food venue in the park, but that establishment is more of a 'fast in-and-out' type of place, said Vaughan, noting the Café' has breakfast, lunch, and catering ...

"The Planning Board voted unanimously to continue the matter to its meeting on Sept. 15."

NOT QUITE THE TAVERN (WOBBURN)

"The saga of Waxy O'Connor's Irish Pub restaurant in the old Spud's Restaurant & Bar off Montvale Avenue in East Woburn continues," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The new restaurant is located just off I-93.

"Located at 1 Mack Road, the owners of Home Fries Inc. dba Spud's Restaurant & Pub were given another month and to report again by the Woburn License Commission at their last meeting.

"Attorney Michael Milazzo of New Haven, Connecticut has represented the petitioners over six months to give the commission an update.

"The restaurant is located in the Best Western Hotel.

"In July, Atty. Milazzo filed the petition, the fee, lease and floor plans and said it was all set to 'get underway'...

"Members of the Woburn License Commission, however, noted it's all going to take some time to fruition"

... the hotel owners wanted to transfer the license and had several prospective tenants, including Waxy O'Connors. Margarita's had been mentioned as another name. Technically, Spud's Restaurant & Bar was owned by Homes Fries Inc.

"Waxy O'Connor's opened with great fanfare in Lexington at 94 Hartwell Avenue last December. The site, near the east entrance of the Hanscom Air Force Base, was formerly Palio's Italian Grill but more well-known over the years as the Hartwell House"

SENIORS CENTRAL (WILMINGTON)

"A key part of the Elder Service Department is our Buzzell Senior Center," note the seniors themselves.

"The center has an environment that is not only inviting, but also safe and enjoyable for elderly residents to be able to communicate with their peers and participate in many daily classes and activities. There are approximately 1,300 elder visits a month for participation in Senior Center programs.

"The Senior Center plays an active role in matching people interested in volunteer work, balancing talents and real community needs...."

The partial list of senior volunteer activities includes: event organization, visitor outreach, classes, medical escorts, kitchen service, shopping assistance, organizing, and coordinating. For more information, call 978-657-7595.

"About the Towns" covers recent events in the 10-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper or look on line for up-to-date information about your city or town.

We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About the Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867 or to schooltowns@comcast.net.

PATRIOTS WRITERS DISCUSS THEIR BOOKS

Visit the Tewksbury Public Library on Wednesday nights to hear from some of the state's best and brightest New England Patriots writers.

On Wednesday, September 14 at 6:30pm, Bob Hyldburg will be discussing his latest book - Total Patriots: The Definitive Encyclopedia of the World-Class Franchise. About the Book: "Total Patriots delves into the rich history of New England's favorite team with an unparalleled enthusiasm for the statistics and stories that comprise one of the most respected franchise in professional sports.

On Wednesday, September 21 at 6:30pm, Michael A. King will be discussing his latest book - Patriots Passion: From Day One. About the Book: "Patriots Passion is a one-of-a-kind publication that covers a half-century of New England/Boston Patriots football history, with over 1,000 anecdotes, facts, tidbits and trivia of never before recalled Patriots moments. Sure to make you the smartest Patriots fan in the room!"

On Wednesday, September 28 at 6:30pm, Sean Glennon will be discussing his latest book - Game Changers: The Greatest Plays in New England Patriots History. About the Book: "Game Changers is about the big moments that have separated triumph and tragedy, the times when one play - one great cut, one lucky grab, one missed tackle - altered the course of a game, a season, even an entire era in franchise history.

JOB SEEKERS NETWORK AT TEWKSBURY LIBRARY

Are you one of the hundreds of thousands of Massachusetts residents who are unemployed? Do you know someone who is underemployed or who has simply given up looking for work in today's job market? The Tewksbury Public Library is here to help.

Every first and third Tuesday afternoon of the month, the Tewksbury Public Library invites job seekers to gather in the Meeting Room to network with others, learn about the library's resources, and hear from guests speakers on the topics of interest to the group.

On Tuesday, September 20 at 2 p.m. Lisa Adams will present "Finding Your Job Target." Job search strategist and career management coach Lisa Adams presents a lively and fun workshop about how to determine your right job target. Pre-registration is strongly recommended and is limited. •MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA:

Who is the all-time Boston Bruins leader in total career points with 1506?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•Sophomore M Daniel Galvin (Attleboro, Mass.) set up two goals and sophomore G Chris Maierle (Wantagh, N.Y.) stopped a penalty kick to lead UMass Lowell to a 4-0 triumph over Merrimack College, 4-0, Wednesday night in the Northeast-10 Conference opener at Warrior Field.

With the win, UMass Lowell improved to 1-1 overall and 1-0 in the NE-10 entering Saturday's clash at Bridgeport (1:00). Merrimack slipped to 1-1-1 and hosts Wilmington Saturday at 4:00.

Two River Hawks - freshmen Homero Morais (Somerville, Mass.) and ERIC DESANTIS (WOBURN, MASS.) - opened the college accounts while Maierle, sophomore Bruno Bonicentro (Marlborough, Mass.) and SENIOR F MOHAMMED SAEED (WOBURN, MASS.), who scored on a bicycle kick in the 61st minute, provided the highlights.

"We needed a fast start the way we did in our last game (at Dowling, a 2-1 loss) and to keep the pressure on," said head coach Christian Figueroa. "We defended very well, especially in the early going when Merrimack was coming after us. We tried to identify Merrimack's strengths and we did that very well."

Morais opened the scoring in the fifth minute when Galvin possessed on the left flank and struck a low hard cross to Morais on the run, who tapped home inside the near post.

UMass Lowell maintained the pressure and it paid off in the 15th minute. A failed clearance went to Galvin, who volleyed from the left side back into the box to Bonicentro, whose side volley soared inside the left post.

Merrimack had a golden chance to cut the lead in half in the 20th minute when Galvin was whistled for a handball in the box. Senior M Evan Burokas drilled his attempt inside the left post, but Maierle guessed right to tip the ball wide and clear.

"It was a good penalty kick, taken real hard," Figueroa noted. "But Chris knew which way he was going. He made a great save."

As Bonicentro's goal was highlight reel, Saeed's was one for the ages. Following a scramble in the 61st minute, freshman D Juan Moreira (Leominster, Mass.) headed back into the box where an unmarked Saeed and caught the Warriors by surprise.

DeSantis capped the scoring five minutes later when he won a ball on the right side, penetrated, cut inside between two defenders and slotted inside the left post.

Merrimack had the better of possession, evidenced by 17-11 edge on shots (6-5 on target) and an 11-3 advantage on corner kicks.

Maierle stopped five shots before being replaced in the 77th minute by sophomore Connor Askins (Boston, Mass.), who went untested. Sophomore Matthias Drummond and senior Evan Berube and each had one save for Merrimack.

•The UMass Lowell Athletic Hall of Fame will welcome five new members to its prestigious ranks on Friday, Sept. 30 as part of its Dream of Perfect Games Celebration of Sport at the Inn & Conference Center in downtown Lowell.

The class of 2011 features athletes whose accomplishments helped raise the bar for future River Hawks with both outstanding individual and team success. The inductees include FORMER FOOTBALL PLAYER TOM BRADLEY ('98, TEWKSBURY, MASS.), a standout wide receiver and punt returner from 1989-93, and baseball's Ryan Kearney ('98, Salem, N.H.), a top-notch pitcher who led the River Hawks to three NCAA Tournaments from 1994-98.

They will be joined by Becky Regula ('02, Hudson, N.H.), softball's speedy outfielder from 1999-02 who helped set the school record wins as a freshman; Patrick Morasse ('06, Lowell, Mass.), a five-time All-American runner from 2002-06; and two-sport standout Julie Handy Drinkwater ('06, Yorba Linda, Calif.), a star for both the volleyball and track and field programs from 2002-06.

Members of the class of 2011 will be honored in the Dream of Perfect Games ceremony beginning at 6:30 p.m. Tickets cost $30 per person and can be purchased at the Athletic Business Office in the Costello Athletic Center; or by calling 978-934-2345. More information on the Athletic Hall of Fame is available at www.goriverhawks.com.

TOM BRADLEY (FOOTBALL, 1989-93)

A star wide receiver and feared punt returner, Tom Bradley led the River Hawks to a 31-7-1 record from 1989-93. Upon his graduation, Bradley held or had tied 11 school records, all of which still stand today.

UMass Lowell football was revered during Bradley's tenure, having lost just three games his first three seasons and culminating in a 10-1 record in 1991 and an appearance in the NCAA Tournament.

Bradley finished his career with 2,627 receiving yards and 23 touchdowns. Among his many records, he set new highs for passes caught in a season (59) and career (163), longest reception (83 yards) and most yards on punt returns in a season (221).

"Thomas was perhaps the most electrifying game-breaker ever to embrace the gridiron at UMass Lowell," said Dennis Scannell, who served as head coach from 1986-92. "He could singlehandedly turn a contest around whenever he touched a football."

"I was very excited when Thomas and many other all-scholastic players decided to enroll at UMass Lowell," Scannell added. "His class was the beginning of a very special era for the football program."

A recipient of numerous individual honors, Bradley was a two-time New England Football Conference All-Star and a Football Gazette All-American Honorable Mention in 1991.

When the River Hawks moved to the Freedom Football Conference during his senior year, Bradley proceeded to lead the league in receptions per game (6.6), total receptions (59), receiving yards (893) and receiving touchdowns (5). He was honored as a FFC First Team All-Star.

"Thomas's entire family, especially his grandmother, led an entourage of the most loyal and enthusiastic fans who attended every game," Scannell added. "It is most rewarding that he has spent his entire adult life as a role model for youth involved with athletics in his hometown of Tewksbury."

Bradley completed his degree in history in 1998 and is currently a captain with the Middlesex County Sheriff's Department. He and his wife Alison live in Tewksbury, Mass. with their four children: Lindsay (21), Rachel (12), Thomas (9) and Timmy (5).

•Senior M Amy Cramer (Marlborough, Mass.) and freshman F Brittany Russo (Danvers, Mass.) scored goals six minutes apart in the second half as UMass Lowell defeated Bentley University, 2-0, Tuesday night in a Northeast-10 Conference women's soccer clash at Cushing Field.

With the win, UMass Lowell improved to 2-1 overall and 1-0 in the NE-10 entering Friday night's match at No. 1 Saint Rose (5:00). Bentley slipped to 1-1 overall and 0-1 in the Conference and visits Le Moyne Friday at 3:00.

Cramer broke the deadlock in the 67th minute when JUNIOR F JULIA D O N I G I A N

The River Hawks doubled their lead six minutes later as Russo and senior M Maddy Bissaillon (Merrimack, Mass.) combined for the second time in three matches. Bissaillon sent a through-ball into the box, which was mishandled by Hynds, allowing Russo to tap in.

UMass Lowell outshot the Falcons 19-7 overall and 10-4 on frame. Hynds had eight saves for Bentley while freshman Jane Hatzikonstantis (Tewksbury, Mass.) stopped four shots en route to her second clean sheet in as many matches.

Both teams had opportunities to convert, particularly early in the match. In the first minute, Bissaillon steered a loose ball on the top right corner of the box just over the crossbar.

In the seventh minute, Bissaillon fed junior F Keanna Santos (Lakeville, Mass.) streaking down the right side of the box, but her attempt caromed off the near post.

Junior Lauren Muise threatened several times throughout the first half, her best opportunity in the 11th minute when she went one-on-one with Hatzikonstantis, who parried the shot right. Muise picked up the rebound, but Hatzikonstantis snuffed the second attempt.

In the 52nd minute, sophomore M Patti McAllister nearly gave Bentley the lead when she sidefooted from the top of the box over Hatzikonstantis, only to be denied by the crossbar.

•ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: At nearly a point per game pace from the blue line over his 1518 regular season games with the Bruins, the mark for most total career points also goes to Ray Bourque. The fact that Bourque was a defenseman makes this team record all the more impressive.

daughter," on the door. Maguire's daughter, Michelle, was never heavily-involved in the company, but he thought of it as a great tribute.

"I thought she'd get a kick out of it," said Maguire, who has since changed the phrasing on the truck to "& granddaughters" to honor Michelle's two girls, ages 10 and 3.

When Maguire's older granddaughter was younger, she developed an affinity for an Oliver sidewalk tractor (roughly similar to the Bombardiers most communities use today) that Maguire used to bring to shows.

"She was very proud of her grandfather's machine," said a beaming Maguire. "She'd always tell me 'Don't sell the Ollie.' She'd just get a big thrill out of telling people 'This is my grandfather's truck.'"

Maguire and Sicchio share a keen interest for historical pieces of equipment. Maguire owns a 1977 Cat bulldozer in which he has invested $20,000, and a 1968 grader that he will bring to this weekend's event in Burlington.

"To me, collecting antique equipment is like a baseball fan catching a Ted Williams ball," said Maguire. "There are people who like to play golf. I like construction equipment. This is my hobby."

The RockBusters have a keen interest in preserving anything related to antique equipment. One of their mottos is "Don't Trash Our History," an appeal to the public for any kind of sales literature, trade publications, photographs, repair and operation manuals and advertising items that are equipment- or truck-related.

Because of mergers, downsizing consolidations or cleaning, much of this historical material is being thrown out.

Anyone with access to historical documents about construction equipment is urged to contact Sicchio at 508-651-0125 or via e-mail at ssicchio@yahoo.com.

All of the RockBusters' efforts are designed to pass along the backhoe gene. Maguire is reminded of a recent show in Rhode Island where a young boy became enamored of a particular piece of construction equipment, just like Maguire did when he was young and his father took him to the Route 93 construction site.

"He just latched onto a table and didn't want to leave," said Maguire. "There are a lot of people who have a love for construction equipment, and there's no doubt in my mind that in a few years that kid is going to be one of them."

"I honestly think we'll be around for a long, long time," said Maguire. "When people tend to get older, they tend to want a little more time for themselves to work on their hobbies."

Kevin Maguire is currently looking for photos of old and/or antique equipment. Maguire can be reached at 781-933-4119.

Stoneham moves forward with $37.5M middle school addition

BY PAT BLAIS

Local officials in Stoneham recently sent a package to the Mass. School Building Authority (MSBA) seeking partial funding for an 82,000 square foot addition to the Central School that will cost between $37.5 and $39 million.

Wrapping-up the municipality's part in the so-called "feasibility study", members of the town's School Building Committee concluded that expanding the Pomeworth Street facility is the best option for replacing the antiquated middle school on Central Street.

The comprehensive package, which includes the town's rationale for shifting to a grade 5 through 8 middle school model from the existing grade 6 through 8 program, was submitted last Friday to the MSBA.

"It's an initial education plan and preliminary architectural sketches. It's not going to be a separate building," said Selectman Paul Rotondi, also a Building Committee member, of the proposal to connect the 82,000 square foot addition to the 55,000 square foot Central School.

"That completes the feasibility study," said Schools Supt. Dr. Les Olson of the submission. "It's a summation of the site studies we went through and conceptual designs of the floor plans."

The MSBA, which in 2004 replaced the old School Building Assistance program under the former state dept. of education, could provide more than half of the funding for the middle school project.

Previously, the MSBA had declared that repairing the Central Street building was the best option for Stoneham, but last June, state officials agreed that the town should be allowed to explore other options.

According to Olson, with Stoneham's elementary school enrollments shrinking, the town has an opportunity to shift its education program to an entirely different format.

Though the grades 9-12 high school program would remain unchanged, the new middle school would accept students in grades 5 through 8, while the remaining elementary schools would shift to a K-4 model.

The School Committee may also consider another alternative, where kindergarten students are taught in one central location, while grades 1 through 4 pupils are sent to the remaining buildings.

To reflect those changes in population, the new middle school will actually be about 33,000 square feet smaller than the existing Central Street building.

According to Olson, though town officials tried to argue for some additional classroom space - to account for the future Langwood Commons project and the closure of the Our Ladies Of Nazareth Academy in Wakefield - the state guidelines for enrollment projections don't allow for such allowances.

"The way the MSBA is working now, they provide very strict enrollment guidelines. The state will not allow us to make any assumptions about what may be taking place [at the BRMC]," the superintendent explained.

Despite those rules, Olson is confident the middle school proposal, which would have about 40 classrooms and the capacity to house about 785 students, is more than sufficient to meet Stoneham's needs.

"The number of spaces match what we have now, so it should be adequate for the program we've designed."

Moving forward

Last Friday's submittal is part of a five-stage process with the state that town officials hope will culminate with the passage of debt exclusion override to fund the middle school construction during April's upcoming municipal elections.

According to Olson and Rotondi, before town officials take the step of putting the question on the ballot, the MSBA's Board of Directors must first sanction the Building Committee's feasibility study submission - a vote tentatively scheduled for next month.

If approved, the process would then move into the so-called "schematic design" phase, during which the budget, construction schedule, and project scope would be finalized. "They would come ack and say, 'Yes, we'll approve it.' Then we'll get into the real technical stuff," Rotondi explained.

At the end of January, the Building Committee intends to enter into a project scope and budget agreement with the MSBA, which would outline the final cost of the project, as well as detail how many reimbursement dollars Stoneham stands to receive. Once that deal is inked, town officials have 120 days to secure the funding for the new middle school.

According to Olson, that local process could possibly entail the convening of a Special Town Meeting in February to obtain the assembly's okay. Citizens would then need to approve the debt exclusion a few months later.

In Her Voice: Jacqueline Kennedy The White House Years

On September 14, 2011, the Museum at the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library will unveil a special new exhibit, In Her Voice: Jacqueline Kennedy, The White House Years. The exhibit presents excerpts from Mrs. Kennedy's 1964 oral history in combination with iconic treasures from the Kennedy Library's collection that chronicle the moments and events described by the former First Lady.

In the spring of 1964, Jacqueline Kennedy recorded a series of interviews with Pulitzer Prize-winning historian and former Special Assistant to the President, Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. The tapes, held on deposit at the Kennedy Library, remained strictly sealed since then in accordance with Mrs. Kennedy's wishes. The oral history is being shared this year as part of the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Kennedy Presidency.

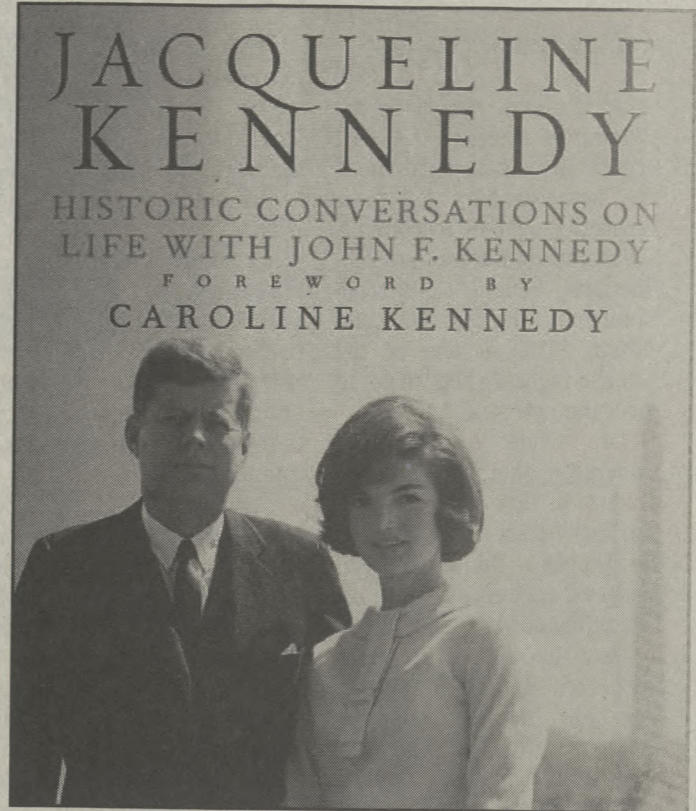

In the conversations highlighted in the exhibit, Mrs. Kennedy chronicles the details of domestic life with her husband and children inside the White House, and shares her insights into the milestone events of the Cold War that she witnessed at close range.

Featuring the words of Mrs. Kennedy alongside original documents, photographs, and artifacts from the collections of the Kennedy Library, this unique presentation sheds new light both on the great events and personalities of the 20th century, as well as on the extraordinary insights of the woman describing them.

In Her Voice: Jacqueline Kennedy, The White House Years will remain open through 2012.

Jacqueline Kennedy: Historic Conversations on Life with John F. Kennedy

The opening of In Her Voice: Jacqueline Kennedy, The White House Years coincides with the publication of these never-before-heard interviews with Mrs. Kennedy as a book and audio set titled Jacqueline Kennedy: Historic Conversations on Life with John F. Kennedy. The book features a forward by Caroline Kennedy and an introduction and annotations by renowned presidential historian Michael Beschloss.

ABC News will present a two-hour prime time special on Mrs. Kennedy's newly released oral history on Tuesday, September 13 at 9:00 pm ET.

Jacqueline Kennedy: Historic Conversations on Life with John F. Kennedy will be available for purchase at the JFK Museum Store when it is released on September 14, 2011.

Book Signing with Caroline Kennedy

The public is invited to a book signing with Caroline Kennedy at the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library in Boston on September 19, 2011 at 7:00pm. Reservations for the book signing are not necessary. Click here for Caroline Kennedy's full tour schedule.

Reading Rotary Club to hold 12th auction

READING - The Reading Rotary Club will hold its 12th annual Auction on Saturday evening October 1st. This marks a change from past years when it was held in the Spring.

This year it will again be held at the Austin Prep Field House off Willow St. (on the left as you go into the school). Always a huge success, there will be close to 100 items available in both a "silent" and a "live" auction format.

Probably the two funniest men in Reading, Steve Chuha and John Douglass will act as auctioneers and if you haven't seen them, you've missed an hilarious act. They have fun and they are funny; this is their only stand-up performance all year.

The general public is invited to attend with the silent auction starting at 6:00 pm. There will be a tremendous amount of food served during the evening. There will also be a cash bar and raffle prizes.

Proceeds from the event helps the Reading Rotary deliver on their commitments to serve the Reading Community. Some of these worthy causes include providing scholarships for the Reading Scholarship Foundation, the purchase of the Peter Sanborn Place van, supporting the Reading Adopt A Family Program, supporting The Kevin McCarthy RMHS 9/11 Memorial Fund, several Reading School projects like distributing Arbor Day trees and dictionaries/thesauruses and many other Rotary projects.

Tickets for the event are $20 and are available at the Burbank YMCA, Davis, Clark & Latham Insurance and the Reading Chronicle as well as from Reading Rotary members.

There's something for everyone. It is just a fun filled evening with a ton of laughs and lots of great bid items.

Over the next several weeks a full list of auction items will be published.

Educating the educators in Reading

BY BARBARA JONES

At the most recent School Committee meeting, the local school principals introduced the new teachers for their respective schools to committee members. Before the introductions, School Committee Chairman Charles Robinson stated, "This is one of my favorite nights, when we get to meet the new staff."

Dr. Doherty told the Committee that a significant amount of time was spent on staffing issues this summer. He thanked the principals, assistant principals and all others involved.

Over 100 new staff members were hired this summer. The new hires included 30 teachers and 75 substitute teachers. Dr. Doherty is very excited about what the new teachers will bring to the District. He said, "They are young, energetic and smart." Also included in these numbers is the new Assistant Principal for Parker School, Beth Beaulieu, and Kathleen Santilli, who is the new Elementary School Instructional Technologist.

The new teachers were able to take advantage of the Reading Institute for New Teachers. This is a five day comprehensive program which is unique to the Reading school district. The teachers reported that they really appreciated the program.

In addition to the instruction, overview and introductions, this program provided a bonding opportunity for the new teachers. An orientation on a smaller scale is being developed for the new substitute teachers.

School Committee member Lisa Gibbs applauded the orientation program. She said, "It is a great and extraordinary experience. It promotes camaraderie."

Assistant Superintendent of Schools Patty de Garavilla reported to the group on the professional development that current teaching staff took advantage of during the summer.

They worked on Bullying Prevention, Open Circle Training, Smart Board Training and Math Common Core Standards. They also participated in Report Card Training, as teachers will be doing all grading and reporting electronically. At the high school level the teachers learned about expanded project bases learning and were trained on cyber-bullying which will be a point of focus in the new school year.

Dr. Doherty said last Monday was opening day for teachers. It started with a kick-off meeting with all staff.

National college savings month reminds parents

Setting goals is often the first step to achieving your hopes and dreams for yourself and your family. Making a plan, however, is crucial to making those dreams a reality. This is especially true when it comes to a college education for your children. Starting a college savings plan when your children are young sets you on a path for success and can help you reduce the need for expensive student loans down the road. Establishing a college savings plan early and contributing to it often is the key to reducing, or even eliminating, student loan debt. According to the Project on Student Loan Debt, the average student-loan debt increased 24 percent to $23,200 in 2008, up from $18,650 in 2004.

In an effort to raise awareness about the need to save for educational expenses, the College Savings Plan Network and more than 40 states recognize September as National College Savings Month, an important reminder to parents, grandparents, friends and family members that they can do something about the amount of student loan debt their children acquire.

According to FinAid.org, parents who put aside just $50 per month from the time their child is born can grow a nest egg of more than $20,000 by the time that child turns 18, assuming a 7 percent return on investment. Increasing those contributions to $100 per month can yield more than $43,000.

While there are a number of college savings vehicles to choose from, savers should keep in mind that a 529 plan is a tax-free and, in some cases, state tax-deductible college savings option. Operated by a state or educational institution, a 529 plan is an education savings plan designed to provide families with an easy way to save. Most offer online enrollment with minimal initial investment, as low as $25.

Additionally, contributions can be made by more than just a child's parents. Anyone can contribute to an account or open one on behalf of a child.

Many states offer a 529 plan and each state's plan is different. Morningstar, a leading provider of investment research, rates the various plans and is one of many resources to consult when selecting a 529 plan. Others include SavingForCollege.com and CollegeSavings.org.

An example of a top-rated Morningstar 529 plan is CollegeAdvantage, Ohio's college savings plan managed by Ohio Tuition Trust Authority. Account owners can contribute to a CollegeAdvantage account for as little as $25 and accounts are available to any U.S. resident. Investing just $25 per month in a CollegeAdvantage account with a 6 percent interest rate will result in nearly $9,000 in college savings after 18 years. CollegeAdvantage funds can be used at any college in the country to pay for tuition, fees, room and board as well as books. For more information about CollegeAdvantage, or to start saving with Ohio's 529 plan today, visit www.collegeadvantage.com.

"Saving with a 529 plan offers parents, friends and family members an affordable and attainable way to save for their loved one's future college expenses," said Richard Norman, interim executive director of Ohio Tuition Trust Authority. "With a minimal investment of $25, individuals can open a CollegeAdvantage account and begin saving immediately."

Austin Prep. Craft Fair set for September 24th

READING - The arrival of fall means pumpkins, colorful leaves and the annual Friends of Austin Craft & Gift Festival at Austin Preparatory School.

More than 70 vendors will be selling a variety of wares - including jewelry, cards, home décor items, handbags, gift baskets, and many other goods. The fair also features bake & flower sales and raffle prizes.

The fair will take place September 24th from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The event is organized by the Friends of Austin, a volunteer parent group, and serves as a fundraiser for the school. All proceeds benefit Austin Prep.

Admission is $3 and parking is free. Questions may be directed to Julianne Bloise, manager of public relations, at 781-944-4900 ext. 849 or jbloise@austinprepschool.org.

Austin Preparatory School is a Catholic, co-educational, college preparatory school. Located in Reading, Mass., Austin Prep educates 700 students, with 200 of those enrolled in Middle School (grades 6 to 8) and 500 enrolled in High School (grades 9 to 12). The student body is geographically diverse, arriving from more than 55 cities and towns throughout Northeastern Massachusetts and Southern New Hampshire.

Administrative Assistant to the Campus Director
Burlington, MA Campus
Become part of a vibrant community of world-class professionals transforming the lives of a motivated and diverse student population. A pioneer in innovative academic programs since 1897 and one of the fastest growing colleges in New England, Bay Path College is seeking an Administrative Assistant to the Campus Director.
This full-time, Tuesday through Saturday position, serves as first point of contact on the telephone and in-person and is responsible for assisting in the development of administrative infrastructure and support for Campus operations across academic programs. Position provides the Director, staff and faculty with administrative and general office and technology support.
Qualifications: Associate's degree in related field or combination of education and experience required. Four (4) years administrative assistant experience in higher education setting preferred. Must have excellent interpersonal, customer service and organizational skills with the ability to solve problems and work with confidential materials with discretion. Strong oral and written communication skills along with advanced proficiency with Microsoft Word, Excel and PowerPoint necessary. Position requires a valid driver's license and ability to travel to other campus locations and work some evenings and Sunday's when needed.
Applicants for this position should submit a cover letter outlining salary requirements, resume and contact information for four professional references. All applications should be sent electronically in MS Word format to hr@baypath.edu. Application deadline is September 26, 2011.
An equal opportunity employer, Bay Path College is committed to fostering diversity in its student body, faculty, and staff.

Middlesex East Real Estate

Home From S-10

Counters and cupboards run along two walls of the kitchen, creating a tight, step-saving quadrangle that links the sink, range, refrigerator and work island. The work island provides more of both counters and storage cabinets, and is rimmed by a raised eating bar.

Right around the corner is a roomy walk-in closet/pantry. It sits at the juncture of the secondary bedrooms and main bathroom. Storage shelves in a triangular alcove just inside the bathroom can hold plenty of sheets and fluffy towels.

The comfortable owners' suite is off in a wing by itself, well isolated from the other bedrooms. But it's not entirely alone. A large utility room, with cabinets and a wide counter, feeds off of the same short hallway, as does a direct access door to the Camas' two-car garage.

This Week's SamplerCompact Camas has large gathering space

The Camas makes an ideal starter home, but might be equally attractive to retirees wishing to minimize their home care responsibilities. Its compact size makes it economical to build and maintain. Classic Craftsman features set it apart from most other contemporary ranch-style homes.

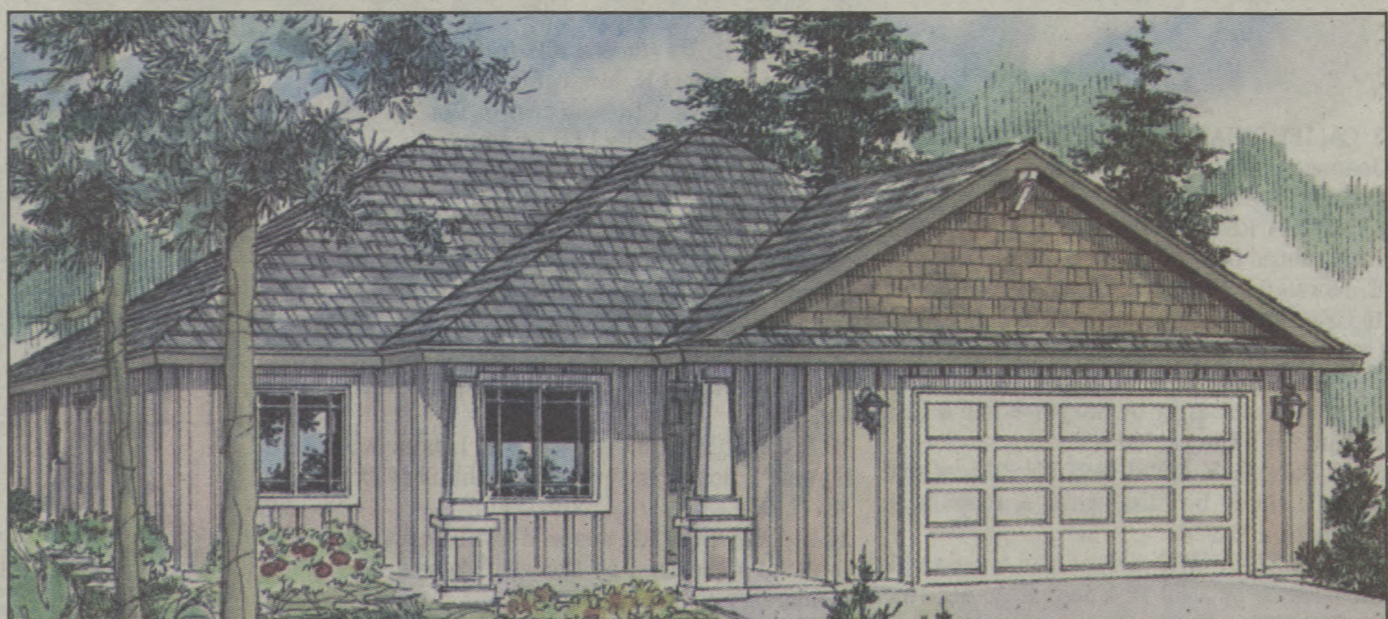

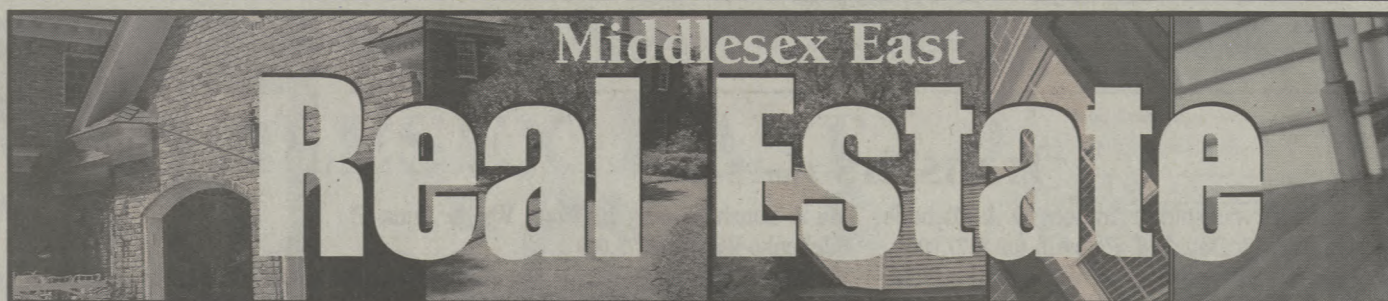

Shake-textured shingles add visual appeal to the framed-out bases beneath tapered porch supports. Eye-catching Craftsman windows add more interest, as does the grid-paneled garage door. Shake-textured shingles, also fill the front gable that spans the garage and entry. A decorative gable end accents the apex.

A lengthy foyer leads past the coat closet and into a large open gathering space at the rear. The living room, dining room and kitchen flow together there, and natural light spills into the entire space through two wide windows. A rectangular bay expands the dining area, which offers easy access to the partially covered patio.

Woburn hopes to make a run for it with Ortiz

By STEVE ALGERI

WOBURN — Seemingly coming from nowhere a season ago, Chucky Ortiz quickly etched himself in the annals of Woburn High football history as one of its more explosive ball carrying threats ever.

The slightly built 5-9, 160-pounder, blazed his way to 1,243 yards rushing for an 8.6 per carry average with 19 touchdowns.

Ortiz scored his TDs in a variety of different ways. He rushed for 11 of them, caught four TD passes, returned two punts for scores and one kickoff return “to the house.”

Oh, and he electrified everyone in attendance on a late October night in Melrose when he returned an interception officially 100 yards for a touchdown. In reality, it was more like 103 or 104 yards, but somehow college and high schools only count yardage goal line to goal line.

Ortiz’ interception return set a new school record, breaking the old standard of 95 yards by James Connolly held since 1918, who is the same guy they named the football field after in Woburn.

So does that mean Chucky Ortiz’ name now goes on the field now? Just a thought.

“He is really a threat to go the distance every time he touches the football,” said Woburn High coach Rocky Nelson. “He usually does not get caught from behind and we have to get him to the second level. We have been working on that in practice and will continue to work on it.”

It was quite apparent early-on that Woburn’s opening night opponent, Acton-Boxborough, would not kick deep to him. And why would teams?

A year ago Ortiz averaged 32.8 yards on punt returns and a near identical 32.3 on kickoff returns.

“I have a feeling team won’t kick deep to him this year,” said Nelson. “What he did last year was incredible. He was our top rusher and top receiver, scored on special teams, and we need that kind of year from him again.”

Ortiz was a wide receiver as a sophomore with the Woburn varsity. There were a few glimpses of what he could do as a big-play threat. But, there was no indication that Ortiz, at 5-9 and a lean 160 pounds, would make the impact that he did last season as a tailback.

Running by people was never an issue with this speed burner. But, what was in doubt was his ability to run at people between the tackles, make them miss, and live to tell about it.

So far, it has been so really good.

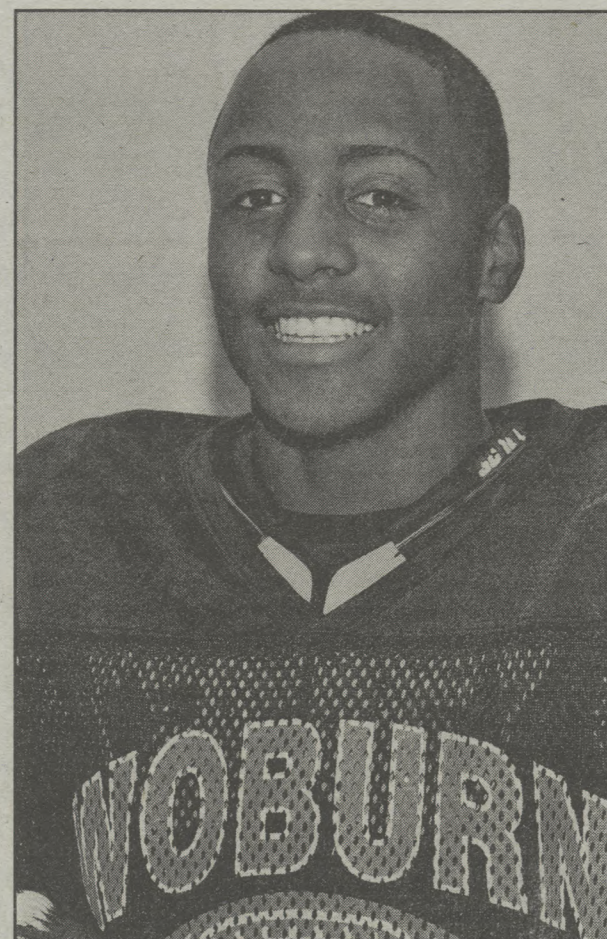

Ortiz has been quick to credit his linemen from a year ago. But, give Ortiz credit too. He has the patience to follow his blocks, instincts on when to cut and the acceleration needed to be a good running back despite a little lacking in size. He may not be a power back, but the Tanners are not afraid to give him the ball to pick up tough yardage.

He doubles as at cornerback on defense where he was among the leaders in tackles and is the leader in interceptions with five. Ortiz is a full service provider for the Tanners.

His season a year ago started with little fanfare in the opener at Acton-Boxborough. Against A-B he gained a yard rushing on five carries and caught two passes for very short yardage. There was nothing special about opening night.

The next week in Billerica that all changed. On his fourth carry of the game Ortiz broke through the line off left tackle and covered 69 yards for a touchdown. He had another sprint for 66 yards and produced a 40-yarder to help give him 211 yards on the game in 15 carries.

Since then Ortiz there has been no stopping him. He had eight 100-yard plus rushing games capped by an incredible 238 yards on 26

Love, Mom & Dad

Delorfano is Stoneham's motivator

By MIKE RUBIN

During his two years as a member of the Stoneham High varsity team, Paul Delorfano has failed to celebrate a single victory going into this season.

Now the senior tri-captain will aim to lead the Spartans on a successful rebuilding process this season on both sides of the gridiron.

Leading the ground as the primary running back last season, Delorfano rushed for a team high 500 yards while scoring three touchdowns. As an outside linebacker, he led the Spartans' defensive squad with 75 total tackles.

"He's plays the game with passion and intensity, no matter what the score is," said coach Dave Pignone. "A couple of times we were down by a few touchdowns in the second half, and he just never gives up. He's very intense, and is a true leader on and off the field. He gives it his all out there, and he leads by example. He's also a great motivator and has been one of the main contributors in our efforts in turning this program around. He just has a great overall attitude and is a pleasure to coach."

A lifelong student of the game, Delorfano participated in the Stoneham Pop Warner program during his elementary school years where he bonded with a number of current athletes and future classmates while achieving success as a tailback.

"I've always loved the game of football, and we had a lot of success in Pop Warner," said Delorfano. "Some of seniors on the team that I'm playing with now, we've been together since the Pop Warner days, and we've always made a commitment to play football in high school."

While some of his Pop Warner teammates elected to participate in the soccer program, Delorfano defied the odds and served as a dedicated member of Spartan football.

"A lot of kids when they enter high school, they quit football and they decide to play football instead," said Delorfano. "It's great that our soccer program has had a lot of success over the years, but at the same time, the numbers of the football program have been small. The past couple of years, we haven't had the depth when we've suffered injuries and it's hurt us. This year, the numbers are increasing, and now we have other guys, who have stepped up and looked pretty strong in the pre-season."

After serving his freshman year as a member of the junior varsity squad, Delorfano was elevated to varsity in his sophomore season, where he emerged as a promising starter. Rushing for 300 yards, Delorfano also registered a pair of touchdowns as the Spartans struggled to an 0-11 campaign.

"We played a couple of teams close, but we just came up short," said Delorfano. "We just didn't come up with the big plays, and then it would snowball from there. It's pretty frustrating, but at the same time, I was just working hard, trying to have fun and making the best of it."

Following the departure of head coach Dave Wilcox, athletic director Dave Pignone stepped in and assumed the role. A former star from the Spartans on the gridiron himself in the mid 1980s, Pignone aimed to rebuild a program that struggled in recent years.

"When coach (Pignone) came in as the coach, we knew that it was the step in the right direction," said Delorfano. "He knows a lot about football and is a great motivator. He's very tough, but at the same time all of us respect him as a coach and we try to go out there and do the best we can for him and the coaching staff."

Despite the Spartans suffering an 0-11 mark, Delorfano noticed the improvements within the program.

"The attitude changed," said Delorfano. "Guys were working harder and were really giving it their all out on the field. Unfortunately, we just didn't have the depth that the other teams had and it was pretty tough."

In the off-season, Delorfano along with many of the seniors committed themselves to a rigorous training program. Under the watchful eyes of coaches Bob Powers and Chris Yancey, Delorfano, along with the rest of the squad spent long hours in the weight room and the track in an effort to prepare for the forthcoming season. As a freshman, Delorfano was listed at 5-8 and 110 pounds. Now heading into his senior year, he's estimated to have put on at least 15 extra pounds of muscle as a result of his off-season workout.

Wilmington's Parsons tackles a tough job

By MIKE IPPOLITO

WILMINGTON — There are very few sure things in sports, but the Wilmington High football team comes about as close to a sure thing as possible with senior linebacker and running back John Parsons.

Heading into this season you can pretty much guarantee that Parsons, a Wildcats co-captain, will lead the Wildcats in tackles from his linebacker position as he has for the past two seasons, and that he will provide tremendous versatility from his running back position on offense, likely running for several touchdowns, while also throwing for a few when the Wildcats try a little trickery, just as he has for the past two seasons.

Last year Parsons ran for over 600 yards and scored seven rushing touchdowns while catching two touchdown passes for the Wildcats. Parsons also threw for three more scores. But it was on defense where he made his presence felt most, winning his second consecutive Defensive MVP award while leading the team in tackles.

It probably comes as no surprise then that Parsons is eagerly anticipating the start of this season, which got under way last Friday night at Arlington High School.

"I'm very excited to get started," Parsons said. I have been waiting the whole summer, ever since last Thanksgiving really."

Also not surprising is that Parsons is not resting on his laurels, as he has worked harder than ever to get ready for what he hopes is a spectacular senior season.

"I went to a bunch of football camps including the Elite Camp at Bentley College which showed a lot of ways that you get better," Parsons said. "And I was also at the gym every day getting stronger and doing cardio work to get ready for the season."

That's probably bad news for Parsons new opponents in the Middlesex League where the Wildcats will move to this season after many years in the Cape Ann League. Chances are they are not looking forward to facing Parsons, but Parsons is most definitely looking forward to facing them.

"I think it will be great. We never back down from anybody and I know we won't start now," Parsons said. "I definitely think there will be some different challenges for us but I also know that we will be ready for it. It's hard to know which will be the best teams until after we go through a season in this league so we will have to be ready for every game."

Parsons has made a habit of being ready for every Wildcats game ever since his sophomore season and coach Mike Barry knows he will once again be able to count on his 6-2, 200-pound senior to bring that same effort in every game this season.

"He is a very athletic kid. He's a very tough, physical player, es-

JOHN PARSONS is a two-way threat for the Wildcats, but in particular makes his presence felt at linebacker. Parsons has led his team in tackles the past two years.

LARS ZANDBERGS of Winchester is the lone starter back on defense this fall for the Sachems. New coach Wally Dembowski feels the senior defensive end still has his best days of football still ahead. (Bill Ryerson photo)

Zandbergs best days still ahead

By MARK NADEAU

WINCHESTER — The role of captain on a high school football team is always both challenging and rewarding, but this year will be especially challenging for Winchester High senior co-captains Lars Zandbergs and Ken Crotty.

Not only are they being introduced to a new system under first-year head coach Wally Dembowski, they are also two of only three holdovers left from last year's starting lineup.

Zandbergs (6-3, 190) in fact is the only returning starter on defense, but at least he has momentum on his side after being one of last year's Thanksgiving Day heroes in the Sachems' third consecutive victory over Woburn.

In what turned out to be the decisive touchdown of the contest, Zandbergs scooped up a fumble on the Winchester side of the field and returned it 67 yards for the score with 35 seconds left before half. That gave the Sachems a 19-7 halftime lead and Winchester went on to the 19-14 victory over rival Woburn.

"My main concern was not to trip while I was running down the field," said Zandbergs. "I was thrilled to have made the play and when I turned around after reaching the end zone my whole team was there to jump on me."

Zandbergs got his start — twice — in Woburn Pop Warner; he did not like it the first time but got back into it in eighth grade.

As a Winchester High freshman and junior varsity player he was a wide receiver until the coaches decided to move him to defense, where he began to shine as a defensive end.

Although he was only the fourth leading tackler on the team last year at defensive end/outside linebacker, Zandbergs did have an affinity for making big plays prior to his Turkey Day heroics. He led the Sachems in sacks and fumble recoveries.

Zandbergs made his presence felt in Friday night's season-opener against Cardinal Spellman by putting heavy pressure on the quarterback and forcing him to throw an interception.

"Lars is extremely active on defense," said new head coach Wally Dembowski. "He ran around all night in Friday's game and chased people down. He still has to work to get better but he has a high motor."

But not only does Zandbergs have to worry about his game, he's also now responsible for pulling the whole defensive unit together as its leader. With being the only returning starter, he has his hands full.

"I'm trying to bring everyone together and pick up the intensity," said Zandbergs. "Defense is my passion and I'm using that to bring my teammates together."

Zandbergs has enjoyed the transition from being one of the teammates to being the captain, even if it is a little more burdensome this year.

"They are looking for you to do the job," he said. "I see everyone coming around for me and Kenny."

"Lars enjoys the game of football; he's taking the captaincy seriously and the kids look up to him and Kenny," said Dembowski.

Dembowski sees Zandbergs as something of a late bloomer; believing he has just touched the surface of his potential. He thinks Lars should continue to play in college and he is now working on the proper fit for Zandbergs on the next level.

"His best days of football are still ahead of him," said Dembowski. "Two years down the road after he grows out and matures."

As for playing both ways it seems Zandbergs will focus mostly on defense, although he is also listed as a tight end on the team's roster. Dembowski is trying to find ways to get all his receivers the ball and Zandbergs needs to improve on his blocking.

"Lars has done everything I've asked of him and I only have to ask him once," said Dembowski. "As we get to know each other better the communication lines will get better."

With the season already underway, Zandbergs realizes a league title is not likely to happen this fall but winning the Thanksgiving Day game again is the long-term goal.

"I want all my teammates to have a good experience with me and Kenny as captains," said Zandbergs. "I also want all of us to try our best."

Beucler the one to give opponents the short end

By BRIAN MURPHY

READING — When you're (generously) five feet nine inches tall and playing on the offensive and defensive lines, there's only one way you're going to win one-on-one battles with players four-six inches taller and 20-30 pounds heavier than you.

The key is leverage. Getting low, beneath the pads of the bigger man, and driving him back and not giving an inch.

That describes the play and the attitude of Reading tri-captain Tom Beucler. Listed at 5-9 and 210 pounds, Beucler may not be the most imposing lineman in the Middlesex League, but he's one of the better ones. Part of the reason is that he plays with a low pad level and incredible intensity. Not to mention a great deal of raw power and muscle.

"The lowest guy will win on any snap," Beucler said. "If you stand up, you'll be knocked back into the backfield."

"One benefit to not being very tall is you have the leverage advantage," said Reading line coach and defensive coordinator Dave Blanchard. "He's able to compete with the top level kids because of the strength he has."

Last year Beucler started for a defense that helped Reading finish 12-1, win a third straight Middlesex League championship, and advance to the EMass Div. 2 Super Bowl. For his outstanding play he was named a second team league all-star at noseguard, finishing with 29 tackles, a pair of sacks, and two fumble recoveries.

This year Beucler is pulling double duty. Back at nose, he's also a starting offensive guard alongside center Andrew Ferraro, guard Peter Fodera, and tackles Vaughn Wilder and Matt Commeford.

"He competed for a spot (on the offensive line) at the beginning of last year, but we prefer to have guys play one way," Blanchard said. "But it's been seamless for him."

The second key to Beucler's success is his work ethic. He's the strongest player on the team and is built akin to a fire hydrant. A fixture in the weight room over his Reading-career, this past offseason Beucler reached a new plateau of strength under the guidance of strength and conditioning coach Mike Guarino, packing on nearly 10 pounds of muscle from his playing weight as a junior.

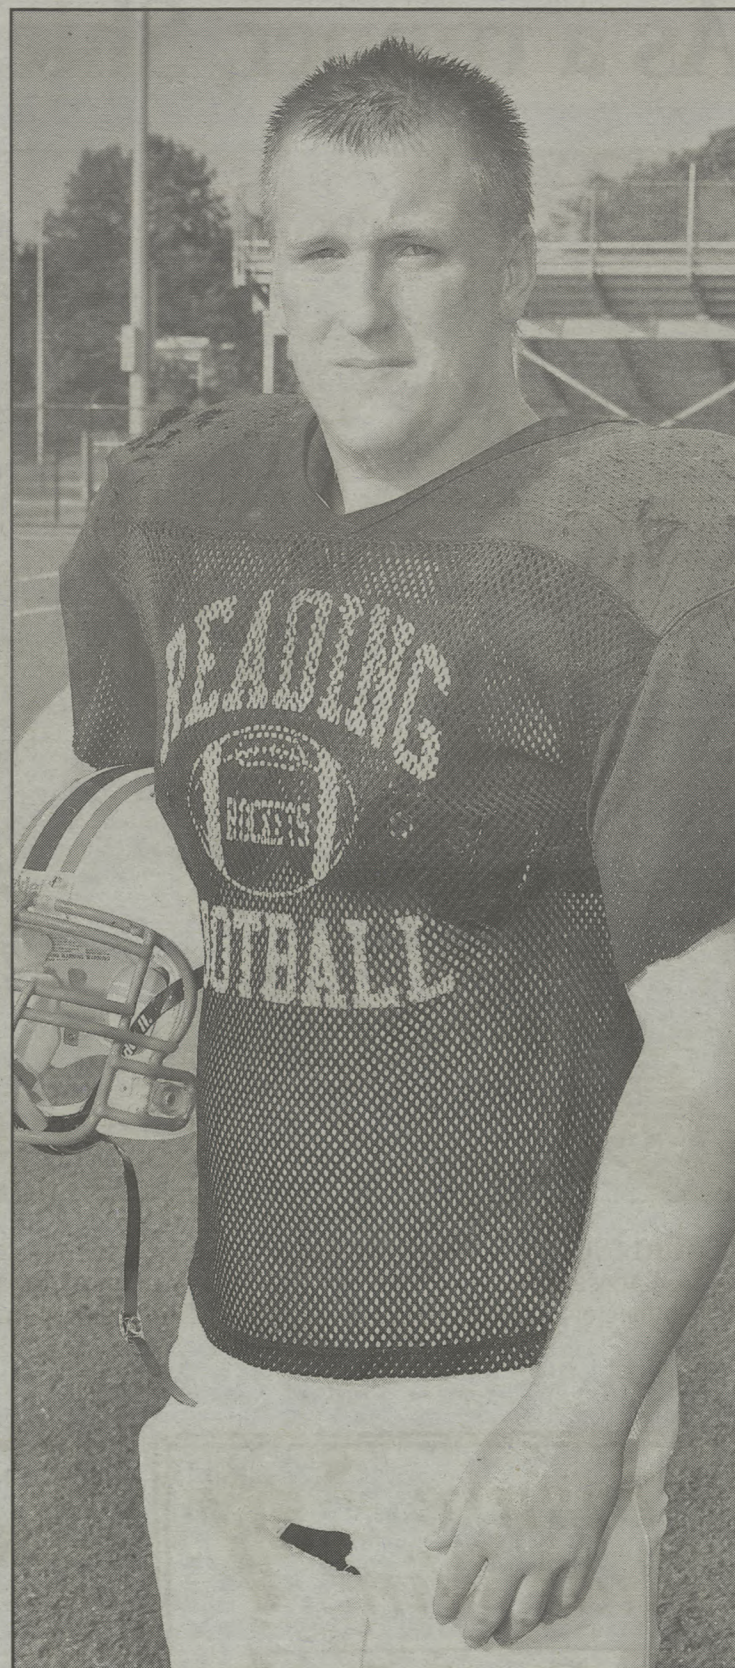

"He's an incredibly hard worker. He's unbelievable in the weight room and he approaches his workouts with intensity, and it's the same way on the field," said Reading head coach John Fiore.

Beucler said that last year's bitter season ending loss to Mansfield in the Super Bowl at Gillette Stadium helped fuel his efforts in the weight room, along with many of his teammates.

"Right after we lost, we felt like, we had to get back there," Beucler said. "We felt that if we did all the work, we could get back there. But right now we just need to go week to week. It's kinda cliché, but we can't think about anything besides North Andover."

The third factor that makes Beucler such an effective lineman is his all-around athleticism and conditioning. Last winter he switched from hockey to wrestling, and in the spring he competed in track. Fiore credits that three-sport cross training for developing his leverage, flexibility and balance.

As a runner, Shields gives it to you straight

By KEN KOTELLY

BURLINGTON'S KYLE SHIELDS is a three-year starter at fullback and a four-year starter on defense. Shields and the rest of his Red Devil teammates will have to step up this fall in the absence of returning QB/LB Greg Sheridan who will miss the season due to injury.

BURLINGTON — Kyle Shields knows all too well the experience of stepping up and filling in for a fallen teammate. Just two years ago as a sophomore fullback for the Burlington High football team, Shields and teammate Marcus Odiah had to take over the Red Devils running game after senior tailback Shayne O'Neil tore his MCL in just Burlington's third game and was lost for the season.

Shields filled in nicely the rest of the season, including a big 205-yard rushing effort against Woburn that was the highlight of his season. Once the season was over, Shields hoped he had experienced a serious injury to a teammate for the last time.

But fate would strike a cruel blow to a Burlington football player before the season even started. Over the past summer senior Greg Sheridan, Burlington quarterback the last two years and expected to be the signal-caller once again, tore his ACL playing basketball and was lost for the entire football season. For Shields it was a tough second similar blow to take in just three years.

"Greg and I have been best friends since ever since before we started playing football," said Shields. "It killed me to find out that he had done that, and I knew he wasn't going to be able to play (this season). Every time I see him he just breaks down, and since he knows he can't play, it just kills me inside, since we just have that special connection, and I feel his talent got stolen from him."

Once the reality of Sheridan's injury became apparent to Shields, the 5-11, 215-pound senior fullback, who also plays defensive end and is one of the team's captains along with Sheridan, knew he had to step up for a fallen teammate once again on both sides of the ball. In addition to being Burlington's quarterback, Sheridan was also one of the top linebackers in the league last year and was selected a first team All-Star.

"Greg is no less a part of the team than any of the starters, and he's out there as the biggest part of the team just like anyone else," said Shields. "There was no better (linebacker) in the league than Greg last year, he was a phenomenal athlete who was very underrated and we lost some really good talent there. So now we just have to go that much harder to make up for his loss."

At least Shields is familiar, albeit a bit uncomfortable, with stepping up his play in place of a fallen teammate, since he filled the ball carrying role for the Red Devils two years ago after O'Neil went down with a similar season-ending injury.

"I think Greg's injury is the same (as O'Neil's injury)," said Shields. "They were both just great athletes that got their athletic po-

Coaches still feel Reading will come up Large

The Middlesex League officially splits into two separate divisions this fall with two playoff berths at stake. The winner of the Large School Division will play in the Division 2 playoffs, while the champion of the Small School Division will compete in Division 2A.

It has not been a totally seamless transition as some old rivalries have been put on hold. For example, Woburn will not play Wakefield or Stoneham this year while its games vs. Burlington and Melrose will have no bearing on the league standings and will be treated as "non-league games."

Only games within your division — just five in all — determines division champions. This will be the format for the next two years before the coaches, athletic directors and principals see how they proceed from here.

In a poll taken by the league coaches, the majority like Reading to win the Large Schools and Burlington to claim the Small Schools title.

Here is a look at the new two-division six-team leagues.

LARGE SCHOOLS

1. READING

Coming off an appearance in the Div. 2 EMass Super Bowl, and a third straight Middlesex League championship, the Reading High football team is by reputation and tradition one of the favorites to win the ML Large School title. But after suffering a 32-13 thumping at the hands of non-league Lawrence in Week 1 it remains to be seen whether graduation has taken its toll on the Rockets.

Reading has a younger, less experienced lineup than the senior-heavy teams of the past three seasons, but there is plenty of talent on the roster for eighth-year head coach John Fiore (55-25) to work with. Sophomore quarterback Drew Belcher (6-3, 200), the first 10-grader to start the season at this position for the Rockets in 39 years, was one of the few bright spots in the loss to Lawrence. Belcher threw for 127 yards on 16 of 28 passing while rushing for 78 yards on 13 carries with a touchdown.

The Rockets tri-captains include Tom Beucier, Kyle McCarthy, and Bill Carnes. Beucier, a 5-9, 210 pound two-way lineman, is a returning second team all-star at noseguard. McCarthy (5-10, 190) started at linebacker last year and also takes over as the Rockets' starting fullback, while Carnes (5-11, 175) is a linebacker/tight end.

Reading's running game will be fueled by senior tailback Anthony DeSimone and junior Greg Connery. DeSimone started a couple games last season, including the Super Bowl, and finished with 464 yards rushing on 71 carries (6.5 yards/carry) with four touchdowns.

Reading also has a young but talented receiving crew. Starters include Ryan Maney (6-2, 205) and Dylan Swaebe (6-1, 170). Alex Valente (5-6, 165) is an athletic deep threat who saw significant time last season. All three are juniors. Returning starter Mark Sheehan (5-10, 185) is back at tight end.

The Rockets do have a big, strong offensive line led by center Andrew Ferraro (6-3, 245), Matt Commeford (6-4, 275), Peter Fodera (5-10, 230), Vaughn Wilder (6-0, 245) and Beucier.

Beucier anchors the Rockets' defense. He's joined up front by Joseph Staffier, Fodera, and Sheehan. Linebackers include sophomore Liam Kenneally, Carnes, Kyle McCarthy, and Connor McCarthy. Reading's defensive backs include Connery, Jared Barros, Valente, and Kenny Montero. Reading's linebacker crew suffered a significant loss with the transfer of senior and two-year starter Zack Bates to Wakefield.

2. WOBURN

The Tanners did not cover themselves in glory in their opening-game 33-8 loss to Acton-Boxborough. But, it would be foolish to over-react and dismiss the Tanners completely from the Large School race with 13 staters back, including a game-changing player like Chuck Ortiz.

Although just 5-9 and 160 pounds, Ortiz has blazing speed and shifty moves. He rushed for 1,243 yards and 19 touchdowns in 2010. His health and well being will be paramount to just how far Woburn will go in 2011.

Senior QB Hunter Romano (6-2, 200) looked good during 7-on-7 drills in July and should be even better as the season goes along.

Three offensive linemen return for Woburn in Dan Walsh (6-2, 265), Rory O'Brien (6-1, 260) and A.J. Santiago (6-0, 305). All three will start two-ways.

Seniors Nico Cornelio, Billy Cuzzo and David Pratt must step up in the skill positions to keep teams from keying on Ortiz and help Woburn have better offensive balance.

Defensively, John Concannon (6-1, 210) is a returning starter at defensive end while linebackers Jake Delano (5-6, 195) and Anthony Mendonca (6-2, 205) will play an important role in Woburn base 5-2 defense.

Three defensive backs return in Ortiz, Cuzzo and Cornelio. Newcomer Evan Loneragan (5-11, 155), a senior, will start at safety.

3. LEXINGTON

After 36 years the Bill Tighe era is finally over at Lexington.

The legendary oldest known high school football coach in the country called it a coaching career in 2010 after leading the Minutemen to their second straight 6-5 season, and third straight win over Burlington on Thanksgiving to go out a winner.

Now it is up to new coach George Peterson, who becomes the youngest coach in the Middlesex League at 35, replacing the oldest coach in America.

Peterson has inherited a program that has made great strides in recent years, and returns a wealth of experience from last year. The Minutemen only lost six starters, and with eight returnees back on both sides of the ball, Peterson should be able to help Lexington remain at least as competitive as it was a year ago.

Peterson will implement more of a spread offense instead of the multiple-slot used under Tighe, and will benefit from three returnees in the offensive backfield. Senior Connor Murray (5-9, 160) returns at quarterback, with his twin brother Nick Murray (5-9, 175) back at tailback, and senior Korey Kajko (6-0, 185) back at fullback. Junior Kevin Lee is also playing a role as well.

Connor Murray will have three familiar passing targets in seniors Samir Pathan, Noah Hurley, and Shane Foley, with sophomore Rhett Adley also in the mix. Up on the front line, senior Dan Coste (6-0, 220) returns at center and senior Freydon Salem (5-10, 203) at left guard, and both also will play at defensive end. Junior Nick Nerolian (6-2, 285) will also go two-ways up front.

Behind the defensive line in Lexington's 4-2 set returns senior Nick McDaniel (6-0, 210) as one of the two linebackers, with senior Reggie Thornton (5-11, 217), also an offensive guard as the other linebacker. In the secondary, Hurley and Pathan return as the cornerbacks, Nick Murray will be the free safety, Foley will be the strong safety, and senior Keith Young the weak safety.

Sophomore C.J. Curran will handle place kicks and kick-offs, while Connor Murray will be the holder and the punter.

4. BELMONT

The Marauders are coming off a 4-7 campaign and have the advantage of a returning starting quarterback with which to build around for the upcoming season.

Mike Richardson took his lumps as a sophomore but the payoff will be more of a command of the offense

this fall as a junior

Richardson's favorite targets will be twins Mike and Mark Rocha at wide receiver and John Dillon at tight end. All are returning from last year.

J.C. Reynolds will get the bulk of the carries as the featured running back.

Dillon is also Belmont's top tackler on defense where he will be a beast for opponents to deal with at defensive end.

While the Rocha twins return to patrol at cornerback, younger brother Matt Rocha joins the varsity as a promising linebacker.

Belmont opened the season with a 28-7 loss to Melrose but the game was close until the fourth quarter. Coach Kevin Gildea is concerned about his squad's lack of depth and the way the opener unfolded — with three touchdowns allowed in the last 15 minutes — bore this out.

5. WINCHESTER

This will be a challenging year for the Sachems as they try to work in 19 new starters while learning a different system under first-year coach Wally Dembowski.

Friday night's 24-0 loss to Cardinal Spellman afforded fans their first glimpse at the 2011 Winchester High team and they saw the defense a bit further along than the offense.

The Sachems are still working out issues at quarterback as starter Tommy Pine is injured and junior Tim Mangano is trying to catch up on reps after arriving in camp a little over two weeks ago.

Connor Campbell proved to be the most effective running back in week one but junior John Costello will still have more opportunities to shine. Wide receiver Joe Ntege will also see some carries as the coaching staff will try and figure out how to give the junior speedster more touches.

Ntege will first and foremost be a slot receiver and kick returner. He had the only reception for Winchester, Friday night, and it was a spectacular one between three defenders. Seamus Cassidy, Evan Carey and Alec Davis are still getting their feet wet at wide receiver, while Stefan Zandbergs is doing the same at tight end.

Co-captain Tom Crotty returns at center and is the only experienced member of the offensive line. There is some size and enthusiasm there so it should get better with every game.

The interior of the defensive line will include Dylan Luongo, Antonio Oquendo-Loftman and George Caryannopoulos. Taylor Smith is another defensive tackle to watch.

Co-captain Lars Zandbergs leads the Sachem defense at left defensive end. He will be looked upon to tie the unit together with his experience. Younger brother Stefan looked good at right defensive end Friday night and certainly holds promise for the future.

Crotty, Davis and Cam O'Malley, who had an interception, Friday night, lead the linebacking corps while Ntege, Michael Thompson and Joe D'Amico lead the secondary.

6. ARLINGTON

Victories may be hard to come by at the outset of the season but Dembowski has a winning philosophy and a team with a lot of upside to which to work.

All is very new at the Mass. Avenue school this fall, as Arlington made the big move from the Dual County League to join the Middlesex League along with Wilmington. The Spy Ponders also have a new leader in John Dubzinski, who took over as head coach after Dan Hirsch stepped down after last season, and the new mentor will have a lot of holes to fill in his first season.

The Spy Ponders lost 18 players, nine on both sides of the ball, including all the skill players, returning just two players on offense and defensive each. Now leading Arlington's double-wing offense will be senior captain Jeremy Lee at quarterback, while senior captain Tom Jantz and sophomore Dan Columbo will be the halfbacks, and junior Niko Stavropoulos the fullback.

One of just two returnees on offense will be Lee's most experienced passing target, senior Adam Chen who is back at split end, while junior Hunter Sleeper will be the flanker, and senior captain Matt McDermott takes over at tight end. The only other returnee on offense is up front, where senior Ben Childs (5-10, 195) is back at right guard.

Also on the o-line will be senior Max Dobrushkin (6-2, 200) and junior Spencer Taylor (6-3, 185) at the tackles, senior Chris Cousoukis (5-8, 180) at left guard, and senior Tom Cassidy (5-11, 195) at center. Taylor and Cassidy will also play right defensive tackle and end respectively, while senior Dan McMunn (5-8, 190) and sophomore Mike Greco (5-11, 205) fill out the left side.

Backing Arlington's 4-4 defensive set includes Childs who is one of just two returnees on defense at inside linebacker along with McDermott, while seniors Matt Martin (6-0, 180) and Marc Medeiros (5-8, 180) will be the outside linebackers. In the secondary, Jantz returns at cornerback with Chen the other cornerback, while sophomore Seth Coiley will be the free safety.

Lee will also handle place kicks and punts, while Sleeper will be the holder and sophomore Zach Thomas will handle kickoffs.

SMALL SCHOOLS

1. BURLINGTON

The Red Devils got off to a great 6-1 start last season and were in contention for a playoff berth, only to be beset with injuries and lose their last four games for the second straight year, and finish with a somewhat disappointing 6-5 overall record.

But unlike last year when Burlington only had seven returning starters, the Red Devils are much more loaded with experience with eight returning starters on both sides of the ball. Burlington was one of the league's top offensive teams last year, and should be again this season with a pair of experienced running backs that are one of the league's top ball carrying tandems.

The duo of senior fullback Kyle Shields (5-11, 215) and junior tailback Marcus Odiah (6-0, 185) both have two years under their belts. Shields rushed for a team-high 834 yards on 156 carries and 13 TD's last year, while Odiah, the son of Reading High Hall of Famer Excell Walker, added 752 rushing yards on 109 carries and 13 TD's as a sophomore a year ago.

The Red Devils were hurt by the loss of their quarterback the last two years, senior Greg Sheridan, who tore his ACL over the summer and is lost for the season. In his place sophomore Shane Farley (6-3, 175) has stepped in and threw two touchdown passes in the season opener.

Farley has two experienced passing targets in senior split end Nick Ciardi (6-1, 170) and senior flanker Billy Murphy (5-10, 175), along with junior tight end Jirair Manoukian (6-0, 190).

Up front, the Red Devils have experience with a pair of two-way linemen, senior Dalton Barrucci (6-2, 260), and junior Mike Lockney (5-11, 205), along with seniors Nick Salvucci and Jonathan Dube, and juniors Mark Woods and Dominic Calicchio. All but Calicchio are returning starters, while Shields moves up from linebacker to right defensive end.

Backing up Burlington's 4-4 defensive set are three returning linebackers, senior Stephen Mattos (5-7, 170) and juniors Chris Arria (5-10, 195) and Calicchio (5-10, 185), who had 58 tackles last year, along with senior Dan McDermott (5-9, 175). In the secondary, Odiah and Murphy return as the cornerbacks, while Ciardi replaces Sheridan as the strong safety.

2. WAKEFIELD

If any team has benefited from the Middlesex League's split with a large and small division, it might be Wakefield.

The Warriors have had a number of seasons with great records, only to finish second in the ML and miss out on the playoffs.

Now in the small division, Wakefield brings a young team to the gridiron this year but it will be able to go toe-to-toe with Burlington and Melrose.

"It's generally good for the league; for us in particular. We were the third smallest team in the league. Lexington, for instance, has 1,000 more kids in the school," said Wakefield coach Mike Boyages. "We only have three returning starters from last year. We have a lot of gaps to fill. It'll take time for us to jell."

What the Warriors do have coming back includes senior captains Josh Puccio at tailback and linebacker, as well as Nick Calderone who is in the defensive backfield and at slot receiver. A wild card in all of this could be Reading transfer Zack Bates (5-6, 185) who appears to be healthy after tearing his ACL last winter. Bates is a two-time second-team All-League linebacker while at Reading.

Wakefield began to hit its stride towards the second half of 2010's season and quarterback Jamie Bourque was a big reason why, as the Warriors ended up 6-3 in the ML and 6-4 overall. Now he comes back for his senior year.

"He won five straight games for us last year," said Boyages. "When we put him in we started playing well."

Steve Cummings is also new to the Wakefield sidelines, as he takes over as defensive coordinator after coaching the freshman team.

"He's done a nice job," said Boyages. "We're inexperienced on the front line and not too deep."

The offensive line is still the main component Wakefield success, though, and that group's development will be important, as well as limiting turnovers.

"We're going to need a lot of young guys to step up," said Boyages. "The key is the line getting better every week, and we have to hold onto the ball."

The Warriors will have time to improve, however, as they do not play a division game until Week 5.

3. WILMINGTON

When the Wilmington High football team takes the field this season in the Middlesex League it will be facing not only the regular challenges of any football season, but also the challenge of taking on an unfamiliar opponent in many of its games.

Adding to the challenge for the Wildcats will be taking on these opponents minus some of their key contributors from the past few seasons, as they lost five Cape Ann League All-Stars from last season to graduation.

Wilmington enters the season on the heels of two consecutive 8-3 seasons and will be looking for similar or even better success this season.

Many critics have pointed to the tougher league schedule the Wildcats will face in the Middlesex League as a major obstacle to any success this season, but coach Mike Barry disputes the notion that the Wildcats are leaving an inferior league behind in the Cape Ann.

"People always thought the Cape Ann League was an easier league, but some of those teams we played like North Andover and Masco and even Pentucket and Newburyport were very tough," Barry said. "It was a much tougher league than people realize."

Any success the Wildcats do have this season will likely come as a result of some of their key returning players starting with senior co-captains John Parsons and Alex Furlong. Parsons, a running back and linebacker for the Wildcats, and Furlong, an offensive and defensive tackle, will be relied on heavily to lead their Wilmington teammates.

Among those counted on to step up the most will be senior quarterback Matt Ferreira. Ferreira, who started at receiver last year for the Wildcats, has filled many roles for the team throughout his career and will lead a backfield that includes not only Parsons, but also a combination of senior Ed DeLucia and sophomore Eli Jennings. Both saw a lot of playing time last year and should be able to continue their contributions to the team this season.

Senior Kyle Albanese will be at tight end while one wide receiver spot will be filled by returning letterman, junior Tim Woods, and the other spot is very much up for grabs among several players.

Perhaps the biggest strength for the Wildcats on offense will be their offensive line where they return four of five starters. Senior Dan Bedenza will be the left guard while junior Brendan Ahearn will move over from center where he started last year to play right guard. Furlong will start at right tackle while senior Frank Cerbone and junior Shawn Surette will start at left tackle. Senior Killian Smith, who started at linebacker last season, will start at center this year for the Wildcats.

Many of the same players will start for the Wildcats on defense with Cerbone and Furlong starting at defensive tackles, with Bedenza and Ahearn starting at defensive ends. Parsons and Smith will start at the linebacker positions. The defensive backs figure to be new.

4. MELROSE

Coming off a 3-8 season in which a lot of young players saw action, Melrose will look to improve in 2011 now that those players have grown into upperclassmen.

The strength of the team will be its skill positions where they bring back a number of key players.

Leading the way for Melrose will be running backs Spencer Walsh and Dean Anderson. They were the leading scorers last season for the Red Raiders', reaching the end zone eight and seven times respectively. Both players will go both ways as Walsh will play linebacker and Anderson will line up at defensive back.

Senior Brett Barbati and junior Bryan Reale each saw playing time last season at quarterback and that figures to continue this season as each player will be under center over the course of the year.

Defensive backs lining up against the Red Raiders' will be seeing double as the receiving corps are led by twin brothers CJ and Paul Hanson. Dan Griffin will also be seeing time at receiver for Melrose.

The offensive and defensive line will be led by senior Brendan McGonagle who has been starting for Melrose since his sophomore season.

Tim Morris remains at the helm for the Red Raiders as he now enters his 18th season as the head coach. Melrose will need to be comfortable playing on the road as the team will not play any home games until Thanksgiving. Field turf is being installed at Fred Green Field and it will not be ready until the annual showdown against archrival Wakefield.

5. WATERTOWN

A few years ago Watertown was floundering at the bottom of the Middlesex League, but over the past two seasons, the Red Raiders have resurrected themselves, going 7-4 in 2010.

With the ML split into two divisions, Watertown is aiming to hold its own in the ML Small, even though the Red Raiders will have a young team.

"They're working hard and their goal is to have our third winning season in a row," said Watertown coach John Cacece. "The kids want to be successful; we're trying to be a tougher team. The biggest concern is our inexperience. (The strength is) our focus and level of commitment."

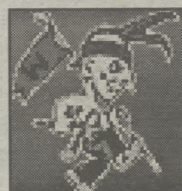

The Raiders graduated 18 from last year's team, including quarterback C.J. Logan, leaving them with only 12 seniors. So it falls upon junior Joey Farrar to take over under center, making Watertown more of a passing team. Joe Keland and Eric Antonellis will backup Farrar.

"Joey's been terrific in the preseason. He's got great instincts at the quarterback spot; he's got a good idea of what defenses are trying to do, and he throws a nice ball," said Cacece.

The senior class includes captain Giovanni Ortiz at receiver, captain Sean McCusker at running back and captain P.J. Phinney on the defensive line.

Junior Logan Riley may be the Red Raiders' most versatile player, however, as he will start at linebacker and play in the backfield, while Dan LoPrette is another back for Watertown.

"We've been pretty happy with the way things have come together. How quick we can get things going will tell the tale of the season," said Cacece. "Logan is a huge piece of what we do. He's a tremendous athlete on both sides of the ball; he's going to play a lot of snaps."

Like the other Watertown teams that have been waiting for Victory Field to finish renovations, the Red Raiders will probably be on the road until November.

"We're trying for it not to be an issue. It's just an inconvenience that we have to deal with," said Cacece. "We're looking at it as a challenge."

6. STONEHAM

For three long seasons, the Stoneham High football team has suffered a 32-game losing streak. Now with some hopes of optimism on the horizon, the Spartans aim to start with a new slate with a new and refreshing attitude.

"We're very excited about the season," said coach Dave Pignone. "The kids are motivated and are ready to go."

We've had a great pre-season, and now we're hoping we can build off some of the positive momentum we've generated and hopefully, we'll transform those into wins."

Calling the plays at quarterback will be the duo of junior Andrew Cann and senior tri-captain Anthony Aionidis. Both Pignone and newly hired associate head coach Bob Almeida plan on implementing a two-quarterback system in an effort to confuse opposing defenses. Almeida previously served as the head coach of both the Wilmington High and Malden Catholic varsity programs.

Serving as key assets to the ground game will be the senior duo of Taylor Goulding and senior tri-captain Paul DeIorano.

As for deep threats, the Spartans will be guided by the receiving trio of junior Eric Mooney, senior TJ Bergin and sophomore Dylan Owens.

As for the line, the Spartans will be led by the front four of juniors Frankie Sparco, John Kent, Dave Albani and Kyle Augellio while senior tri-captain Scott Carrucci will also be in the mix.

Defensively, the Spartans will be guided by Spacro, Kent, Albani and Augellio on the line while sophomore Aaron Lewis has fared impressive at cornerback during the pre-season. Also contributing at linebacker will be sophomore Brandon Yancey, who will also double as a tight end and blocking back on offense.

tential taken away from them. They were both captains and one of the best players on the team.”

Shields was groomed to be a top-notch running back with a strong attitude to work hard from an early age, when he started playing football as soon as he was old enough to play. With big size for his age, in addition to being a running back, he initially played in the front line on defense.

“I started playing Pop Warner football the first year I could start, when I was seven years old,” said Shields. “I played a lot of halfback and fullback, and on defense I played nose guard throughout all of Pop Warner. I was always a running back, and at first I was a defensive lineman.”

When Shields reached the high school level, he continued to be a running back, while switching on defense from the front line to linebacker and defensive back. Shields stayed in the defensive backfield until this season, when due to his added size and speed he moved back up to the line as a defensive end.

“As a freshman, I first started playing and starting at linebacker and couple of times on varsity as a defensive back,” said Shields. “All the way up to this year I was a linebacker and a defensive back, then this year was the first time (in high school) I was on the defensive line. I’m a lot bigger and still as fast, and I can take the contact better than having to make those reads (at linebacker).”

Shields has appreciated all the support he received from his coaches both in Pop Warner and at Burlington High School, who not only guided his athletic development, but helped instill a strong work ethic in him to succeed.

“My coaches, they’ve taught me everything I know,” said Shields. “They taught me how to work hard in the off-season with a strong work ethic, and help me to realize I just have to work hard.”

As a sophomore in 2009 Shields took over the top ball-carrying role for Burlington, rushing for 942 yards on 210 carries and 13 touchdowns. Then as a junior last year Shields formed a solid running-back duo with Marcus Odiah, and led the team in rushing with 834 yards on 156 carries and 13 touchdowns, while also playing defensively at linebacker, to help Burlington finish 6-5 last season.

“He’s obviously one of our better athletes, and he’s a very gifted runner with excellent speed who’s capable of running people over,” said Burlington head football coach Shawn Maguire. “He’s a very physical kid who can be one of the better runners around. He worked very hard in the off-season and he’s very strong, and he’s a very gifted athlete who’s prepared himself very well.”

However, the Red Devils set a trend both years by getting off to great starts (5-2 in 2009, 6-1 last year), only to fade late and end each season with four straight losses. For Shields, losing four games at the end of each season after early-season success was difficult for him to accept, since with his strong work ethic he never expects to lose.

“I never really expected to lose, since I don’t go into games expecting to lose,” said Shields. “I always go into every game with that same mentality that we’re going to win. Even if we’re playing the number one team in the state, I still go into that game expecting to win. If you go into a game with the mentality that you’re going to lose, odds are that you are going to lose.”

“It’s disappointing when we lose, and I would’ve hoped both those seasons would have ended better,” continued Shields. “We had a really good shot (to make the playoffs), but a couple of those games we just came out flat. A lot of games we shouldn’t have lost but we did, and that’s just the way those games came out.”

Once last season was over, Shields was determined to be in the top athletic shape possible for his senior season. He worked out frequently along with his football teammates several days a week with extensive running and conditioning drills, to improve their strength and speed. Shields also played baseball in the spring before concentrating on conditioning drills over the summer.

“I worked out four or five days a week at Athletic Evolution in Woburn,” said Shields. “All of my other teammates were working out just as hard, if not at Athletic Evolution then working out here or at Planet Fitness. We were running and conditioning, and became a heck of a lot stronger and a lot faster.”

“Kyle’s work ethic showed off the field conditioning in the weight room at the Athletic Evolution training camps four or five times a week, and he’s committed himself to get better all the time,” added Maguire. “Having him and Marcus Odiah in the same backfield gives us so many more options, especially this year with losing Greg (Sheridan), he takes the pressure off our young quarterback.”

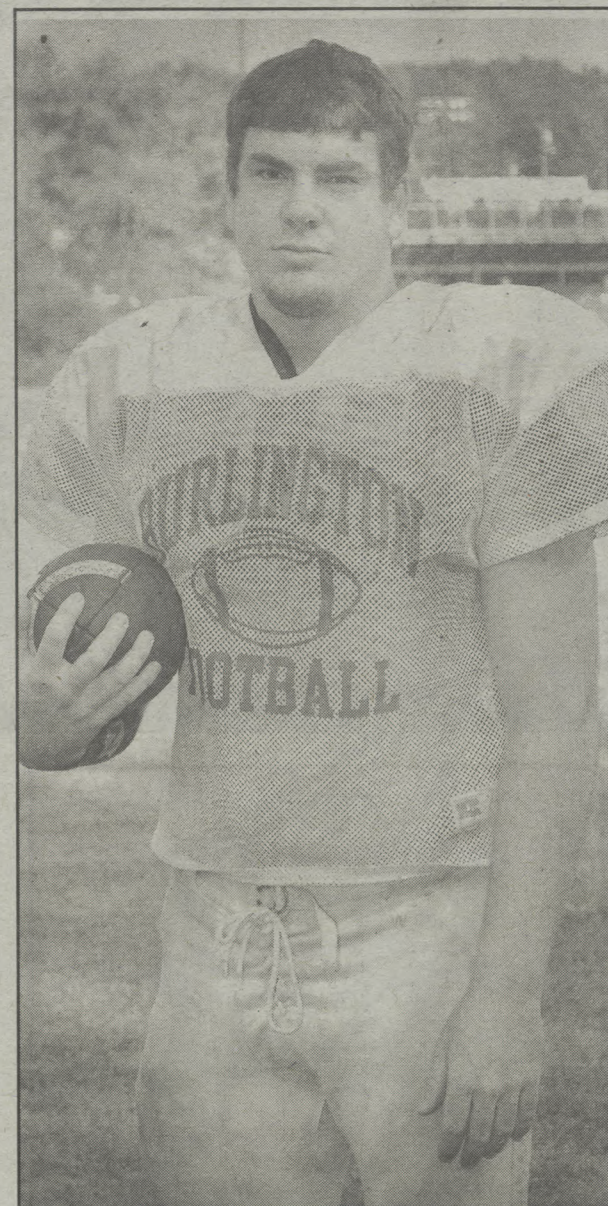

While losing his teammate for this football season was a tough blow for Shields and his teammates to accept, it didn’t deter him from trying to help the Red Devils reach the ultimate goal of advancing to the state playoffs. If anything, the injury to his teammate has helped him realize how fragile and unpredictable being a football player can be.

“There’s that one goal at the end of the year in December that we all have and want,” said Shields. “We don’t really want to talk about it, since we have to take it one game at a time, but that ultimate goal is up there. So I just want to go hard all the time every play, and after what happened to Greg, not take any play for granted and play every play like it’s my last play.”

Once football is over, Shields will prepare to play baseball in the spring before graduation. Shields is still uncertain about his post-high school plans, but would like to continue to play baseball at the college level with football still a possibility.

“It’s still up in the air, but I want to play college baseball,” said Shields. “I love football, and I would love to play football in college, but right now I think I’m getting more attention for baseball.”

Before baseball, however, there is this football season, and Shields is ready and experienced to fill in for a fallen teammate — again.

KYLE SHIELDS, at 5-11 and 215, is a punishing runner for the Red Devils. Shields will be counted on to help his team finish the season strong and avoid its recent late-season struggles down the stretch of the past two years. (Photo by joebrownphotos.com)

Getting back to basics

JOHN FIORE (right), the Reading High head football coach, watches his players going over some basics of blocking and tackling. The Rockets have been to three straight postseasons, winning a Super Bowl in 2009, and are eager to get back to Gillette Stadium again this December.

• Beucler comes up big

"Those skills translate to the football field, particularly the defensive line," Blanchard said. "When you strip it down to the essentials, it's (defensive line) a one-on-one wrestling match for three to five seconds."

"I'm really happy I did it (wrestling)," Beucler said. "Wrestling in general makes you a tougher person. I'm also better conditioned."

Credit Beucler's older brother Brendan for his decision to try out for the wrestling team. Brendan was an exceptional high school wrestler and eventually made the team at Ohio State as a walk-on. Coincidentally, Brendan also started at nose tackle for the 2006 Rockets, and was only 5-6 and 155 pounds. It's not too much of a stretch to call Tom a giant in comparison.

For the last three championship seasons Reading has been blessed with some exceptional captains, including the fiery, charismatic Tino Perrina, Ryan Pollock, and Jeff Covitz. This year Beucler has taken on the mantle of leadership along with fellow co-captains Kyle McCarthy and Bill Carnes. It's a big responsibility, given the relative youth of this year's club, but he's taken to the role with gusto.

"He's come into his own as a vocal leader," Fiore said. "He's an awesome kid to coach and an awesome kid to work with. Now he's holding his teammates to the same high expectations as himself."

"Tommy gets it," added Blanchard. "He's helping the younger kids behind (the starters) and showing them the ropes. We're very happy with him."

Beucler called last week's 32-13 loss to Lawrence "a wakeup call" but is convinced the team has the talent and the will to bounce back.

"I think we're very capable as a team to come back and be able to thrive the rest of our games," he said.

carries on Thanksgiving against Winchester.

Once he gets through the line and into that second level, very few, if any, players in the Middlesex League are going to catch him.

While Ortiz is not exclusively an outside runner, his strength obviously is getting outside and into space. Running inside he can be contained a bit due to his size, but just don't give him a crease or it will be six points.

A fitness nut, Ortiz keeps himself in great shape. To say, even at 160 pounds, he's "ripped" is an understatement.

WOBURN HIGH 1000-Yard Rushing Seasons

Last season, Woburn tailback Chucky Ortiz became the 15th recorded player in the school's football history to rush for over 1000 yards for a season.

Only four players: Steve McCue (1975-76), Andy Clivio (1977-78), Mike Wall (1992-93) and Tom Hart (2004-05) have done it in consecutive seasons.

Player	Yards	Season
Tom Hart	1922	2005
Mike Wall	1878	1993
Andy Clivio	1488	1978
Steve McCue	1390	1975
Andy Clivio	1317	1977
Mike Wall	1295	1992
Chucky Ortiz	1243	2010
Cory Canada	1241	1991
Craig Iverson	1192	2000
Ed Capone	1110	1985
Frank Ciolo	1039	1979

conditioning, Ortiz was put to the test on opening night. Drawing a lot of attention, and without much blocking help, he still went over the 100-yard mark with 101 yards on 19 carries. He scored on a 37-yard run late in the third quarter and added the two-point conversion on a rush.

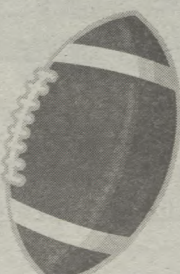

Friday's game against Billerica will be tough as will the rigors of the Middlesex League that lay ahead.

Nelson has compared Ortiz to Tom Hart, who had a record-breaking career with the Tanners, capped by a fabulous senior year in 2005. Hart set the single-season rushing record of 1,922 with 30 touchdowns during Woburn's last Super Bowl season. Hart did that in 13 games — 11 regular season, a playoff game, and a Super Bowl. If all goes well for Woburn, the most Ortiz could play this year is 12 since the Tanners have just 10 regular season games scheduled.

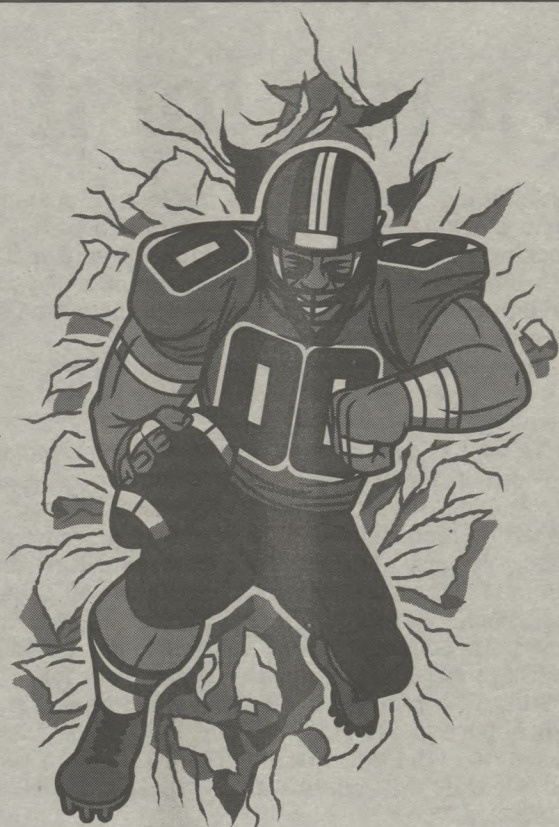

Still, if he remains healthy, he could be just the fifth Woburn player to record back-to-back 1000-yard seasons. Hart did it in 2004 and '05, Mike Wall in 1992 and '93, Andy Clivio in 1977 and '78 and Steve McCue in 1975 and '76.

pecially on the defensive side of the ball," Barry said. "He has a real nose for the football that you just can't coach."

Parsons loves playing on offense, creating scoring opportunities and touchdowns for his team, but it is on defense where he really likes to make his mark, so to speak.

"I definitely prefer linebacker. I love hitting people. That is definitely the best aspect of the game to me," Parsons said. "I will definitely be going to college as a defensive player."

Parsons has indeed already started thinking of the next phase in his football career, having visited Bentley, Assumption and UNH with a trip to Merrimack planned in the future.

"I have spoken with some college coaches," Parsons said. "My uncle Gerald Sullivan was the head coach at Merrimack so he knows a lot of coaches and he has been helping me out."

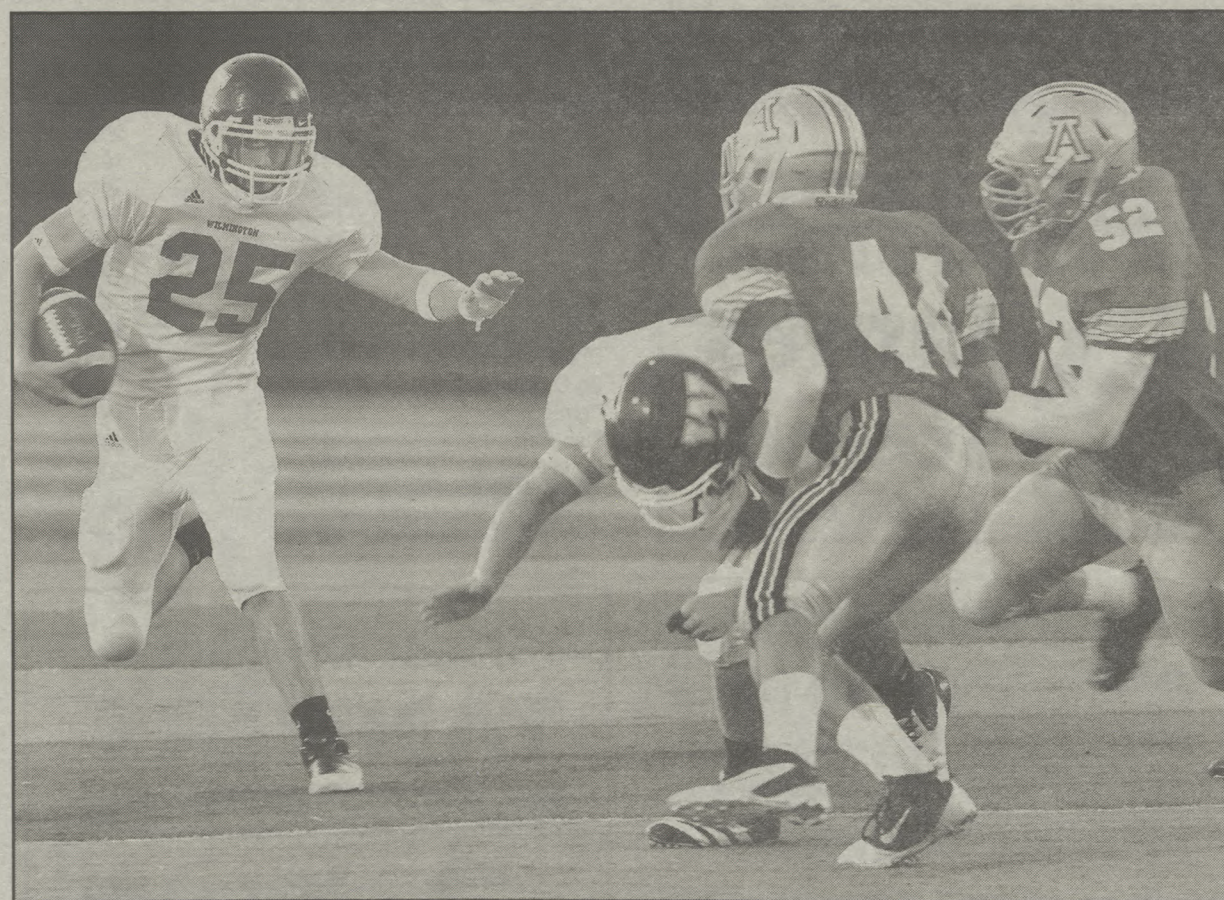

But make no mistake, Parsons sole focus right now is on the upcoming season with the Wildcats and he will do whatever he can to help them to another successful season. That includes setting up captain's practices over the summer along with fellow captain Alex Furlong, helping to get his team ready for the season.

"We had the captain's practices all summer and even before that in the spring we would get together for running before school," Parsons said. "We want to make sure we are all well conditioned because we know that will make our jobs a lot easier."

And Parsons has been very impressed with the way his teammates have responded to the captain's proactive and their efforts have paid off in their early season practices with Barry and the rest of the coaching staff.

"I have been going to captain's practices since my freshman year and I think this is the most people who have ever shown up for the practices," Parsons said. "Coach Barry and the coaches do a great job of getting us ready for the season. At the beginning of the season they have us do a lot of running and even though nobody really likes it we know it is helping us so we won't be winded in the fourth quarter."

JOHN PARSONS is a two-way threat for the Wildcats, but prefers linebacker. Parsons has led his team in tackles the past two years. Don't try and convince these Arlington defenders Parsons does not leave a mark on offense. Parsons rushed for 246 yards and three touchdowns in the Wildcats' opening 28-14 win last Friday over the Spy Ponders.

STONEHAM'S PAUL DELORFANO is no stranger to rough going as he picks up some tough yards in last year's game against the Tanners. With the Middlesex League adding two new teams and now splitting into two divisions, the Spartans do not have to play some of the Large School members like Woburn.

"The seniors and the rest of the team really committed themselves in the off-season to come into this season in great shape," said Delorfano. "Coach Powers and coach Yancey did a tremendous job setting up some great off-season workout programs, and we were working on all kinds of ways to get ourselves in better condition for the season. We lifted (five to six) days a week, and ran around the track on the days we weren't lifting. Everyone worked really hard in the off-season, participated in camps, and now we're that much more prepared heading into the season."

Also new to the program was associate head coach Bob Almeida, who had previously coached both the Wilmington High and Malden Catholic Varsity football teams.

"Coach Almeida really knows so much about football, and he's really helped us out a lot," said Delorfano. "When we're in the film room reviewing plays, he goes over and over a certain part of a play and points all the little things that we don't see. He's very tough on us, but at the same time we all respect him and he's a great motivator."

Not only did Delorfano spend long hours in the weight room in preparation for the upcoming season, but also aimed to recruit incoming freshmen to try out for the team.

"We knew that for the program to continue to go in the right direction, that we had to try to get as many freshmen as we could to sign up for the team," said Delorfano. "It's tough when you're a small town and don't have the numbers, so we really had to work hard in getting as many people out for the team as possible."

Now as Delorfano enters his final season, he's hoping that the 33 game losing streak will be somehow be a distant memory.

"We want it (losing streak) to end," said Delorfano. "It's not going to be easy. There are a lot of tough teams on the schedule, and we have to go out and play our hearts out. Everyone on the team really has to step up, and do their job on offense and defense. We've definitely improved and if we finish with even three or four wins, then that's a great step in the right direction for the program."

The way we see it for the 2011 season . . .

Steve Algeri

LARGE SCHOOLS

1). READING ... Rockets forget Super Bowl nightmare and finish back on top.

2). WOBURN ... Too bad I witnessed the A-B game or may have picked them higher.

3). LEXINGTON ... Have a lot of vets back and will be a tough out.

4). WINCHESTER ... I will miss Paul Sobolewski. Just saying.

5). BELMONT ... At least the 6 p.m. home starts get you home earlier.

6). ARLINGTON ... This school always wanted to be in this league. Be careful what you wish for.

SMALL SCHOOLS

1). BURLINGTON ... Need to avoid late-season swoon.

3). WAKEFIELD ... Zack Bates? Why does that name sound familiar?

3). WILMINGTON ... Welcome aboard. People in the town miss Stelio's the way I do?

4). MELROSE ... Green Field facelift puts Red Raiders on the road.

5). WATERTOWN ... Another Red Raider team hits the road. What, they dropped the Red part?

6). STONEHAM ... Love those painted rocks behind the goal post.

Ken Kotelly

LARGE SCHOOLS

1). READING ... Lost a lot, but still the best of the large schools.

2). WOBURN ... Chucky scares me enough not to underrate the Tanners again.

3). LEXINGTON ... With the oldest active coach... oh, wait a minute, that was last year.

4). WINCHESTER ... Sachems will have to take the road to success.

5). ARLINGTON ... Spy Ponders too inexperienced to win in the Middlesex League right away.

6). BELMONT ... Wasn't long ago Gildea and Marauders were getting FOX 25 attention.

SMALL SCHOOLS

1). BURLINGTON ... Their coaches won't talk to me if I pick them lower than this.

2). WAKEFIELD ... Boyages somehow gets Warriors to exceed expectations every year.

3). MELROSE ... Let's see, who from Woburn and Reading is a coach there this year?

4). WILMINGTON ... Coming from underrated Cape Ann League.

5). WATERTOWN ... Without a true home field, the Raiders will struggle.

6). STONEHAM ... If the Spartans can just beat a league team they might finish higher.

Brian Murphy

LARGE SCHOOLS

1). READING ... Youthful Rockets have (just) enough.

2). LEXINGTON ... New coach and spread offense suit Minutemen.

3). WOBURN ... Ortiz cannot be stopped, only contained.

4). BELMONT ... Stud DE/TE Dillon can't do it alone.

5). WINCHESTER ... Lean times for Sachems.

SMALL SCHOOLS

1). MELROSE ... Cries of "break of the Red Raiders" after Week 1 win vs. Belmont.

2). WAKEFIELD ... Thanksgiving heartbreak keeps them out of playoffs.

3). BURLINGTON ... Odiah runs wild over opponents like his father Excell used to.

4). WILMINGTON ... Could be better. Don't know enough about them.

5). STONEHAM ... Circle the calendar for Oct. 14 at Watertown. Post-game celebration at Dairy Dome.

6). WATERTOWN ... But what a hoops program!

Mark Nadeau

LARGE SCHOOLS

1). READING ... Rubber stamp them on top until further notice.

2). WOBURN ... Tanners are no Childs Play with Chucky at TB.

3). LEXINGTON ... Minutemen will be Coste-effective

4). BELMONT ... Marauders will be Rocha and rolling.

5). WINCHESTER ... Could be rollercoaster ride in first year of Wally World.

6). ARLINGTON ... Spy Ponders also new at head coach and QB.

SMALL SCHOOLS

1). BURLINGTON ... Farley and Odiah all day-uh.

2). WILMINGTON ... Ferreira and Parsons may lead Wildcats to Small School title.

3). WAKEFIELD ... Skills make Warriors a threat.

4). MELROSE ... The Red Raiders could like going Small.

5). WATERTOWN ... Farrar keeps Raiders out of basement.

Jamie Pote

LARGE SCHOOLS

1). READING ... Should be an awesome fight for the top.

2). LEXINGTON ... Nick McDaniel needs more help for team to get over the hump.

3). WOBURN ... Now that Wilmington is in the ML, perhaps I'll get to visit the Tanner Tavern now.

4). BELMONT ... It is always a pain to get to that school, so fourth place sounds good enough for 'em.

5). ARLINGTON ... Wildcats did not have much trouble with them in opener.

6). WINCHESTER ... I know I am new here, but have Sachems ever been good in football?

SMALL SCHOOLS

1). BURLINGTON ... From what I've heard and read, it's the Red Devils' year.

2). WAKEFIELD ... Could surprise people with Puccio & Co.

3). WILMINGTON ... Parsons will be a top player in the new league, but 'Cats need many clones to compete.

4). MELROSE ... Doesn't appear they have enough depth to win.

5). STONEHAM ... It'll be good to see old buddy Bob Almeida give it a shot to help turn things around.

6). WATERTOWN ... Don't see many upsets for them this year.

"Root, Root, Root" for the Tanners!

Best Wishes for a Successful Season!

Hope the Tanners BRUSH AWAY the Competition!
